It's All Over But The Voting Monday In San Rafael

About 6,000 San Rafael citizens will elect a mayor, two city councilmen, city attorney, and police chief Monday.

These same voters, plus about 1,200 more outside the city, will elect three members of the San Rafael Board of Education.

These are the estimates of City Clerk W. L. Morgan, who has handled many municipal elections and reports the voter turnout runs from 40 to 50 per cent of those registered within the city and only 10 to 12 per cent in the "outside" precincts within San Rafael High School District.

Absentee ballots this time are double the usual number, Morgan having issued 139 as compared with a normal total of 60 to 70. However, the city clerk attributes this largely to the fact that schools will be on Easter vacation next week and many school employees may be taking vacation trips.

Registration, as of the November general election, totaled 12,656 in the city and 9,799 in outside precincts. To handle the turnout, Morgan has set up 42 polling places, four more than were used two years ago. All the additions are within the city limits. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Three of the city offices to be filled offer no contest. Mayor John F. McInnis is unopposed for a third term. City Clerk Morgan himself, in office since 1953, likewise appears alone on the ballot. Third unopposed candidate is City Treaurer Angelina J. Soldavini, who has held the office since 1957.

The city council race has three candidates for the two openings. Both incumbents whose terms expire seek re-election. They are Dr. Charles W. Aby, osteopathic physician, seeking a fourth term, and Fred E. Jensen, retired contractor, out for a third term. Seeking to win one of the places is Lothar Salin, printing firm operator.

There has been little in the way of campaign charges or counter-charges in the council campaign. Salin has accused the present council of "dragging its feet" on important matters. Jensen is campaigning on his record. Aby has made no campaign.

Another council vacancy may be created if David Menary Jr. wins the city attorney post, for which he is contending with John G. Buresh. Menary's council term has two years to run; if defeated for city attorney, he will remain on the council.

Menary, a San Rafael native, is a member of the law firm of Nelson, Boyd, Menary and MacDonald. Buresh, who was born in St. Paul, Minn., is with the firm of Buresh, Smith, Truett and Durham. Both firms have offices in the Albert Building.

Corte Madera Man Dies In Crash On Highway

Smashed Head-On Into Car

A Corte Madera public relations man was killed last night near Novato when his car scraped a bridge railing, rebounded through the center dividing strip and smashed head-on into an oncoming auto.

Dead on arrival at Novato Hospital was Jordan Dean Stanton Jr., 52, of 10 Flying Cloud Course, Corte Madera, a resident of Marin for four years. He was employed by Christian Brothers Wineries.

The driver of the other car, Darrell Dean Cooper, 25, of Santa Rosa, suffered only minor injuries. He was released from Novato Hospital after treatment for cut fingers and abrasions of the right knee.

As an outgrowth of the fatal collision, a Mill Valley girl, Janet Johnson, 19, of 48 Dell Street, suffered a bruised eye and a Santa Rosa youth was booked at the county jail on a series of charges.

Three witnesses who were traveling behind Stanton's southbound compact station wagon told California Highway Patrol officers Richard O'Brien and James Greer that they saw a shower of sparks as Stanton's car scraped the right-hand railing of the Novato Creek bridge on Highway 101.

They said the car veered left across the center divider, hit Cooper's northbound station wagon.

Widow Is Killed In Crash

Mrs. Frederic C. Bost, 56, of 312 Beach Road, Belvedere, widow of a prominent orthopedic surgeon, was killed in a head-on auto crash on a freeway off-ramp in San Francisco yesterday.

Mrs. Bost's car, headed up the ramp at Fell and Laguna streets at 11 a.m., hit a panel truck driven by Frank Mangiola, 21, of San Francisco, who suffered minor injuries. Mrs. Bost was dead on arrival at Central Emergency Hospital.

California Highway Patrolman David Windecker said he could not determine why Mrs. Bost's car was going the wrong way on the ramp.

Lloyd Johnson, 42, of San Francisco, driver of another car which hit the rear of the panel truck, was uninjured.

Mrs. Bost's husband, who died four years ago at the age of 58, was former chief of surgery at Shriners', Children's and San Francisco General hospitals. He was also professor of orthopedic surgery.

She leaves four daughters, Cindy and Bettina Bost and Mrs. James Rey of Belvedere and Mrs. Stanley Swenson of Denver, and a son, Frederic W. Bost II, a medical student at Philadelphia, Pa.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Merchants Are Hit Where It Hurts

By RICHARD LYTTLE

A peppery advertising promotion man warned merchants yesterday that quick and drastic steps are needed if downtown San Rafael is to survive the competition of the Northgate Shopping Center.

Wallace Blake, advertising-promotion director for Seabreeze Construction Co., told merchants they must:

1. Get the state and the city to increase traffic access to downtown.
2. Put up some big signs on the freeway, advertising downtown.
3. Back a corporation to buy all available land and convert it to free parking lots.
4. Get another theater in the downtown area for both movies and legitimate plays.
5. Persuade some good restaurants to move in.
6. Get the city council to establish one-way streets and do away at once with angle parking on Fourth Street.
7. Start next week keeping stores open three nights a week.
8. Stage some promotions with evening circuses and midnight sales.

Blake spoke to 35 members of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce at Villa Rafael yesterday noon. He spoke from his experiences as a shopping center promotion director, newspaper owner, and television executive.

He warned that the downtown area may lose three chain stores — Macy's, J. W. Woolworth Co. and J. C. Penney Co. soon after Northgate opens next year if something is not done to increase free parking downtown.

"You cannot expect a store like Macy's to try to compete with Northgate when there is not adequate parking," Blake said. "Macy's, I'm sure, will look for a more favorable location."

The merchants should hire an expert to run their promotion and be willing to pay him $15,000 to $20,000 a year, Blake said.

He suggested that a downtown corporation, if formed, might buy the courthouse block, tear down the building and put up a two-deck parking lot.

Blake deplored San Rafael's downtown traffic and parking situation.

"You can't get in and you can't get out," he said. He called the traffic congestion of Fourth Street "disgusting."

The Northgate Shopping Center with 50 to 70 retail stores, including the Emporium, will have free parking spaces for 3,600 cars and a possible turnover of 20,000 autos a day, he said.

Northgate merchants will probably spend upward of a million dollars a year on advertising.

The center will have 629,500

83rd Fighter Squadron Is Folding At Hamilton

The 83rd Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base will go out of existence in July, the Air Force announced yesterday.

This will leave only one fighter squadron—the 84th—at the North Marin base.

Six of the 83rd's F-101B "Voodoo" fighter planes will be added to the 437th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Oxnard Air Force Base. The remainder will be transferred to the 84th Squadron, which has Hamilton as home base but some of its aircraft dispersed at other locations.

Abolishment of the 83rd Squadron was announced by the Air Force as part of a realignment of the air defense structure resulting from a detailed study.

The Air Force estimated the change will reduce the strength at Hamilton by about 236 military personnel.

The 83rd was equipped with "Voodoo" fighters in August, 1960. Last year, it won the Hughes Trophy as the outstanding fighter squadron in the Air Force.

Paradise Property Owners Protest Bay Rocket Tests

Fears that Paradise Cove will be less like its name as a result of rocket engine testing in San Francisco Bay were addressed to Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.) today by the Paradise Property Owners Assn.

The association sent to Kuchel, over signature of B. H. Hirsch, its chairman, a protest at plans of Aerojet-General Corp. for static firing tests of underwater rocket engines off Angel Island and Point Richmond.

"Citizens of Marin . . . have been somewhat shaken by the announcement" of Aerojet-General's plans, wrote Hirsch. The plans came to light through an application to the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to moor barges at the two locations and use them as bases for the tests.

Hirsch wrote that only exhaustive efforts by residents of the Tiburon Peninsula thwarted military plans for leveling its hills for a flat ammunition dump during World War II. In 1949, he related, Marin County protests prevented establishing a permanent floating ammunition dump just offshore.

Gentle Drizzle Turns Into A Real Soaker

A storm which started with gentle drizzles yesterday turned into a real soaker during the night, dumping more than three inches at some points in Marin by noon today.

More rain tonight and tomorrow was forecast by the Weather Bureau.

The storm, expected to spread over all of Central California by tonight, brought snow in the Sierra Nevada down to the 5,500-foot level. Chains are required on Highways 40 and 50.

Small craft warnings flew along the coast from Point Reyes northward.

All in all, it was a miserable start for Easter vacation.

Larkspur was among the heaviest hit Marin communities. John J. Niebauer in Chevy Chase, Larkspur, reported 3.24 inches of rain by noon today.

Only higher storm reading was at Muir Woods where 3.65 was reported at 9 a.m.

The California Highway Patrol reported several accidents caused by slick streets.

Other noon storm totals today were Larkspur, Firehouse, 2:51; Inverness, 2.45; Woodacre, 171; San Rafael, 1.33, and Novato, .76.

San Rafael now has a total of 41.42 for the season, well above the 33.25 average for this time.

Other storm totals taken at 8 a.m. today were Kentfield 1.90; Forest Knolls, 1.81; Fairfax, 1.50; Tiburon, 1.35; San Anselmo, 1.33; Marinwood, 1.15, and Tamalpais Valley, 1.00.

Russia's Lunik Passes By Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets announced today that their Lunik IV passed the moon at a distance of 8,500 kilometers (5,281 miles) on a course that will eventually make it an artificial satellite of the sun.

Tass said the one and one-half ton vehicle, launched Tuesday as a part of the Soviet space race with the United States, passed the moon at 4:26 a.m. Moscow time.

Without specifying exactly what Soviet scientists had hoped Lunik IV would accomplish, the Soviet news agency said experiments and measurements "have been carried out." It said radio contact will be maintained for several more days.

Tass said extensive experimental material has been obtained which will be of great importance for the solution of a number of technical problems connected with the conquest of the moon.

The data were reported being studied at cosmic space research centers.

Tass said the lunar probe, "in the further course of its flight," will circle the earth on an elondated orbit in 1963.

Maximum distance of the station from the earth on its first circuit will be 700,000 kilometers (434,960 miles) and the minimum distance 90,000 kilometers (56,927 miles), it said.

The report added that, as a result of the gravitational pull of the sun and the moon, the orbit will gradually suffer considerable distortion and, as a result, the station will leave the sphere of the earth's gravitational pull and become a satellite of the sun.

Tass said today's communique would be the last announcement on the Lunik IV flight.

The tone of the communique heightened suspicion among foreigners in Moscow that the moon probe had not been fully successful.

Observers at Jodrell Bank Radio Observator in Great Britain Friday night reported that the rocket had made a series of complicated maneuvers. Jodrell Bank lost radio contact with the device after recording 44 minutes of beeps. The craft at that time was reported within 10,000 miles of the moon.

Tass never disclosed what Lunik IV was intended to accomplish. There had been hints in the Soviet press that its mission was to photograph the moon's surface or to attempt a soft landing of an instrument package.

Soviet propaganda organs, breaking with their usual practice, have all but relegated the space flight to the back pages.

Gregory: Great To Be Back From Behind Cotton Curtain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negro comedian Dick Gregory said today it was great "to be back from behind the cotton curtain," but vowed he would return to Mississippi "at once" if racial problems explode there again.

Gregory, who arrived by plane today to discuss booking arrangements with his manager, said that for awhile during the past week he never expected to leave Greenwood, Miss., "in one piece."

Referring to a Negro rally in a church during which "many of us" feared the outbreak of violence, Gregory said:

"It's not a pleasant feeling to be inside a church and waiting for it to blow up," he said.

But Gregory, who joined other civil rights leaders in spearheading a Negro voter registration drive, said he would not hesitate to return "if the concessions we were promised are not carried out.

"Not only will I leave a night club engagement if I happen to be involved in one," he said, "but I'll walk right out in the middle of my act."

The entertainer, whose acid quips on racial problems has qualified him as one of the modern comics currently in vogue, left the Mississippi delta town this morning.

"I feel the situation has improved about as much as it could," he said before leaving. "We got all we can get out of them."

Arms, Space Race: 'Sign Of Stupidity'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A sharp note of dissent to the arms and space races was voiced yesterday by Sir Robert Watson-Watt, the Scottish inventor who developed both the radio direction finder and radar.

The 71-year-old scientist termed the race for space, new weapons, deterrents and new strategies signs of "our apparently incurable stupidity."

He said the United States and Russia should turn their scientific know-how to the more pressing problem of expanding population.

Before long, he said, the world's population will be six billion and at least two billion will be undernourished "unless we are wiser and more vigorously humanitarian than we are now."

He called for an end to the arms race and a slow-down in the space race. Sir Robert was here to address a United World Federalists meeting. His topic: "Insanity in High Places."

Phonics Teaching: 'Too Little, Too Late'

Two candidates for the San Rafael Board of Education today declared the phonics taught in San Rafael schools, as outlined in a report printed yesterday in the Independent-Journal, are "too little and too late."

Mrs. Edythe B. Tait and Dr. D. Gwynn Thomson, the candidates who have emphasized curriculum — and especially teaching of reading and English—during their campaign, expressed gratitude that San Rafael schools have adopted some of the recommendations of a citizen curriculum committee minority report last year of which they were signers. But, they said in a joint statement today:

"By phonics in reading we mean applied phonics as a reading readiness procedure which consists of first teaching the sounds of the letters of the alphabet in conjunction with spelling. This results in word recognition and is then fused with the basic word or thought method.

"The teaching manuals of Ginn and Allyn and Bacon, now in use in the San Rafael District, do not subscribe to this method. Their system teaches word recognition first, then only partially introduces phonics by teaching some consonants only in the first year, to be followed by the vowels in the second year. Not until the third year are all the sounds of the alphabet taught. This is too late . . . As a result the student is both a slow reader and a poor speller.

"There are some teachers doing a thorough job in the scientific teaching of phonics, reading and spelling in the first grade in the San Rafael District. However, since there are no requirements that phonics be taught and no uniformity of methods in teaching phonics, the teacher may or may not teach phonics at her own discretion . . . A parent cannot be assured that his child will get a systematic training in phonics such as we advocate."

San Rafael Is Going To Polls On Monday

Both Buresh and Menary have been campaigning actively, but the nearest thing to an issue has developed over whether the same men should be city attorney for two cities (a not-uncommon practice in Marin). Buresh cites 13 years as city attorney of San Anselmo as qualifying him for the San Rafael post. Menary pledges to "remain unencumbered by professional attachment to any other municipality" if he is elected.

Strangest campaign is for police chief, with three candidates: incumbent Charles J. Chiesa, Nick Giampoli, and Vernon D. Thomas Jr.

Four years ago, Chiesa resigned as police lieutenant to campaign against his boss, Chief Frank Kelly. He won.

Last September, Lieutenant Giampoli announced he would run against his boss, Chiesa. On Dec. 12, Chiesa fired Giampoli for taking unauthorized sick leave. The firing has been in dispute ever since, complicated by failure of Giampoli and the city administration to comply with ordinances governing appeals from dismissals. The city council, in a closed session last Thursday, reached a decision as to whether to uphold Chiesa or order Giampoli's reinstatement; but announcement of the decision was withheld until after Monday's voting, to prevent its influencing the election.

Chiesa has served 24 years on the San Rafael force; Giampoli, 16. Both advanced to lieutenant without examination, the practice having been to give examinations only for entering patrolmen.

Giampoli has courted public debate with his opponents. Both Chiesa and Thomas, a heavy equipment operator whose father was a San Rafael police captain, have declined to appear on the platform with Giampoli. Chiesa has been making the same kind of house-to-house campaign that won for him four years ago.

Within the city and outside it within the high school district — which includes San Quentin Village, Santa Venetia, San Rafael Meadows, Los Ranchitos, Terra Linda, Lucas Valley, Marinwood, Hamilton Air Force Base and Ignacio—voters will choose three members of the board of education. Under an odd setup, the city board of education governs both the San Rafael School District (elementary) and the San Rafael High School District. Both reach beyond city limits, the high school district including all the San Rafael elementary district plus Dixie and San Jose Elementary districts.

Eight candidates seek the three board of education positions. Only one, C. Paul Bettini, is an incumbent. All have been campaigning strenuously. All have appeared at candidates' forums, although two—Walter J. Doll and Frank W. Parker—have missed some of the forums to pursue a campaign of coffee hour gatherings in homes.

Candidates for the board of education are:

Bettini, San Rafael-born insurance man who has been on the board eight years and who planned to run for city council if either of the other board members whose terms expire had sought re-election.

Doll, a steamship line executive who lives in Terra Linda and has been six years on the Dixie School District board.

Parker, Standard Oil Co. of California chemical engineer, who lives in Santa Venetia, has been president of the Terra Linda High School Parent-Teacher Assn. and a member of the San Rafael schools' curriculum and school facilities-finance committees.

Carl J. Brown, Sir Francis Drake High School coach and chairman of the San Rafael Recreation Commission.

Mrs. Edythe B. Tait, housewife, former teacher and now a substitute teacher, who was a member of the curriculum committee minority of five (a majority of parents on the committee) which advocated revamping the reading and English curriculum to cut down on non-readers reaching high school.

Dr. D. Gwynn Thomson, Marinwood physician who was a member of the same curriculum committee group.

Paul J. Wata, Santa Venetia resident and a business education teacher at Tamalpais High School.

L. E. Weisenburg Jr., contractor, who was chairman of the finance subcommittee of the school finance and facilities committee.

Gate Bridge Insurance Voted Out

The Golden Gate Bridge District's insurance committee voted yesterday to do away with gift $10,000 life insurance policies for the district's directors.

The directors voted the free policies for themselves several years ago, at the same time they decided the district should buy $2,500 life insurance policies on the workers who walk the hazardous cables.

Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, one of four new directors who rejected the free policies on their appointments (another of the group is Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato), proposed yesterday that the practice be discontinued. Other directors on the insurance committee agreed. The committee voted that if directors want to continue the policies, they should pay the $14.80 monthly premium themselves.

Unaffected are medical insurance policies carried by the district for its directors and employees.

Abolishment of the free life insurance will be acted on by the full bridge board at its meeting next Friday.

In Fair Condition

CRASH

Stanton's car was lifted into the air, spun around and hurtled down an embankment on the east side of the roadway.

Cooper told officers he saw the car coming toward him but had no time to get out of the way. He crawled out of his car after the impact and went to Stanton's car to try to help the driver.

O'Brien and Greer said Stanton was still held in the front seat by a seat belt. The accident happened at 8:50 p.m. and Stanton was pronounced dead at 9:25 p.m.

Asst. Coroner William Bradley said an autopsy would seek to determine if Stanton might have suffered a heart attack.

Bradley said, however, that Stanton's injuries appeared to be severe enough to be fatal.

Shortly after the first accident, the young driver of a pickup truck from Santa Rosa precipitated another collision, officers said.

Ronald Swoveland, 18, stopped in the southbound lanes to look at the wreckage in the northbound lanes. A car driven by William R. Woods, 21, of 506 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, ran into the truck, injuring Woods' passenger, Miss Johnson.

Officers said Swoveland turned around and drove north but he was overtaken and stopped.

They said the truck had no tail lights and Swoveland had no driver's license with him. He was cited for those alleged violations and also with illegally stopping on the highway, leaving the scene of an accident, possession of intoxicants and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The officers said Swoveland had a 13-year-old girl with him. They said there was a six-pack of beer in the vehicle and a companion was unconscious from drinking. The girl was sent to juvenile hall and Swoveland was in jail today in lieu of $853.50 bail.

Stanton's body was taken to Redwood Funeral Chapel.

A native of Oklahoma, Stanton had lived in California for 40 years. He had been a member of the California Wine Advisory Board for 15 years.

Surviving are his wife Virginia, of Corte Madera, and three sons, Gary, 25, of San Francisco; Jordan Dean Stanton III, 13, and Bruce Stanton, 9, of Corte Madera. He also leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan D. Stanton Sr. of San Francisco, and two brothers, Frank Stanton of Mill Valley and Gordon Stanton of San Francisco.

Injured In Crash

Mrs. Lynne Chesse, 33, of 5 Josephine Avenue, Sausalito, suffered face, head and knee cuts last night when the family's small imported car skidroadway on the south approach ded out of control on the wet to Golden Gate Bridge and hit a guard rail.

square feet of floorspace which is nearly equal to the 660,000 square feet of retail floor space existing now throughout Marin.

The center will run its own promotions, Blake said. Downtown merchants will not be included.

"Northgate merchants are not going to be satisfied with putting up decoration (for promotions) that are three to four years old and need repainting," he said. "No wrapping paper signs saying 40 per cent off will be allowed."

Blake warned against judging the effect of Northgate by the Corte Madera Shopping Center. He said the Corte Madera Merchants are poorly organized, the parking poorly laid out and the promotion badly handled. "Corte Madera has been a flop as a center," Blake said.

Blake said it is far too late for downtown merchants and property owners to get help from the city. He pointed out that Northgate is also in the city and downtown merchants cannot expect Northgate to contribute taxes to aid downtown.

If quick efforts are not made to improve the downtown area, it will become a service center with banks and professional offices and only a few stores, Blake said.

Blake's firm is in the home and apartment house construction business. It has no connection with Northgate. "I have no ax to grind," he said. "I'm only speaking as a newcomer to your county."

Among the many questions at the close of the talk, Myron Zwang of Sarrae's, chairman of the chamber's retail merchants committee, asked how Northgate will choose its stores and whether it would consider any San Rafael merchants.

Blake did not know the answer to that one.

Takes First Step In 'Straight' Direction

A convicted robber from Palo Alto, who wants to "go straight," poured out a complete confession yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on his part in a Jan. 3 burglary in San Anselmo.

Lawrence Roy Yamada, 35, brought to court from the state prison at Vacaville, testified in a preliminary hearing against Joseph Franklin Rose, 22, an unemployed beautician from San Francisco.

Rose is accused of burglary of the home of Ray Thompson and Richard Dudley at 6 West Hillside Avenue, San Anselmo.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales called Yamada on the stand as state's witness before Judge Joseph G. Wilson. Yamada gave this account:

Rose asked him to help in burglary of the San Anselmo home. Rose had a key to the house because he had formerly lived there with Dudley, until they had a "falling out."

Yamada said they stole radios, antique clock, record player, television, and money. They then drove to Las Vegas where Rose telephoned his attorney, Mansfield Davis of San Francisco. This led to their arrest.

Judge Wilson continued the preliminary hearing until April 25, when attorney Davis will cross-examine Yamada.

"I've been in and out of trouble all my adult life," Yamada told newsmen outside of court. "Now is as good a time as any to straighten myself out. I am taking the stand as the first step toward complete rehabilitation."

Asst. Police Chief Sam N. Serio of San Anselmo, who investigated the burglary, said all the loot was recovered except the money and the grandfather's clock.

TESTS

Of Aerojet-General's proposal, Hirsch wrote:

"San Francisco Bay is about the last place this type of activity should be conducted. There is probably more 'personal' use of the central and northern arm of the bay by the people living on its shores than any other major inlet. Once such testing has been accomplished there will be no stopping either this company or others from continuing or increasing such activities . . . There is no reason why the tests cannot be conducted in some isolated coastal area."

Baby Stroller Stolen

Theft of a baby stroller, valued at $15, was reported to sheriff's deputies yesterday by Mrs. Delia Butcher of 6 Benton Court, Tiburon.

DEATH ROW INMATES HIT RECORD HIGH

The number of Death Row inmates at San Quentin went up another notch yesterday to a new record high.

George Washington Bostick Jr., 27, arrived from Los Angeles County where he was sentenced Wednesday. He joined 42 other inmates, 33 of whom are in cells on Death Row and the other nine are in the adjacent isolation section.

Prison officials have been using the isolation section because of the overcrowding of the condemned row facilities.

Four Death Row inmates are due to go to the gas chamber, barring successful appeals, on May 3.

Spokesman For Bus Firm Says They Can Beat Transit Authority

By RANDALL GOULD

Counsel for Cecil B. Allen dramatically offered at a California public utilities commission at the Civic Center yesterday that Allen's San Rafael Bus Co. will "meet or beat" any service proposed by Marin Transit Authority over lines where they compete.

He followed this by a specific proposal that Allen institute an hourly schedule between downtown San Rafael and the Civic Center.

Such service, he said, would be up to the standard of the present more limited service and would meet any requirements the commission might lay down.

This came as climax to a lively afternoon. It caused commissioner Peter E. Mitchell first to instruct that Allen himself take the stand to cover the ground outlined by his lawyer, Charles W. Pierce, and then to recess the hearing to 9:30 a.m. April 19 at the state building in San Francisco.

Previous to this the major share of the afternoon had been occupied by presentation of a report by Hilton H. Nichols, associate transportation engineer for the PUC, followed by cross-questioning mainly by the president of Marin Transit Authority, Robert L. Peterson of Ross.

Peterson apologized for acting as his own attorney but Mitchell smilingly told him to "go ahead, you're doing fine."

When Pierce made the offer of improved competitive service, Peterson objected that this was his hearing, not that of a rival. Mitchell rejoined that the rival was appearing in protest and could solve the problem by putting a witness on the stand at the next session.

Nichols's report pointed out that Marin transit's proposed route extensions in some instances ran along lines of present service by both Greyhound—which had withdrawn from a protest position after reaching agreement protecting its service north of San Rafael—and Allen's line.

He said it appeared Greyhound is rendering adequate service between Novato and San Rafael and between Kentfield Corners and San Rafael via San Anselmo, "and that the applicant should be restricted from operating any service between points which are now being served by Greyhound."

Similarly pointing to service between San Rafael and Santa Venetia by Allen's line, though only with two round trips daily, Nichols said that if San Rafael Bus Co. is able and willing to step up this service "it appears that recognition should be given to that company's prior rights by imposing appropriate restrictions on any certificate" given Peterson's newer line. This led to the offer of hourly service.

Nichols said Peterson had thus far avoided coming under PUC regulation by a presumption that he would operate almost entirely on San Rafael city streets, with only 2 per cent outside. But survey by the PUC showed, said Nichols, that the operation actually was running 15 to 20 per cent in unincorporated territory.

On cross-examination, Pierce elicited that Nichols' rides on Allen's line had convinced him it is satisfactory on all points including safety.

Nichols said Marin Transit Authority seemed likely to be faced with fewer riders at higher fares if it extends its lines, which might just add up to greater loss than the present $4,000 a month calculated by commission staff.

In rebuttal Peterson stressed the possibility of more "indoctrination" of Marinites with the desirability of leaving their cars at home in favor of a mass transportation offering them service from such areas as Terra Linda and Marinwood.

He said Greyhound means to dispense with its San Anselmo bus station and suggested this would cut down service or cause another type of bus to be operated. Commissioner Mitchell asked for further information at the next hearing.

Nichols said he hated to be pessimistic but he doubted that Peterson could develop much additional patronage. But he insisted that he wouldn't wish to leave any impression that he was opposed to more bus service.

San Rafael Man Is Nabbed After High-Speed Chase

A 31-year-old San Rafael man was issued six traffic citations by San Rafael police last night after a high speed chase through downtown San Rafael.

Leonard Michael Cohen of 55 Canal Street was cited by Officer Phillip Green for speeding, failure to stop for a stop sign, failure to stop for a flashing red traffic light, failure to heed a red light and siren, reckless driving, and driving at night without lights.

Green said he first saw Cohen driving west on Fourth Street near West End Avenue 40 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone at 9:40 p.m. Green gave chase.

Cohen doubled back on Fourth Street, ran a stop sign at First and E streets, forcing another car off the road, according to Green.

He finally stopped behind 711 D Street.

Doll Mentions Phonics In Campaign Talks

Walter J. Doll one of the candidates in the race for two seats on the San Rafael Board of Education, took exception today to a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal which included him among candidates who have not commented on teaching of phonics in San Rafael schools.

Doll said he has mentioned phonics in two campaign talks and has approved of the way it is taught in the district.

When this sort of hand is actually played, East wins the first trick with the ace of spades and returns the queen of spades at the second trick.

All very normal, isn't it?

VERY WRONG

Also all very wrong. South wins with the king of spades, leads a club to dummy, and returns the queen of diamonds for a finesse.

West takes the king of diamonds but cannot defeat the contract.

He can get one additional spade trick, but South has nine tricks as soon as he regains the lead.

LIGHT DAWNS

The light dawns on East much later. The next day he can discuss the hand at lunch with his cronies:

"My partner led the four of spades and you can see that my correct play was to play the queen. I dare say many people would have been careless enough to play the ace of spades."

East hasn't actually fibbed. He hasn't said that he played the queen himself. And he is right in saying that the queen is the correct play.

SPADES WIN

If South wins with the king of spades, West leads another spade to the ace on being given his diamond trick.

East then leads his low spade, and West has three more spade tricks.

If South refuses the first trick, East continues with the ace of spades and then his low spade.

This sets up West's suit, and the king of diamonds enables him to cash his tricks later on.

No Such Thing As A Friendly Country

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

"One of the greatest economic revolutions that has hit Western Europe in the centuries." The common market was labeled by G. Alvin Carpenter in his talk Wednesday following the annual morning meetings of the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin.

Nearly 80 membegrs were present for the luncheon following the meetings, both held at Sabella's in Mill Valley.

Speaking on "The American Farmer and the Common Market," Carpenter, an economist with the University of California Agricultural Service, said that the Common Market brings many implications for the United States—"whether for John Doe Public or the American farmer."

The maneuvers of the Common Market countries (France, Italy, Luxembourg, Holland, Italy and associate member Greece), he pointed out, are very much like those of any business man protecting his own interests.

"We have to keep that in mind so that we won't be sold down the river," he declared.

After explaining the Common Market backgroud, Carpenter defined it essentially as "a trade union in which imports, labor, goods and services are free to move unencumbered by trade barriers within the member countries."

So great has been its progress, he said, that while the economic growth of the United States over the past five years has been three and one-half per-cent, that of the Common Market countries has been seven per-cent.

As these countries become more competitive, he said, not only is competition in world markets tougher, but imports into this country are affecting local industries and products. Already some steel mills have closed in Pittsburg, he said.

Carpenter stressed effects on argriculture, pointing out that France is "the greatest farming land" and has dictated Common Market agricultural policy. He said 25 per-cent of France is still farming land, 12 per-cent of Germany and 10 per-cent of the United States.

California farmers, he went on, are especially apprehensive because of their many specialty crops.

He explained that Western Europe is of the utmost importance to this country both as a bulwark against communism and as a market for its agricultural products composing one-fourth of the total exports.

"It's the one market where we're getting hard money in dollars," he said.

Carpenter said that sharp American business men are setting up businesses within the Common Market territory to avoid the tariffs and take advantage of lower wage rates.

"We are going into an entirely new era in international trade," he predicted. But in his opinion the United States will not do anything on general agreement on trade and tariff until early next year.

"When we sit around the table in trade agreements," he said, "we must remember perhaps there is no such thing as a friendly nation. There are friendly people, but every country relentlessly pursues its own interests."

Rookies In Spotlight As Major Leagues Open Monday

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—A 45 per cent player turnover, including at least a dozen rookies, is anticipated when the major leagues open the 1963 baseball season next Monday and Tuesday.

About 350,000 persons, including President Kennedy, are expected to attend the 11 openers, two on Monday, the rest the following day.

The President, as is customary, will throw out the first ball at D.C. Stadium, where some 47,000 fans will watch the Washington Senators inaugurate the American League season against the Baltimore Orioles in Monday's only league game.

Don Rudolph, 31-year-old southpaw, figures to get the starting assignment for Mickey Vernon's Senators. He will be opposed by another left-hander, 23-year-old Steve Barber. Rudolph had an 8-10 record for the last-place Senators and Barber was 9-6 for the Orioles last year.

A capacity crowd of around 30,000 is assured for the traditional National League opener in Cincinnati. The Pittsburgh Pirates, with right-hander Earl Francis, 9-8, on the mound, will be the Reds' opposition. Lefty Jim O'Toole, a 16-13 performer in '62, has been given the starting nomination by Reds Manager Fred Hutchinson.

All teams except Baltimore and Washington will play Tuesday. The schedule and starting times EST:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York at Kansas City, 2:30 p.m.

Chicago at Detroit, 1:30 p.m.

Boston at Los Angeles, 11 p.m.

Cleveland at Minnesota, 2:30 p.m.

Only games scheduled.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Los Angeles at Chicago, 2:30 p.m.

San Francisco at Houston, 2:30 p.m.

Milwaukee at Pittsburgh, 1:35 p.m.

St. Louis at New York, 2 p.m.

Cincinnati at Philadelphia, 8:05 p.m.

An unprecedented winter trading spree and an unusual flock of spring injuries, combined with the development of a number of rookies have changed the face of a great many clubs.

Houston, for example, will present an opening-day line-up containing only two players, exclusive of the pitcher, who were in the 1962 inaugural line-up. They are outfielder Al Spangler and third baseman Bob Aspromonte.

Playing at second base for the Colts will be Ernie Fazio, the $75,000 bonus boy who has changed Manager Harry Craft's mind about sending him to the minors. Among the other Colt newcomers are Pete Runnels, American League batting champion acquired from Boston; Howie Goss, center fielder acquired in a recent trade with Pittsburgh, and rookie catcher Jim Campbell.

Other rookies named to grace opening day line-ups include infielders Nate Oliver and Ken McMullen, Dodgers; third baseman Bob Bailey, Pirates; outfielder Tommy Harper, Reds; shortstop Al Moran, Mets; infielders Tony Martinez and Max Alvis and outfielder Vic Davalillo, Indians and third baseman Pete Ward, White Sox.

Veterans who have switched leagues during the past winter include Joe Adcock, Indians; Minnie Minoso, Senators; Roman Mejias and Dick Stuart, Red Sox; Stan Williams, Yankees; Bill Skowron, Dodgers; Don Schwall and Jim Pagliaroni, Pirates; Ty Cline, Braves; Jack Fisher, Giants; Stu Miller, Orioles, and Runnels.

Four new managers will be making their appearance — Johnny Pesky, Red Sox; Bobby Bragan, Braves; Ed Lopat, Athletics, and Birdie Tebbetts, Indians.

Veterans expected to miss the openers because of injuries include Roger Maris, Yankees; Roy Sievers, Phillies; Frank Thomas, Mets and Frank Robinson, Reds. Also currently sidelined with injuries are pitchers Bob Purkey, Reds; Vern Law, Pirates; Billy Hoeft, Giants and Dan Pfister, Athletics.

HORSE	ODDS	JOCKEY	COMMENT
S. F. Giants	5-1	Dark	Unpredictable rider. If he drops whip, horse may lead wire to wire.
Cincinnati	6-1	Hutchison	Superior pitching makes this beaten favorite best chance bet.
Los Angeles	7-1	Alston	Throw out last race. Club has extra supply of kennel ration.
St. Louis	8-1	Keane	Extra jockey (Branch Rickey) May be too much for winning race.
Philadelphia	10-1	Mauch	Over-rated jock. Needs more Mahaffey's for winning effort.
Pittsburgh	12-1	Murtaugh	New broom swept so clean that the once valiant Bucs are out of contention.
Milwaukee	50-1	Bragan	It'll take a tidal wave and tycoon to blow this outfit any higher in standings.
Chicago	100-1	Whitlow	Like the old lady who lived in the shoe, the Cubs have so many bosses they don't know what to do.
Houston	300-1	Craft	This Colt has a great jockey but can't run fast enough to disturb its fleas.
New York	100-1	Stengel	Jockey and horse celebrating 2nd death anniversary but neither has sense enough to stiffen out and be completely embalmed.

McCormick Shipped To Minor Leagues

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike McCormick's arm has been a mystery for some time, now the 24-year-old Baltimore pitcher has turned detective in attempt to find himself.

McCormick, who's been a major leaguer since the day he signed a bonus contract with the New York Giants in 1956, was headed today for the Orioles' Rochester farm club in the International League to try and solve some of the mysteries.

Obtained from the Giants in one of the winter's biggest trades, McCormick came to Baltimore along with pitcher Stu Miller and catcher John Orsino in exchange for pitchers Jack Fisher and Billy Hoeft and catcher Jim Coker.

McCormick has been coming along slowly in the Orioles' camp and Manager Billy Hitchcock feels an additional stretch with the minor leaguers under the Florida sun could be just the cure — all McCormick needs.

McCormick has had the goods since he broke in with the Giants. Somewhere along the line, however, they became somewhat perishable. From 1958 to 1960, after the club had moved to San Francisco, McCormick was a regular starter, winning 11, 12 and 15.

In 1960 when he posted his 15-12 mark, he had the league's lowest earned run average, a brilliant 2.70. In 1961, he slipped to 13-16, then last season ran into the first mystery and slid to 5-5 while spending most of his time on the sidelines with a sore arm.

The announcement of McCormick's first tour of duty with the minor leaguers came on a slack day along the exhibition trail as most clubs were on the move. In addition, the San Francisco-Cleveland and Houston-Kansas City games were rained out.

CINCY WINS

In the only games played, Cincinnati edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2 at Lynchburg, Va., and the New York Yankees whipped Philadelphia 4-2 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Reds won it with runs in the eighth and ninth innings. An error by shortstop Al Weis and a pinch-hit double by Harry Bright gave the Reds an unearned eighth inning run that snapped a 1-1 tie before they came up with the clincher in the ninth on Ken Walters' run-scoring single.

Mickey Mantle put the Yankees ahead to stay against Phils ace Art Mahaffey, smashing a two-run double in a three-run third inning uprising that put it out of reach. Mahaffey, trying to work the kinks out of a sore shoulder, worked four innings.

M.V. Merchants Slate Tryouts

Bob Selna, manager of the Mill Valley Merchants baseball team, hopes the third time is the charm.

Selna announced he will try again tomorrow at 1 p.m. to hold tryouts for the team at Project 17 in Mill Valley. The last two Sunday tryouts were slated but were canceled because of rain.

Tryouts will be open to all persons in Marin. Persons interested in playing but who are unable to make the drill tomorrow should get in touch with Selna of Mill Valley, he said.

WRITERS PICK

Dodgers By Shade Yanks By A Mile

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dodgers by a shade and the Yankees by a mile.

Mickey Mantle and Frank Robinson to have great years, along with Don Drysdale and Ralph Terry.

Those were the predictions of the members of the Baseball Writer's Assn. of America who participated in the annual Associated Press pre-season poll.

Of the 70 writers who participated, 27 picked the Los Angeles Dodgers to 18 who named the San Francisco Giants, National League winners last year over the Dodgers in a playoff. The Cincinnati Reds drew 24 first place votes, but were picked third on total points. The only other first place pick went to the St. Louis Cards.

The New York Yankees drew the American League first place votes of 55 writers, to 6 for Detroit, 4 for Baltimore, 3 for Minnesota and 1 each for the Los Angeles Angels and the Chicago White Sox.

A pennant would give the Yankees four straight.

MANTLE FAVORED

The Yankees' Mantle was the choice to repeat as MVP in the American League, with Al Kaline of the Tigers the second pick.

Robinson of the Reds was the MVP selection in the National, followed by Willie Mays of the Giants.

Drysdale was the pick over his Dodger teammate, Sandy Koufax, to win the most games in the National League. Drysdale was 25-9 last year, and Koufax won 14 before he was sidelined with a numbed index finger.

Terry of the Yankees was the selection to repeat as top A.L. winner, with Camilo Pascual of the Twins the second choice. Terry was 23-11 last season and Pascual 20-11.

Giants Bats Red Hot For Opener

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Six San Francisco Giant regulars appear headed toward the start of the National League campaign batting over .300 during the long spring exhibition season.

Heading the list going into the final two spring contests are the big and little guys from Puerto Rico—first baseman Orlando Cepeda at .366 and shortstop Jose Pagan at .356.

After meeting the Cleveland Indians in Sacramento today, the Giants head for Salt Lake City and the spring finale with the Indians before taking off for Houston and Tuesday's league curtain raiser.

Willie Mays goes today at .344, catcher Tom Haller at .340, third baseman Jimmy Davenport .327, and right fielder Felipe Alou .302.

General handyman Ernie Bowman, who hit just .195 last season while used as defensive insurance in the infield and for pinch running duties, has hit .409 so far this spring.

Manager Alvin Dark gave the starting pitching assignment today to Juan Marichal who was rained out of his expected work against Cleveland in Stockton on Friday. Billy O'Dell will pitch against the Indians in Salt Lake City, taking the spot originally ready for Billy Pierce.

Jack Sanford, Marichal and O'Dell start in the opening series at Houston with Pierce not slated until the Giants hold their home inaugural at Candlestick Park on April 16 against the Colt .45's.

Middleweight TV Fight Rated Tossup

BOSTON (AP) — The list of characters is slightly altered—it's now Joey Giambra facing Joe DeNucci—and the theme is anything but familiar in tonight's 10-round middleweight fight.

Giambra got into the picture when Joey Archer, who was to have gone against DeNucci in the nationally-televised bout, came up with some cracked ribs.

Instead of being a distinct underdog, DeNucci now finds himself in equal graces with oddsmakers who rate the fight an even affair.

Giambra is a 29-year-old veteran of 74 fights from Buffalo, N.Y. He displays a record of 63 victories, nine losses and two draws with 31 knockouts. He's never been stopped and in his only outing this year, dropped a decision to the now welterweight champion, Luis Rodriguez.

DeNucci, only 23, hails from nearby Newton, Mass., has won 34 of his 42 bouts with two draws.

ABC will televise the bout at the Boston Arena, at 7 p.m. PST.

Tacoma Blasts Jacksonville 10-4

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI)—Tacoma overwhelmed Jacksonville of the International League 10-4 in an exhibition contest yesterday.

Bill Hain, Ricardo Joseph, and sensational Jimmy Ray Hart collected three hits apiece for Tacoma.

The Giants added pitcher Minny Rojas to the roster and sent hurler Paul Doyle and catcher Vic Roznovsky to El Paso.

Butts' Phone Calls 'Strictly Business'

ATLANTA (AP) — A Chicago businessman said his telephone conversations with Wallace Butts, former University of Georgia athletic director, "had nothing whatsoever to do with betting on football or any other type of betting."

Frank Scoby, president of an Illinois beer distributing firm, told the Associated Press in Chicago yesterday that he had talked with Butts by long distance telephone on various occasions, but that all the calls were "strictly business."

Scoby was a government witness in a gambling case in 1959.

Butts, accused in a Saturday Evening Post article of conspiring with coach Paul Bryant of Alabama to rig the Georgia-Alabama football game last fall, was questioned by state investigators about the calls to Scoby.

A transcript revealed that Butts told interrogators he borrowed $6,000 from Scoby for business purposes. But he said there never was any discussion of betting or gambling.

Records of calls from Butts to Scoby were included in unmerous toll tickets examined by Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook in his investigation of the Post charges.

Butts and Bryant have denied rigging the game which Alabama won 35-0, and both have said they never gambled. Butts has a $10 million libel suit pending against the Post.

Cook said in a report of his findings that there was no evidence that Butts or Bryant had gambled. He said earlier, however, that Butts had placed calls to persons who had been involved in gambling.

'Baby Dumpling' Is Masters Favorite

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Pudgy Jack Nicklaus, whose nicknames range from "Bo-Bo" to "Baby Dumpling," was the young man to watch starting today's third round of the Masters Golf Tournament.

Although he and handsome Jay Hebert were one shot behind the midpoint leader, husky Mike Souchak, the 23-year-old Nicklaus held center stage after his dazzling comeback in the second round when a blazing putter carried him to a 6-under-par 66.

Souchak, a former end and place-kicker on the Duke football team, didn't play the first 36 holes like a man who hasn't won a tournament in two years. His halfway chart was 69-70-139.

Nicklaus was 74-66-140 and Hebert 70-70-140.

NEAR RECORD

The 66 Nicklaus threw at the field is the lowest score thus far in the 27th Masters and is only two shots off the record set here by Lloyd Mangrum 23 years ago—the year Nicklaus was born.

Souchak escaped a three-way deadlock when he capped his second straight steady round with an 8-foot birdie putt on 18.

Bo Wininger, tied with Souchak at 69 after the first round, bogied the 18th and wound up with a 72 and 141 total, that put him in a tie for fourth place with late-finishing Ed Furgol, the lame-armed former Open champion who birdied two of the last three holes for a 71.

Par for the picturesque, testing Augusta National course is 36-36-72, stretched 6,850 yards over rolling woodlands and well-laced with water hazards.

BIG NAMES

Neither Gary Player nor Arnold Palmer, who with Nicklaus are the big names of current-day golf, was in a particularly threatening position starting the final two rounds.

Player, who said he never got the one big shot to get him rolling, struggled to a 74 for 145—six strokes off the pace. Palmer, the defending champion, who managed a mild rally on the back nine despite a ragged game, had a 73 for 147.

The strong man from Pennsylvania teed off Thursday hoping to score two Masters "firsts." No one has won successive Masters titles and no one ever has won four Masters crowns.

Sam Snead, a three-time Masters champion, with a 73; former Open titlist Dick Mayer, with a 70; and Tony Lema, one on the hot young men among the touring pros, with a 69, were deadlocked in sixth place at 143.

RAINS POSTPONE SECOND ROUND

Terra Linda, Redwood, Tam Win Prep Tourney Openers

By RALPH CHATOIAN

The Marin Athletic League baseball tournament got off the ground yesterday with two full games and a partial tilt, but plans today were stuck in the mud of Albert Field, San Rafael.

The tourney schedule called for four games yesterday and five today, but more spring rains postponed one of yesterday's games and all of today's slated tilts.

Yesterday Terra Linda blasted San Rafael Military Academy 17-3, Redwood downed Novato 4-1, and Tamalpais shouout San Rafael High 4-0 in five innings before the game was cut short because of rain.

The 8 o'clock game between Marin Catholic and Drake was postponed when rain came down and has been rescheduled for next Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at Albert Field.

The second half of the tournament has been rescheduled for May 25, it was announced today by George Corson, league commissioner.

Terra Linda-SRMA

In the Terra Linda massacre over the military academy, the tale was told in the first inning when the Trojans scored 11 runs as 15 batters came to the plate. T.L. was aided by four cadet errors in that opening stanza.

Terra Linda then scored three in the second, one in the fourth and two in the fifth, while SRMA scored two in the third and one in the fourth. Paul Deutsch went all the way on the mound for the Cadets although he was touched for 14 hits.

Three Terra Linda batters had perfect days at the plate. Paul Meuse had two for two, Bill Lee had three for three and Bill DiGrazia had two for two. Centerfielder Jerry Daniele collected three hits in four trips to the plate and Doug Matlock had two safeties. The other two T.L. hits were by Rich Levaro and Al Ruoff.

Of the 14 hits, only two were for extra bases, doubles by Meuse and Ruoff.

SRMA hits were big ones, three of the total four for extra bases. Paul Harlan and Gerry Smith smashed triples, to lead the SRMA cause. The other two hits for the Cadets were a double and a single.

Winning pitcher for Terra Linda was Doug Matlock who went the entire seven innings.

Redwood-Novato

Catcher Jim Troppmann was the key man in the Redwood win over Novato as he blasted a three-run homer in the second inning to give the Giants more than they needed. Troppmann's clout went deep into left-center for an inside -the-park four-bagger.

In that inning, Steve Minutoli and Terry Jarcik singled, but Minutoli was cut down at the plate after an attempted squeeze play failed. Jarcik and Jack Baglietto, who had bunted, scored ahead of Troppmann.

Redwood's fourth hit of the game came in that second inning when Scott Murphy singled, but he died on the bags.

Redwood's other run came in the fourth inning, but was unearned. After Jarcik walked, he was helped around the bases on a pair of Novato errors.

The Hornets collected a total of three hits off Murphy, all singles. Ron Rowell got the first hit in the opening inning, scoring pitcher Chuck Overmyer with a single. Although Novato never scored again, Rusty Druba hit a single in the third and Joe Wright got a single in the fifth.

Murphy, in collecting the win for Redwood, helped the Giants win their sixth straight game.

Tam-San Rafael

In short Tamalpais-San Rafael game, Tam's ace pitcher Fred Mack spaced three singles—one in each—the first, second and fourth innings to pitch shut out ball before the game was halted in the top of the sixth because of rain.

While Mack was hanging the zeros on the scoreboard for San Rafael, Tam was scoring one run in the first inning and three more in the fifth.

In the leadoff inning, John Hammond doubled and scored two outs later via an error. Then in the fifth inning, Tam scored three runs on three singles, a walk and two batters hit by pitched balls.

Robin Prosch and Frank Dittle singled for Tam, but Ev White, who was sent in to run for Prosch, was thrown out on a run down. Then a walk to Rick Miller and hit by pitch to Hammond loaded the bases.

Then San Rafael hurler Jim Schmidt followed with another hit batter, this time Chris Schuepback, to allow a run to cross the plate. Catcher Steve Long followed with a single which knocked in two runs to put the game away.

Collecting the three singles for San Rafael were John Franzman, Tom Massip and Rod Monti.

GRIMM IS GRIM AS WEATHER REPORT IS DIM

It looks like the weatherman is conspiring against the College of Marin baseball team.

For the third straight Saturday the Tars' scheduled Golden Valley Conference doubleheader was rained out today, thus requiring Coach Ed Grimm to reschedule six games.

Grimm, whose name reflects his attitude toward the weatherman, has rescheduled doubleheaders for next Tuesday against Yuba College and next Thursday with Shasta at the San Rafael High School field starting at noon.

Today's rainout with Santa Rosa will be played sometime later in the season—Grimm hopes.

Marin is 0-0 in conference competition.

STOCKHOLDERS TO VOTE

Sale Of Eagles To Brown Syndicate Appears Likely

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Frank McNamee, president of the Philadelphia Eagles, confirmed today that he has called a meeting of the club's stockholders for a vote on whether they want to sell the National Football League club to Paul Brown, former general manager and coach of the Cleveland Browns.

McNamee said Brown has asked if the Eagles are for sale, although he did not submit a specific bid. Brown will make an offer, said McNamee, if the club is for sale.

McNamee's statement confirmed an Associated Press report last night that a syndicate headed by Brown probably would buy the Eagles for Eagles' stockholders are willbetween $4.5 and $5 million.

It is understood that if the ing to sell—and it appears they are—the sale probably would be completed within 60 days.

An unimpeachable source close to the Eagles said he was confident a majority of the 60 stockholders would vote to sell.

In Cleveland, Arthur Modell, president of the Browns who fired Brown in January, cleared the way for the deal by saying he would release Brown from a contract obligation.

Modell said Brown signed a contract within the past 10 days which redefined his duties with the club but added that Brown could take another job if he so desired.

Brown, who would take over as general manager and coach of the Eagles, has six years remaining on a 10-year contract as vice president of the Cleveland team at an estimated $70,000 a year. Brown had claimed that Modell breached their contract, which calls for him to be coach-general manager. He says he already was a vice president, the new post assigned him by Modell.

Tam Swim Meet On Dispite Downpour

Despite the heavy rains in Mill Valley, the Tamalpais Relays started today at 9:30 a.m. according to schedule. The preliminary heats started at 9:30 and the finals were to start at 2 p.m. in the Tamalpais High School pool.

Bruins Shade Broncs Again

UCLA continues its march through the CIBA—mainly at the expense of defending champion Santa Clara.

The Bruins made their record 7-0 when they took a 2-1 decision over the Broncs yesterday.

Santa Clara's record is now 0-3, all losses coming at the hands of UCLA.

UCLA centerfielder Dave Ardell led off the game with a homer and then in the second Vern Brock doubled, went to third on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly.

The Broncs loaded the bags in the ninth, but Ardell's nice catch of Reno Dibono's sinking liner ended the contest.

Rains Put Damper On Tennis Championships

If the rains continued through the day, the Bay Counties Tennis Championships was to be postponed with hopes of continuing tomorrow at the Rafael Racquet Club in San Rafael, tennis pro Hal Wagner of the club announced this morning.

Regardless of the weather, tomorrow at 4 p.m. Gussie Moran, gorgeous gal of the tennis world, will show her latest tennis fashions to the public at the racquet club.

MARIN GOLFER, 75, SCORES HIS THIRD ACE

Otto Poehlmann, proprietor of Poehlmann Pharmacy at 1430 Fourth Street, San Rafael, has an eye for holes-in-one.

Poehlmann, a 75-year-old golfer who has been playing the game for 42 years, scored his third ace Wednesday at Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club on the 165-yard seventh hole.

Poehlmann used a five iron. Witnessing the feat were Herman Goldwasser and Dewey Dewees.

Incidentally, to illustrate the talent he has on the golf links, Poehlmann shot a round at Peacock Gap's course which totaled a stroke for every year of his life—75—on March 7.

Anyway you figure it, when you shoot your age in golf it is going to be an outstanding 18-hole round. Poehlmann lives at 50 Park way, San Anselmo.

Balloting Monday A Duty; Don't Be Vote Slacker!

A rare privilege awaits each and everyone of us in San Rafael Monday.

It is election day—our chance to go to the polls and register our individual opinion, in private, on how the affairs of our city shall be conducted for the next four years.

If we do not do this, we are rendering a disservice to our city, state and nation by failing to take advantage of an opportunity which Khrushchev & Associates refuse to grant hundreds of millions of people around the world.

And, we have no one to blame but ourselves if we do not approve of the way our city business is henceforth conducted if we neglect to vote.

In a free America, voting is a duty, and a responsibility which too many people shirk.

The turn out on election day is usually poor. We cannot be proud of the 45 per cent turn out on the last San Rafael municipal election. In contrast, 81 per cent of the citizens of Berkeley went to the polls this week. This is a record which we must strive to surpass.

Each vote counts, and we cannot pass the-buck, or argue that "what good is my one vote." In recent years, many important elections have been decided by a handful of absentee votes. And, there is a classic case in California history, where a congressman was elected by the toss of a coin,—after a primary election between the Republican and Democratic candidates ended in a dead heat.

There are important decisions to be made Monday, decisions in which every man and woman, —every mother and father, should take a stand. We have to elect a mayor, two city councilmen, three members of the city board of education, city clerk, city treasurer-license collector, chief of police.

Maybe the campaign lacks the dramatic impact of a gubernatorial or presidential election. And, so you don't know too much about the merits of the candidates. That would hardly qualify as a reason for not voting. For, we have the week-end in which each of us can learn the facts and become more familiar with the qualifications of each candidate.

Go to the polls Monday, and VOTE.

Don't be a vote slacker.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHT

Solons Adept At Shadow Boxing On 'Conflict Of Interest' Issue

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who polices the policeman?

Nobody. Who investigates Congress, which can investigate the whole area of government? Nobody.

A government department head must get rid of his stock before the Senate lets him take office to prevent conflict of interest. Example: to prevent his profiting from some corporation he may have to do business with.

But a member of Congress, who may deal with a federal agency about some rich constituent with a money interest in the agency's ruling, doesn't have to get rid of anything to reveal his total income.

Five years ago the late Sen. Richard Neuberger said:

"I fear it has a corroding effect on government generally when a member of the President's Cabinet can be ordered to jettison his corporate portfolios by senators who themselves may be dabbling in oil, cotton futures, television, hotel chains or uranium.

"If federal commissioners are to be pilloried for accepting airplane tickets to Palm Beach, how can senators and representatives continue profitable associations with law firms retained by banks, railroads, labor unions, and utility companies?"

THERE WERE others in Congress before Neuberger, and there have been others since, who called for a conflict-of-interest law that applies to all members of Congress as well as to officials of government's executive branch.

Now, again a number of men in the Capitol are concerned about continuing criticism of members of Congress for misuse of public funds in their travel, conflicts of interest, and putting relatives on their payrolls.

Rep. William J. Dorn (D-S.C.) has introduced a bill calling for a strict ethical code in Congress: full accounting of all travel expenses, publication of all income and assets, with criminal penalties attached.

Three times in recent years Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) offered bills to prevent conlict of interest by congressmen and top government officials.

He will do it again with a measure which would require congressmen and all government employes with salaries of $15,000 or more to report their sources of income, gifts of $100 or more, assets and liabilities yearly to the comptroller general.

DORN SAID, "We have investigated every activity of the federal government. Now it is high time the Congress adopt a code of ethics which would warrant the respect not only of the nation but ethics which would warrant the respect not only of the nation but of the free world."

Nobody knows how much income a member of Congress has above his salary. He doesn't have to reveal it.

As Neuberger put it:

"Members of the Senate and House can own a sea vessel, buy any securities they please, negotiate to run their grazing herds on public lands, and be very much interested in carrying on the business of trade and commerce.

HE CALLED this a double standard of morality.

In 1951, a Senate subcommittee recommended that Congress create a commission on ethics in government to investigate the "moral standards of official conduct" of government employes and members of Congress. In addition, it proposed a law similar to the one Case is offering. Nothing happened.

In 1954 Sens. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), and Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), followed up the untouched recommendation of 1951 by proposing an "ethics in government" law requiring members of Congress and all other government officials with $10,000 salary to file sworn public statements on their outside income.

In 1958 Congress proposed a toothless resolution recommending a "code of ethics" for all government employes. Some senators derided it as nothing more than "pious purpose."

President Kennedy, in May 1961, issued an executive order barring top and near-top government officials from outside employment of accepting fees for speeches.

Late last year Congress passed a law tightening conflict-of-interest regulations—as they apply to government employes. It bars permanently former full-time federal employes from representing private interests before federal agencies on matters in which they participated personally and substantially before leaving government service.

But Congress didn't make this in any way apply to members of Congress.

TEEN-AGER SHOWS RARE TALENT

The remarkable feats of a teen-age "Houdini" has his relatives and friends baffled.

There is one trick in particular that makes the 15-year-old Morristown, N. J., lad look something like the greatest escape artist of all time.

His friends strap him in a harness made of leather and steel. Then they wrap him up with 50 feet of heavy chain which is padlocked. It takes the agile young man less than 25 seconds to get out.

Few people, young or old, could match the extraordinary accomplishment of this teen-ager and fewer still would care to.

But this teen-ager is proof indeed of the potential ingenuity of youth.

Those who guide the destinies of today's boys and girls, whether as parents, educators or friends, can promote the interests of God and country by wise encouragement.

Far from squelching the untrained ardor of youth, seek gently and respectfully to chanel it into worthwhile directions.

"Train a boy in the way he should go; even when he is old, he will not swerve from it." (Proverbs 22:6)

Let me broaden the horizons of young people, O God, and deepen their faith by prayer, word and example.

Change In Sentiment Noted In Police Chief Campaign

NEVER CAN tell about politics. But the consensus around town has been that incumbent Police Chief Charles Chiesa would win in a breeze in Monday's election.

However, during the past few days, some city hall observers feel that the outcome may not be as lopsided as you think. They see ousted Police Lt. Nick Giampoli as posing a serious threat in the homestretch, especially because of his open challenge to meet his ex-boss in public debate. Furthermore, former Chief Frank Kelly's supporters are expected to throw their weight behind Giampoli.

But unless some startling new development occurs over the weekend, it looks like Chiesa, Giampoli and Vern Thomas in that order.

CAN'T HELP feeling dubious about those two "perfect" bridge hands reported within a span of three days — the kind that each player holds all 13 cards of one suit. They were both dealt awfully close to April 1 if you ask me, one at Greybull, Wyo., and the other in Kankakee, Ill.

But they were certainly timely as far as Marin is concerned. A big bridge tournament is going on right now at Bermuda Palms in San Rafael, and will continue through tomorrow night.

PROBATION Officer Hugh Appell, who passed away this week at age 42, left as much impact on the community as any quiet and unassuming man that I've ever known. He must have scolded, prodded, and encouraged hundreds of lawbreakers during his long public service. And they loved him for it.

Here's a sample of their high regard for Hugh: A young man who had been recommended for jail by Appell sat in his jail cell and created a "get-well" card, beautifully hand painted. The card, mailed from the jail, reached Appell a few days before his death.

THAT'S NOT a whale or a shark that you see lumbering up and down San Rafael Canal almost any day of the week. It's ex-wrestler Tom Rice keeping in condition with his "50-mile swim," in line with JFK's fitness program.

Notice the trime new white-topped hats that San Rafael meter maids are wearing? Just about like the WAVES. Certainly adds to the Easter atmosphere.

A LOCAL drunk began protesting against a two-day jail term, and Judge Joseph Wilson got set for the usual excuses.

"Your honor," the defendant pleaded. "Could I stay in jail another four days? I won't get my room until Monday."

"All right," said the stunned judge. "I sentence you to six days."

"Thank you, sir," he snapped, as he happily trotted down to the jail cell.

LIGHTER SIDE

Scribe To Check On 'Work' Of Junketing Lawmakers

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—From time to time, I have commented with admiration on the willingness of members of Congress to endure the hardships of overseas travel.

If one keeps one's ear to the ground, one can hear whispers, and sometimes shouts, that congressional trips are mainly junkets arranged to give a lawmaker a free vacation.

I myself, have never shared that suspicion. It is difficult for me to believe that a congressman would deliberately expose himself to the rigors of journeys to foreign lands, unless motivated by a high sense of duty.

My feelings on this matter are so strong that I have volunteered to expose my own frail body to such an ordeal, so than I can see for myself what our lawgivers go through.

I will shortly be flying down to Venezuela to attend the opening of a new resort hotel, the Macuto-Sheraton, that has been erected near Caracas.

THE FACT that I am going as a freeloader has given some of my colleagues the impression that it is a pleasure trip. Not so. There are genuine hardships involved.

The main hardship came when I broke the news to my wife, a rather harassed young woman who was just emerging from a long winter of staunching runny noses and operating a diaper laundry.

"Worst luck", I told her. "I've got to dash down to Venezuela for a few days to study conditions that traveling congressmen might encounter abroad. I really dread it."

"You poor thing," she said, turning on the vacuum cleaner. "I don't see how you can tear yourself away from all of this."

It couldn't come at a worse time," I said. "They just delivered that fertilizer for the lawn and all of the shrubs need pruning. I certainly regret that I won't be here to help you do it."

"I CAN tell that you're all torn up about it," she said. "My heart bleeds for you."

"Believe me, I'm not going because I want to. But as a good citizen I don't feel that we should ask our congressmen to do anything that we aren't willing to do ourselves."

"You always were the noble type," she said.

"According to the program, there won't be much to do except loll around the beach, play golf and go to parties. I'll hate every minute of it, but I'll be proving something to myself."

"Men like you are what made this country great," she said. "If you keep on making these sacrifices you'll be canonized as a martyr."

Like I always say, it's wonderful to have an understanding wife. But some of them understand too well.

LOUD AND STRONG

The $23-Million Voice

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Voice of America is speaking much louder and much stronger these days.

Its new radio station at Greenville, N. C., is the most powerful ever built.

Its total output, 4,800,000 watts, equals the combined power of the 96 strongest U.S. stations.

It has 22 transmitters and 93 antennas.

It cost us taxpayers 23 million dollars.

It plays a leading role in the attempt to tell this country's story all around the world.

Each day the Voice speaks in 36 languages—on special events it broadcasts in 64 tongues—and 24 of these are heard daily from the powerful Greenville station.

Just a list of the languages pouring forth from Greenville is impressive: Spanish, Portuguese, French (to Africa), Russia (to Cuba), Russian (to the USSR), Hungarian, Czech, Slovak, Swahili, English, Slovene, Arabic, Hindi, Estonian, Georgian, Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish, Turkish, Ukranian, Urdu, Albanian, Armenian, Bulgarian and Rumanian.

All told, the Voice has 87 transmitters, 32 of them in the United States, the rest at strategic points throughout the world. The VOA's Greenville transmitter and subsequent other construction is enabling radio broadcasts to sidestep the interference of the auroral zone over the pole by way of Africa (see map).

In this era of the cold war, no competition is hotter than the attempt to gain man's ears — and minds. Radio Moscow broadcasts 1,205 hours a week and Radio Peking is chattering away 787 hours weekly. The U.S. total, counting all languages, is 740 hours a week.

Nor does the story end here. The Communists, so the Voice of America experts say, use 2,000 transmitters in an attempt to block, or jam, broadcasts to their areas.

To most of us, the Voice of America is only a name, and maybe a controversial name at that.

The difficulties stem from the fact that on one has any sure answers to this simple question:

If you wanted to tell the American story effectively, how would you go about it?

Each of us has a different answer, and what's one man's wisdom is another man's foolishness.

Despite these difficulties, the Voice keeps on talking.

Edward R. Murrow, who as U.S. Information Director is boss of Voice of America, explains the objectives this way:

"The basic premise of the Voice of America is truth. We report the good as well as the bad."

A Weekly Page of Background Information

Another Rockefeller In Political Life?

By JAMES CAMPBELL

MORRILTON, Ark. (UPI) — Winthrop Rockefeller's home rambles around the brow of a bluff nearly 900 feet above the Arkansas river valley. Its picture windows sweeping a new battleground of Arkansas party politics.

Here the "squire of Petit Jean Mountain" presides over a vast and widely-varied set of interests. They range from raising purebred Santa Gertrudis cattle to promoting industrial development and, to the chagrin of the Democrats in his back yard, making a two-party state of Arkansas.

Rockefeller came here from New York nearly 10 years ago during divorce proceedings from his first wife "Bobo", the daughter of a Lithuanian coal miner. He is just as Republican as his brother Nelson, the governor of New York and a leading candidate for the next GOP presidential nomination.

Bus Winthrop Rockefeller's political persuasion was largely ignored as long as he confined it to the lofty reaches of Petit Jean and his office in Little Rock's tower building.

It was when he went down into the Communities last year to organize local Republican units that the fur started to fly. It flew furiously during the recent legislative session, when a move was mounted to oust him as chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission (AIDC).

Bombastic Rep. Paul Van Dalsam of Perry County demanded on the floor of the House, "Who the hell does Rockefeller think he is?"

Members of the legislature who had Republican opposition for the first time last fall because of Rockefeller were ready to send him packing.

But the ouster efforts failed as the legislature, stunned by the vigor of the public reaction, backed away.

"There's no question about it," he said. "It had to help."

It may not have been a clear-cut victory for Rockefeller, but he feels it certainly was no harm to his two-party plans.

Rockefeller, who admits he came very close to taking on Gov. Orval Faubus in the gubernatorial race last year, is not saying whether he might try in 1964.

But I think they (the legislature) have helped me if I should decide to run," he added.

Rockefeller's Winrock Farms, near Morrilton in Conway County, is on a plateau 1,100 feet above sea level.

Rockefeller bought 900 acres on the western side of the plateau in 1953, when it was mostly untended woodland and unproductive soil. Land purchases in 1962 extended Winrock to more than 7,500 acres.

Now a prize herd of about 2,400 Santa Gertrudis grame on lush, green pastures. buildings dot the landscape, providing living and working quarters for the farm's 125 employees as well as housing the animals.

Not only does he run a successful farm, Rockefeller looks like a farmer. Only his diction betrays his New York background.

There is a story that when he first arrived he drove down to Morrilton to look over some tractors. In his work clothes he looked like any of the other farmers in the area, so the story goes. And didn't get much attention until he offered to pay cash for a fleet of tractors.

"I hadn't heard that one," Rockefeller said. "But sometimes visitors here think I'm one of the employees. I usually let them know who I am, though, before they get embarrased."

Around the farm he drapes his big frame in western clothing and wears a broad-brimmed hat.

His new Continental has a silver Santa Gertrudus bull mounted on the hood. He likes to drive it around the farm surveying his stock and talking with the employees on a two-way radio.

Smoke curled from the forest in nearby Petit Jean State Park as he drove a UPI reporter and photographer around the farm.

Rockefeller is proud of his Santa Gertrudis, which combine the hardiness of the Brahman with the meat production of the Shorthorn.

He offers 20 of his top two-year-old bulls at an anual sale, often attended by movie stars and other celebrities, the second Saturday of each May. In 1961, Winrock Bull No. 133 sold for $59,000, still a record price among the breed.

Rockefeller does not want to be considered an outsider or a interloper in state affairs.

In turning down the Republican gubernatorial nomination last summer he said, "I have no personal ambitions. It is my considered judgment that I can do more for the Republican Party in Arkansas by making it clear that I am not seeking something for myself. Above all I am going to strive, with all the energy I possess, to establish the sacredness of the poll. It is tragic that the theme of voting in Arkansas today is a theme of fear."

He still is trying to organize from the "grass roots," and therein lies much of his trouble with the democratic administration.

Governor Faubus, who twice appointed Rockefeller to the AIDC, said in a television appearance March 27 he believed Rockefeller had been an asset to the state.

"That is why I felt him on the AIDC," Faubus said. "But when you go into a community and try to deprive someone of his dearest possession, his political life, you are asking for trouble."

Although the AIDC and politics take up most of his time, Rockefeller has a number of other activities which keep him moving.

He goes to New York so much that, although he hasn't lived there for more than nine years, he still gets his haircuts in a New York barber shop.

He recently was named chairman of the 1963 campaign of the National Mental Health Assn. A program in which his wife is a leader. He and Mrs. Rockefeller also are leaders in the Arkansas Arts Center, and Mrs. Rockefeller promoted an "artmobile" journey around the state to display fine art to school children.

Rockefeller remains chairman of the board of Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., which restored Williamsburg, Va.; a director of Rockefeller Center, Inc. and holds positions on various other boards with members of his family.

If his brother is nominated for the presidency, the Arkansas Rockefeller undoubtedly will spend some time on the campagn trail. He did some campaigning in other states in the 1962 political season.

"I think it's logical to assume," he said, "that if my brother is running for president I will support him."

Rockefeller, now 51, is the fifth son of John D. Rockefeller Jr.

He first gained an intimate knowledge of Arkansas when he and Frank Newell of Little Rock were officers in the 77th Division in World War II.

Rockefeller joined the Army as a private 11 months before Pearl Harbor. He was separated in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel after winning the bronze star with oak leaf cluster and the purple heart for a wound received on Okinawa.

He learned the oil business from "the hole up" in Texas under the tutelage of roughnecks, tool pushers, and drillers. He learned finance on the staff of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York, later worked for Socony-Vacuum and the IBEC Housing Corp.

Rockefeller's friends have said he never really enjoys city life and is happiest at his farm.

There are few farms such as his, with four lakes, a boathouse, swimming pool, magnificent house and stunning vew of the rich Arkansas Valley.

1980 High School Graduate Will Face Big Population

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

By the time a baby born this year graduates from high school as a 17-year-old, the surface area of the state now covered by people will have doubled from what it is today.

This is what one can deduce from a population estimate issued by the State Department of Finance. The department said the state's population would go from the current 17 million to more than 28 million by 1980.

Much of the growth, the department said, will be in already identifiable metropolitan areas. Rural areas will remain relatively rural in comparison to the metropolitan areas, but probably not in comparison to today's population.

It will be the fringe areas those now undergoing growing pains in the transition from rural to metropolitan—that will probably suffer the most. These are invariably in fertile agricultural areas.

The fastest growing county in the state, according to the statistics, will be Ventura, with Orange, Santa Clara and Sacramento also among the leaders.

Metropolitan growth was slated to go from 13,700,000 in 1960 to 24 million in 1980. Non-metropolitan growth was expected to increase from 2 million in 1960 to 4 million in 1980

The department listed these non-metropolitan areas and their expected growth:

Northern coast 188,000 to 242,000; north central coast 215,000 to 434,000; south central coast 378,000 to 762,000; Sacramento valley 274,000 to 511,000; North San Joaquin valley 249,000 to 363,000; South San Joaquin valley 261,000 to 384,000; Ventura 203,000 to 739,000; Imperial valley 73,000 to 103,000; Sierra 302,000 to 532,000.

Metropolitan growth included these areas: San Jose 659,000 to 1,708,000; Sacramento 510,000 to 1,073,000; Stockton 252,000 to 379,000 to 614,000; Santa Barbara 174,000 to 491,000; Bakersfield 295,000 to 457,000; San Francisco-Oakland 2,802,000 to 4,467,000; Los Angeles-Long Beach 6,791,000 to 11,386,000; San Diego 1,049,000 to 1,800,000, and San Bernardino-Riverside 820,000 to 1,691,000.

The department said the estimates were considered conservative. The study noted the predictions were based on a migration of 300,000 people a year into the state, a figure which is below actual migrations of the last eight years.

A Break At Geneva: 'Hot Line'

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

In the language of the beatnik, the Swiss city of Geneva has been "dullsville."

Geneva is the scene of the disarmament talks between East and West and during the past year the little action taken there has been negative, because the Russians refused to budge from their stand.

Then, unexpectedly, the Soviet Union this week accepted a U. S. proposal for a "hot line" communications link between Washington and the Kremlin.

This "line," either a telephone or a teletype, would greatly diminish the accidental outbreak of a catastropic world war by permitting President John F. Kennedy and Premier Nikita Khrushchev to confer almost instantaneously in a critical emergency.

And time is an all-important element.

During the Cuban crisis last October, so much time was consumed in getting a message from Kennedy to Khrushchev that it could have arrived too late had someone decided to push the button.

This delay worried the U. S. government and it pressed for the "hot line" that would bring Kennedy and Khrushchev into contact in a matter of seconds.

But in Geneva the Russians refused to talk about it until yesterday when Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin said his country was ready to set up the fast communications line.

U. S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle called the Soviet announcement "most encouraging." And Tsarapkin said it was the "first practical result" achieved in Geneva in 13 months of fruitless talks on disarmament.

Around The World Around The Week

Washington — At his news conference Kennedy, who has high regard for Dwight D. Eisenhower, fired a blast at his predecessor for attacking his 98.8-billion-dollar spending budget and "enormous waste" in trying to put an American on the moon before Russia does. Kennedy said the nation suffered its worst peacetime deficit, underwent two recessions and lost more gold than ever before during the eight-year Eisenhower administration.

Greenwood, Miss. — Comedian Dick Gregory led Negroes in demonstrations against what he considered racial discrimination against voters. He bitterly criticized the Kennedy administration as well as Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett. The Chicago comedian promised to stay in Greenwood indefinitely but at week's end he said he would leave because he felt nothing more could be accomplished.

Buenos Aires — A revolt against the Argentine government failed. Dissidents sought to take over because of the administration's willingness to permit Peronists to participate in forthcoming elections. But loyal troops put down the rebellion.

Washington — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told Congress that Russia will be unable to equal America's military and economic potentials in a lifetime.

Berlin — Two Soviet jets buzzed a private plane in the allied air corridor to Berlin, and the Russians rejected a Western protest about the incident. The Soviets also attempted to prevent the plane from returning to West Germany through the corridor but later relented.

Seashore's Land Cost: $26 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of land acquisition for the Point Reyes National Seashore in Marin is estimated by Conrad L. Wirth, director of the National Park Service, at 25 to 26 million dollars.

The law authorizing the park last year sets a 14-million-dollar limit on expenditures.

Wirth told a House Appropriations subcommittee at a recent closed-door hearing that if the land had been bought when he first recommended it, the whole 53,000 acres on the Point Reyes Peninsula could have been purchased for five million dollars.

Wirth's testimony, seeking a five million dollars appropriation for immediate use in buying Point Reyes land, was made public yesterday. Another two million dollars is included in the Interior Department budget for the 12 months beginning July 1 for the same purpose.

Wirth said land values have increased in some places 400 to 500 per cent since the park was authorized because of subdivision activity by speculators.

Rep. Edward P. Boland (D-Mass.) suggested "sit back and let the speculators cool their heels for awhile."

"The prices will never go any lower," Wirth responded. "In a year or two it will be just too late to do anything."

The committee approved the five million dollars requested to initiate the land acquisition.

Neil Cummins Anniversary

Neil Cummins School in Corte Madera marked its 10th anniversary today with four of the seven original teachers still on the staff.

In a surprise gesture yesterday two Parent-Teacher Assn. members, Mrs. James McClintock, president, and Mrs. David Zita, presented teachers with a cake with 10 candles for the teachers' luncheon.

Still on the staff are Principal Catherine Burch, who began as a teaching principal; Mrs. Helen Wagner, kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Louise Victor, second grade, and Mrs. Jeannette Fisher, third grade.

The school opened April 6, 1953, with six classrooms. It has grown from an enrollment of about 240 to about 760 and now has 24 teachers.

Blaze Routs Artist, Wife

Fire early today routed artist Jose Moya Del Pino and his wife from the bedroom of their home on Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross.

Mrs. Moya Del Pino was roused by acrid smoke in the second floor bedroom. She woke her husband and ran to the alarm box near her home at 5:27 a.m.

Ross Fire Chief A. T. Henrich said the fire was caused by overloading the electrical outlet in the bedroom. A cord under one of the beds set the carpet burning and then the mattress.

"It was a lucky thing she woke up," Henrich said.

There was minor damage to the floor and considerable smoke damage in the second level of the home, he said.

Better Understanding Among Teachers Urged

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A better understanding between physical education instructors and teachers of academic subjects was urged Thursday by State Supt. of Public Instruction Maxwell Rafferty.

He told the annual banquet meeting of the California Assn. for Health, Physical Education and Recreation that in many high schools physical education instructors were treated with both envy and superiority by other teachers.

Final Week In His Life Indeed Holy

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Jesus Christ lived among men for about 33 years. But his public ministry lasted only two or three years at most. And the climactic events of his brief career were crammed into a single week.

The momentous week occurred more than 19 hundred years ago. But such was its impact on the hearts and minds of men that it is still being commemorated throughout the world as "Holy Week."

The 1963 celebration of holy week begins tomorrow.

The first day of Holy Week is called "Palm Sunday." The name comes from the royal welcome which Jesus received from the people of Jerusalem when he arrived in the city for the first time.

His fame as a teacher and a healer had preceded him from the hinterlands of Galillee, where most of his ministry was conducted. Many people thought he was coming to Jerusalem to lead a revolt against the Roman army of occupation. So they greeted him as a king. In our day we roll out a red carpet for visiting royalty. In the first century A.D., the custom was to pave his pathway with palm branches.

Jesus was not elated by his reception. He knew that the fickle crowds would turn against him when they learned that he was not the kind of deliverer they wanted. He had already warned his disciples that he was going to Jerusalem, not to be honored, but to be executed.

The disciples found that prophecy hard to believe. But they were to witness many strange things before the week was out.

Jesus spent Monday and Tuesday at Jerusalem's hilltop temple, trying to make clear by words and deeds the true nature of the "Kingdom of God" which he had come to proclaim. When he talked to plain people, he illustrated his points with homely little stories called parables. When theologians and lawyers tried to trap him with loaded questions, he quoted their own scriptures and law books to them. Once he got mad at racketeers who had set up carnival-like booths in the temple courtyard to bilk tourists. He seized a whip and drove them out.

By Wednesday, Jesus could see that he was making few converts and many enemies. He left Jerusalem and spent the day with some old friends who lived in a little suburb called Bethany. Meanwhile, leaders of organized religion and respectable men of property met secretly in the city and decided that this Galillean trouble-maker must be gotten out of the way. They made a deal with a disgruntled disciple named Judas Iscariot to serve as finger man for the arrest. Judas sold out his master for 30 pieces of silver.

On Thursday evening Jesus celebrated the Jewish feast of the passover with his disciples in the upstairs room of a private home in Jerusalem. The supper of unleavened bread and wine was spread on a low wooden table. Jesus heard some of his disciples squabbling over which of them was most important. To teach them a lesson in humility, he took a towel and basin of water, and washed the grime from their sandal-shod feet. It was a task usually performed by slaves in the homes of the rich. Jesus told them that in the Kingdom of God, the only great men were those who served others.

The word that Jesus spoke when he distributed the bread and wine gave that last supper a special significance. He said the bread represented his body, the wine his blood. He told his disciples that the body would soon be broken and the blood spilled because he loved them, and because only by suffering on their behalf could he "ransom" them from sin and death.

After being tortured for several hours, Jesus was taken, shortly before noon on Friday, to the top of the hill named Calvary he was stripped of his clothing and made to lie down on a crude wooden cross. His arms were stretched out on the crossbeam and wooden nails were hammered through his hands. Other nails were driven through his feet to attach them to the central post. Then the cross was raised upright and its bottom end was dropped with a rending jolt into a hole in the ground.

He hung there for three hours. Crucifixion is an extremely painful form of execution, and men undergoing it are rarely able to utter any sounds except screams of agony. Jesus managed to speak seven brief sentences. One of them was: "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

When he was dead, his body was placed in a tomb hewn out of a rock. It lay there over Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath. Early Saturday morning a few women mourners went to the tomb to apply embalming ointments to the body.

They returned with news which the frightened and demoralized disciples at first dismissed as "an idle tale." Later, the disciples confirmed it themselves, through first-hand experience, and set forth to proclaim to all the world the good news that is still reberberating in Easter anthems:

"He is risen!"

"He is risen indeed."

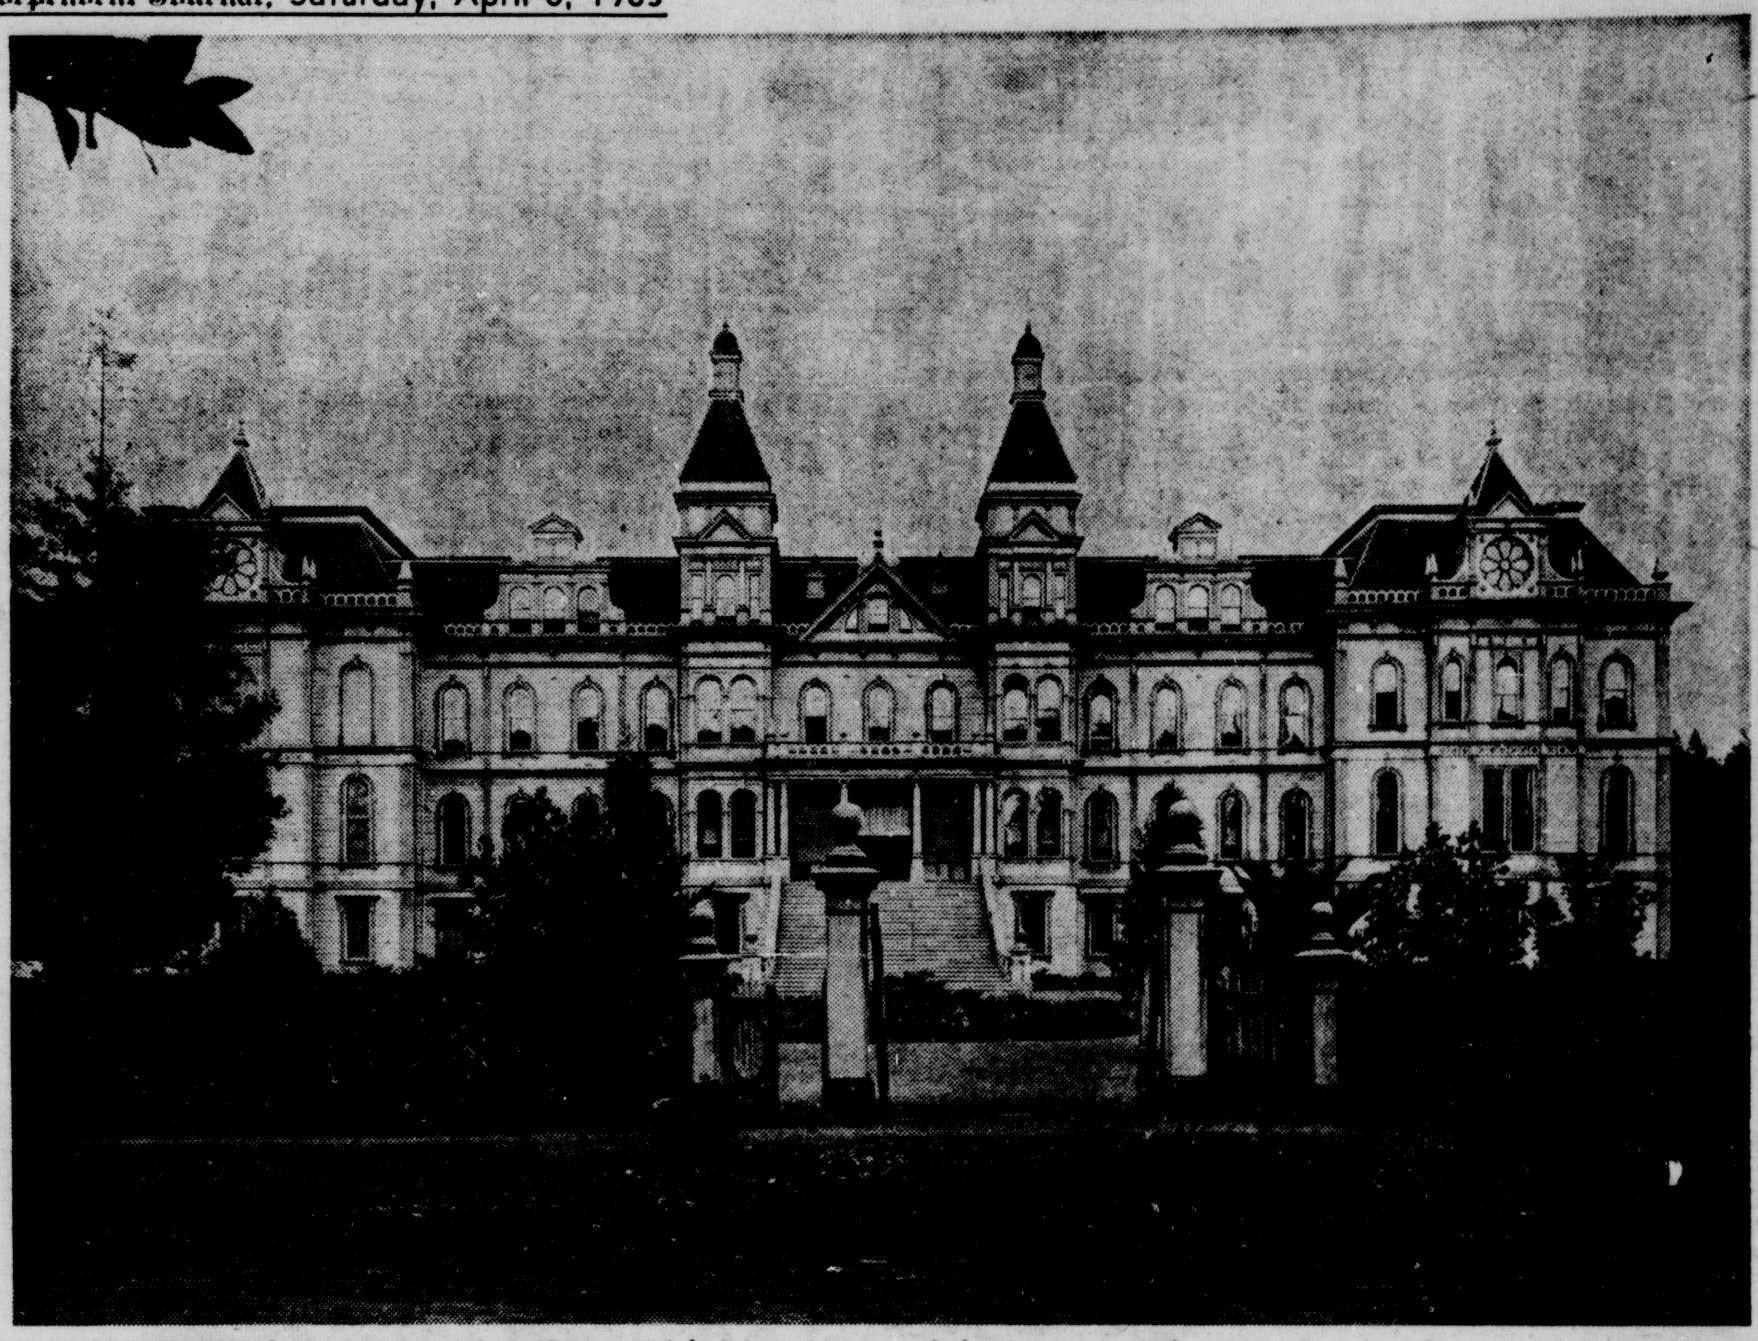
Big Game Hunting Is His Career

See Page M-8



THIS PHOTO OF THE then new Dominican Convent Administration Building in San Rafael was taken in 1890. It was the first and for some time the only building on the campus, and remains a fine example of the architecture of its period. From it has funneled much of the important religious, cultural and educational contributions which the Dominican Sisters and their programs have made to Marin life for 74 years. The photo was taken by McMillan of San Rafael.

When The Sisters Came To Marin

Move From Benecia In 1889 Was Act Of Faith And Vision

With Marin County's population presently nudging the 170,000 figure, statisticians are predicting a rapid growth that will see that figure doubled, over even tripled, in the next few decades.

Such numbers are a far cry from the 13,000 of 1889 when four Dominican Sisters left their motherhouse in Benecia to establish new headquarters in what was then the quiet and sleepy village of San Rafael.

Benecia, once the capital of the state, still seemed in 1889 to be an ideal location in many respects. There the Dominican boarding school, elementary and secondary, enjoyed the enviable reputation that it had earned through service since its founding in 1854.

BUT THE Sisters, with great vision and faith, turned resolutely toward Marin County and San Rafael. Their decision to establish a school in San Rafael had far-reaching effects, both for the Sisters and the city they had selected.

So it was in August of 1889 that Mother Louis, Mother General of California Dominicans, came to San Rafael to establish a school and convent upon land acquired from —half by purchase, half by donation — William T. Coleman.

Mother Louis also moved the novitiate from Benicia to San Rafael.

Today the novitiate house, Santa Sabina, is located near the old Babcock estate which is part of the college. Every Sister who teaches in one of the 24 elementary or seven high schools conducted by the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael, or serves in one of the two hospitals run by the congregation, receives her early training in San Rafael.

IN AN ADDRESS given at the golden jubilee of the Dominican Convent, Rev. Thomas N. O'Kane said: "With the coming of Mother Louis to San Rafael, the Archdiocese received a balm—a healing beyond compare. The Dominican College pioneered our parochial schools; it ministered to the intellectual circles of our locality; it set the standards of our teacher-training."

But in 1889 all these accomplishments lay in the future.

When Mother Louis arrived in San Rafael she had great faith and little money. The hardships were many.

In the beginning there were no bedsteads and the sisters slept on mattresses on the floor. Furniture, such as it was, had been brought from Benecia. Candy, which the Sisters received as gifts, was sold to pay for linoleum and for food. Charitable neighbors often shared their bounty of fresh fruits and vegetables.

It was in this hard way that foundations were laid for the years ahead.

MATERIAL poverty, however, did not deter the Sisters from establishing an intellectual program that was as thorough as it was challenging. Though the students were at first few in number and the graduating classes small, the curriculum, based on the classics, included mathematics, history, natural philosophy, and logic.

A native French woman taught French, and the most competent instructors available taught music to students, thus laying the foundations of the now famous music department.

Then, as now, school life involved more than classes and books.

Sister Mary Thomas, now director of admissions for Dominican College and formerly president, was a student in the early days of Dominican Convent. She recalls times when the convent, the large wooden building which is now the administration building for the Upper School, was the only building on campus.

IT WAS surrounded by a large lawn planted with trees, many of which are still flourishing. A high cypress hedge with large wooden gates at the entrance and exit bordered the lawn. The present Hawthorn Court, beloved by all Dominican graduates, was then a play yard with basketball courts lined on hard-packed dirt. Where St. Thomas Hall (the Upper School residence and classroom building) now stands were swings and playground equipment for the younger children.

Recreations were simple then and the way of life seems astonishing to us now. A round trip to San Francisco by way of the Tiburon railroad and ferry cost 25 cents, a special rate for the convent students. The Hotel Rafael was a widely-known resort in

"DID THE CLEANER STAIN MY WOOL SUIT?"

The brown stain to which you refer was not spilled on the suit by your cleaner. What has been spilled on it was some liquid that contained reducing sugar. Common liquids, containing this substance, are fruit juices, artificially sweetened soft drinks, ginger ale, Tom Collins mix and cocktails. Stains from these sources usually are not visible when sent to the cleaner, but in the heat of drying or pressing, the sugar carmelizes and turns brown. Sometimes the stains will not show until the garment has been cleaned several times or until it has been stored for several months.

This stain is especially noticeable on wools. It is natural to think that it resulted from something your dry cleaner spilled, since the stain was not visible when you sent him your suit. This is not the case. The chances are the heat has set the stain and removal is impossible. That is why you should take any stained garment to your cleaner at once, identify the stain and have it removed before age or heat set it permanently.

HIGH BUTTON SHOES, leg o'mutton sleeves and full black serge skirts were the standard styles in 1897. These Dominican students posed in the doorway of the administration building, facing Hawthorn Court.

STRING INSTRUMENTS were the popular choice with the musically-inclined students of Dominican in 1898. Here a group moved outdoors for a bit of impromptu playing. Music has always been closely associated with the Dominican program.

SEVEN YOUNG LADIES and their instructor, all in spotless white starched caps and aprons, make up the first domestic science class at Dominican. The year was 1911. And in those days the homemaking skills were extremely important to such young women.

DYNAGROOVE the new magnificent sound by RCA Victor. Yes, I have just listened to a few of these new stereo records and I am very much impressed. The sound is truly clear and vibrant.

The Dynagroove research began about three years ago at the RCA Victor studios in New York. They perfected new methods to record the master tapes and to transfer these tapes to the master record, from which all records are pressed. They use a tape speed of 30 inches per second for the tape masters. An electronic brain was developed for use in cutting the grooves in the master record. This brain predicts the many tracking problems that your phonograph needle will encounter while it moves through the record groove. Having detected these problems, the brain directs the cutting stylus on a course on the record master that virtually eliminates all false turns.

RCA claims that the Dynagroove Records will give "True Brilliance at all Volume Levels, Perfected Presence, Greater Clarity, and Remarkable Fidelity."

For the technically minded, The RCA process consists of two major refinements. During the recording process, they modify the frequency response by adding bass at a rate that corresponds with our hearing losses at room listening levels, and doing the same with the upper high frequency range. This of course will give a richer bass from those phonograph systems that do not have loudness compensation. Most of the component type systems have loudness compensation type volume controls, so this RCA modification will not be of significant value for those of you that have quality component systems. It may be advisable for component users to switch out the compensation when playing Dynagroove records and make necessary room adjustments with your bass and treble controls.

The second refinement is truly a great one, especially so for those of you that have high quality component music systems. A counter-distortion, that is, an opposite type of distortion is added during the recording process to the master record. When your needle plays these, in effect distorted grooves, the sound comes out undistorted. It really does. Full orchestral passages come out vividly clear. If you are looking for a remarkable musical treat, visit our Stereo Theater and listen to the new Dynagroove Recordings by RCA.

AT THE TURN OF THE CENTURY, a class in music theory has moved out onto the front lawn of Dominican Convent, where the students are receiving their instruction. The beauty of the Dominican campus is one factor which has remained constant through the decades. So has the interest in music.

Dominican Education Grows With Marin

the style of the old Del Monte and Coronado Hotels.

Sister Thomas recalls that once, as a student, she and some of her companions wanted to watch the exhibition tennis matches played at the Hotel Rafael by stars of the day. Lacking the necessary 25 cents admission, the girls were about to forego the pleasure of watching the matches, when fortunately one of them, walking along the street, found a dollar bill. They walked into the hotel and watched the players.

AT THE SAME time that the convent school was established in 1889, the Sisters helped to found the first parochial school in Marin County —Saint Raphael's. Beginning with a small faculty of three Sisters and a limited number of students, this school has developed into a large school with a faculty of 16, including 12 Dominican Sisters and four lay teachers.

The establishment of Saint Raphael's has been followed in recent years by the staffing of schools in Santa Venetia and Terra Linda.

Little by little the convent school on Grand Avenue grew.

A new campus was developed for the college which conferred its first degrees.

The enrollment increased, and soon students and teachers came from many parts of the United States and from foreign lands to San Rafael.

It is worth noting that the current interest in the Latin American countries was foreshadowed by the Sisters' interest in students from Mexico, Central America and South America. From the earliest days, the girls from Latin countries were welcomed into the school and educated in the principles of American education — principles which were carried back and put into practice by Latin American graduates. In the Upper School today, there are 12 resident students from Mexico and South America.

IN 1901 DOMINICAN Convent Upper School became the first private school to be recognized by the state.

In 1932 the Catholic University of America established its West Coast branch in San Rafael at Dominican College.

And so from every part of the United States and from foreign countries came students, teachers, lecturers, and distinguished visitors to Dominican and to San Rafael. People, who perhaps would not otherwise know about Marin County, associate themselves with this area because of their contacts with Dominican Convent and College. In fact the importance for the cultural development of the county of the Dominican Convent activities cannot be measured.

BOUFFANT HAIRSTYLES, blue denim, and pearl buttons were favored by the members of the first basketball team at Dominican in 1904. It was the typical costume of young lady athletes of the era. Even in its earliest days, incidentally, the Dominican grounds contained an outdoor basketball court.

Of course, the initiators of these developments found a ready and appreciative response within the county. The Sisters, for example, put at the disposal of the Marin Music Chest the grounds of beautiful Forest Meadows. Here since 1930 musical programs of excellent caliber have been made available each summer to the public.

NOW NEARLY 75 years have passed since the arrival of the Dominican Sisters on Grand Avenue. Since then, the one convent which comprised all departments has expanded to include over 12 academic and resident halls.

The newest building is the college library, named after the first archbishop of San Francisco, Archbishop Alemany, who first brought the Dominican Sisters to Monterey, Calif., in 1850.

These buildings and other improvements have come about through the hardworking efforts of every member of the congregation. With no endowments and very little outside help, the facilities of the Upper School, Lower School and college have been developed throughout the years.

Anyone seeing the complex structure of the educational plan at Dominican, a plan which insures fine education from nursery school through upper and lower schools and through college and graduate school, would think that the Dominican campus is complete. But just as many were satisfied with the progress made in Benicia in 1889, there were others who with vision saw the trend of the future and placed their hopes in the growth of Marin County.

TODAY THE Dominican Sisters have inherited that same vision.

Seeing that the needs and opportunities for a sound education in Marin will demand even greater expansion in the future, they, too, have given a token of their trust in the future growth of this area. In 1960, a tract of land was purchased in Sleepy Hollow. There on gently sloping hills, the Dominican Sisters will continue the tradition of education that has been theirs for centuries.

Many factors entered into the decision to move the Dominican Lower and Upper Schools to the new Sleepy Hollow campus.

The great increase of population and the insistent demand for a solid education warrant the establishment of an elementary school in Sleepy Hollow. The need for a preparatory school of the highest caliber makes imperative more space for expansion and for further development.

PERHAPS no educational level is so much in public focus today as that of the college preparatory secondary school. The proposed Dominican Upper School on the Sleepy Hollow campus will embody the best that is now present in the San Rafael school and will include those things which only expansion can provide. And at Sleepy Hollow students of the Upper and Lower Schools will have the opportunity of learning in a setting that lends itself to study. In addition students will have the advantage of a sound curriculum developed according to the most successful of modern methods and amplified with the most effective tools of learning.

The move to Sleepy Hollow, the Sisters are confident, will bring added luster and growth to Dominican education.

Art Is Adventure And A Way Of Life For Elsie Pomeroy

When Her Children Grew Up, She Knew What To Do With Her Time

By DOROTHY COOK

A recent issue of the Independent-Journal carried a cartoon in the popular "The Neighbors" feature series in which a motherly-type was saying:

"Now that the kids are grown, I have time to do lots of interesting things. But I don't know a thing about writing, painting or music."

When Mrs. Carl S. Pomeroy of Mill Valley reached that same stage in life back in the 1920s, she had no such dilemma.

WITH HER children no longer underfoot, she knew that she could devote more time to her painting. That is what she did—and what she is still doing.

Currently Elsie Lower Pomeroy, as she signs her pictures, is in her 14th year of teaching art in the Adult Evening School program at Tamalpais High School. She is a contributing member of the California Water Color Society, the Washington, D.C. Water Color Society, The San Francisco Art Institute, the San Francisco Women Artists and the National League of American Pen Women, to which she was elected in 1961. She now serves the pen women on their board of directors of the Berkeley Branch.

The oft-heard cliche, "Art is a way of life," applies to Mrs. Pomeroy's thinking and work.

"The goal is not making art. It is living a life—and art is the result," says Elsie. "Art is an adventure."

SHE DOESN'T see herself as belonging to any one school or tied to any specific technique. She says, "Next to my own painting, I get my greatest thrill from seeing the work of others recognized."

Elsie, as all her friends know her, has been a participating artist in the communities in which she has lived. After having worked with the Mill Valley Festival committee for a number of years, she was delighted with the excellent 1962 show selected by an outstanding jury.

Her enthusiasm to give art an opportunity to be seen and the artist to achieve can be traced through the many clippings in her scrapbook which was carefully kept by her husband.

Much of Mrs. Pomeroy's real efforts in art began in the 1920s in Riverside where Mr. Pomeroy was a scientist with the Department of Agriculture.

PERHAPS A key to her accomplishments can be found from a clipping of the front page of her scrapbook. It is an editorial written by Arthur Gordon:

"The astonishing fact is that we don't begin to live up to our own potentialities so long as we are trying merely to please ourselves. All of us need someone who wants us to achieve, someone who expects the utmost from us, someone who gives us a reason outside ourselves for succeeding. I think we respond to the outside challenge mainly because it establishes contact—warm, tangible contact—with another human being. And that contact banishes the most paralyzing of all fears: The fear of loneliness."

The stories recorded in the scrapbook tells how this charming and versatile woman was actively working to organize the Riverside artists while painting and exhibiting in Riverside, Laguna, San Francisco and Oakland galleries.

She became a member of the California Water Color Society through the selection of her picture, "Night Blooming Cereus". In 1933 two pictures, one of the Mission Inn in Riverside entitled "Luncheon in the Patio," and "Spring Harmonies," were displayed in the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. This was real excitement to exhibit in her home school and town. With this came the honor of an invitation into the Washington Water Color Club.

WHEN HER CHILDREN grew up, Mrs. Elsie Lower Pomeroy was faced with no problem as to what to do with her time. She devoted it to her painting and to the teaching of art. A Mill Valley resident since 1944, she continues to be a very active participating artist. (Independent-Journal photo)

MRS. POMEROY'S work has been described as done in the modern manner, using a broad stroke effectively in both landscapes and still life groups:

"She interprets the spell of California with pictures of cacti, of the ocean and boats, mountains and the missions with understanding and sympathy."

After studying at the Corcoran Art School in Washington D.C. early in the 1900s, Elsie Lower became an illustrator for the Department of Agriculture. Her illustrations were chosen many times for use in the department's Year Book. This was considered a great honor.

SHE LEFT her work to become Mrs. Carl S. Pomeroy and devote her time to her home and family.

Years later she accepted an appointment with the Department of Forestry as a botanical artist. Along with five artists from all over the United States, she worked on pen illustrations for a plant handbook to be used by forest rangers and cattlemen.

This was an opportunity for new experiences. Her daughter Florence (Mrs. Harry H. Smith of Mill Valley) had just entered her first year at college. Her other daughter Jane (Mrs. George Johnston of Alexandria, Va.) accompanied her to Washington.

While there Mrs. Pomeroy painted "Melting Snows," of which the director of the Washington Art League wrote, "In the judges' opinion your work is commendable for being one of the most meritorious exhibits in the show." The picture is a study of traffic on a wet street. It was awarded first prize in watercolors at the Seventh Annual New Year Show of the Butler Art Institute in Youngstown, Ohio, in 1941.

IN 1938 SHE began teaching art classes for children through Riverside Junior College. The scrapbook again provides quotes from newspaper articles:

The Hustling Reporter says, "Students of Elsie Pomeroy hastily putting finishing touches on scenes of Mission Inn Courtyard at noontime. Parrots Joseph and Napoleon both were subjects."

"There are no direct evidences of teacher guidance and yet the picture as a group show the influence of understanding, enthusiastic and appreciative guidance."

In a letter from Millard Sheets, he expresses the following observation, "It seems to me that you have developed in no uncertain way a great deal of individuality, and best of all, a sense of good taste in the work of all of these children. They are filled with spontaniety and at the same time show the result of excellent observation."

ELSIE BELIEVES children should have good art instruction and an opportunity to see good original art. Through the efforts of the Riverside artists, the children's art class and the Riverside County schools art supervisor, an exhibit of originals was taken to the county schools.

A quote from the art supervisor says, "Only by direct presentation of such originals can standards of judgment be developed in the child. By bringing the exhibit into the classroom, the pupils will be provided a full opportunity for discussions of the relative merits of the individual paintings."

It is no wonder that Mrs. Pomeroy was called the "Art Lady" by the Riverside students.

Another moment of excitement in her life was the recognition received from a group of pictures depicting the citrus industry in Southern California.

"SAVING THE Citrus Crop," an unusual night smudging scene, hung in the juried show at the 17th International Exhibition of Water Colors at the Art Institute of Chicago. The following year, 1939, "Orange Pickers" was accepted for the 18th Chicago show. Another of the series was "Battling the Bugs," a citrus fumigation scene.

These pictures were seen in shows in New York, Washington D.C., Chicago, Youngstown, Los Angeles and other cities. They have been given by Mrs. Pomeroy to the University of California and are now at the Riverside campus, where her granddaughter Caryl Jane Smith is an honor student, majoring in botany.

In 1940 the Federal Works Agency in Washington, D.C., appointed a jury of four artists, John Marin, Charles Burchfield, Eliot O'Hara and Buk Ulreich, to choose 300 watercolors as representative of United States artists. Out of 10,000 submitted, Elsie had two paintings, "Fog Over the Bay" and "Mountain Orchards," accepted by this prominent panel of jurists. These pictures were among the 200 which were hung in the first temporary exhibition to be held in the National Gallery of Art.

Elsie Pomeroy—Artist Who Participates

IT WAS THE first work by living American artists to appear in the new building. Following their appearance in several cities in the United States, these pictures were hung in the U.S. Marine Hospital for lepers in Carville, La.

Elsie speaks with great enthusiasm and fondness for the people with whom she has studied.

Millard Sheets is one of her favorites, and she says she would join the class he is taking to Mexico this summer if she were a little younger. She confirms that his enthusiasm and creative ability as a teacher give the student a new and vital viewpoint.

In 1944 Mr. Pomeroy retired as a pomologist in the Department of Agriculture and the family moved from Riverside, where they had lived since 1913. They made a new home in Mill Valley and found a new way of life.

MR. POMEROY was ill for a number of years before his death in 1957. During these years he worked with meticulous care on his stamp collection. He continued to keep his wife's scrapbook and find proper titles for her paintings.

Throughout his illness, Elsie's basic convictions regarding creativity were so firmly fixed that the many adverse conditions surrounding her did not stop her development.

Living in a new community presented a challenge to her to become a contributing member of its art circles. In 1949 she was elected to the San Francisco Art Assn. and became a popular participant in the Rental Gallery of the San Francisco Art Museum.

Much more could be told of Elsie's contributions to art life in Marin County and the Bay Area. She has always had pictures hanging somewhere—a large show in San Francisco's Union Square, the Marin Society of Artists, a Mill Valley festival, in shops, clubs, banks. She served as a director for the Marin Society, the San Francisco Women Artists, and in advisory capacity for the Mill Valley Festivals.

THE FRIDAY Night Group, which met for years in Mill Valley, was a source of stimulation for her. Criticism in this group was reserved for the monthly "critique" when each member brought a painting of an assigned theme to be criticized by someone whose opinions were respected by all members.

Elsie's advice is "Don't be dominated by the technique. What the painter has to say of his subject brings its own technique."

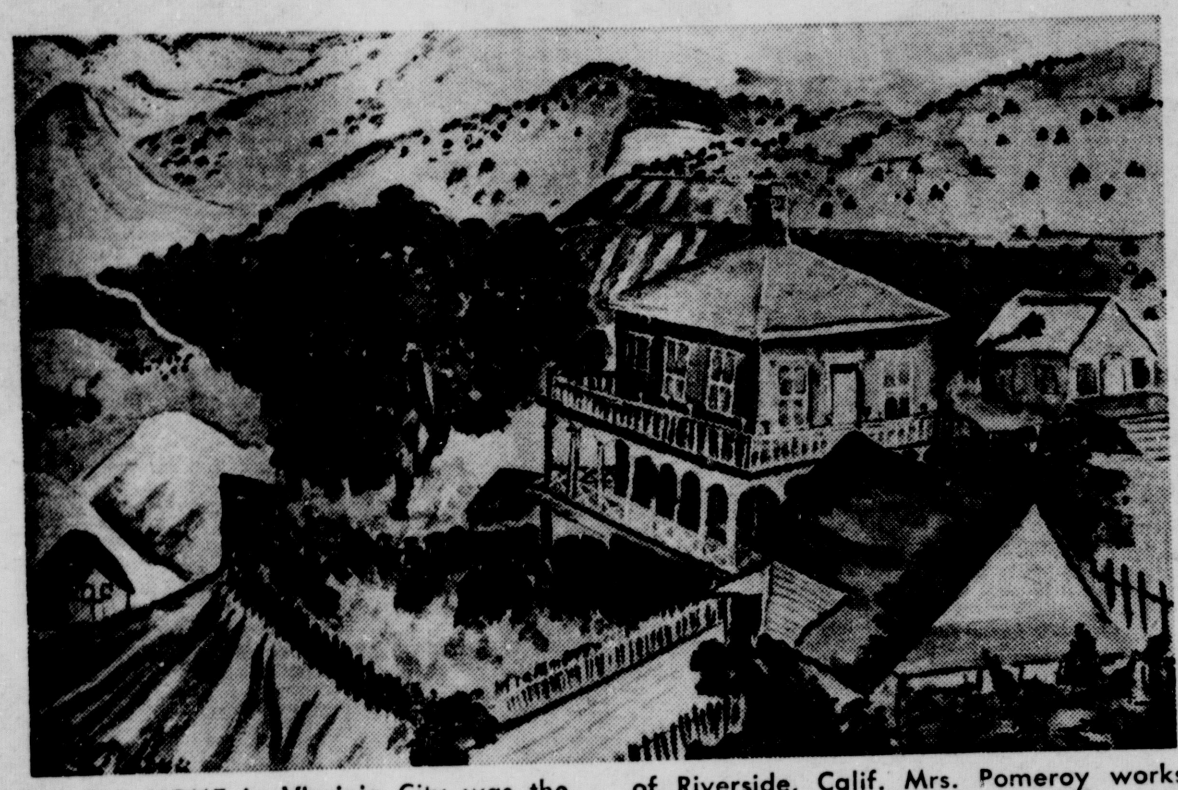
Consequently mediums other than watercolor, such as oils and egg tempera, have been attracting her interest. She is an experimenter and has developed from exact likeness in her illustrations to representational, to abstract and non-objective art.

ELSIE POMEROY now has paintings in the Marin Society of Artists Rental Gallery, the Art Bank of the Art Institute in San Francisco and in a traveling show called "Vistas" from the Art Bank. She has a show in the Crocker-Anglo Bank in Tiburon and the Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital in San Rafael.

At the request of Dick Ford, one of her staunch admirers, a review of Mrs. Pomeroy's work is being presented in three exhibits this spring at the Dick Ford Dance Center in Mill Valley. The first show is now hanging and represents her work in the 1930s.

A second, late in April, will represent the 1940s, and the third, in May, will present current work.

The center is open on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. On Sundays the public is invited from 3 to 5 p.m.



AN OLD HOME in Virginia City was the subject of this painting by Elsie Lower Pomeroy, done while she was a resident of Riverside, Calif. Mrs. Pomeroy works with a broad stroke that is effective in both landscapes and still life groups.

"A MELTING SNOW by Elsie Lower Pomeroy won the first award of merit from the Washington D.C. Art League in 1935, and also top watercolor honors from the Butler Art Institute at Youngstown, Ohio, in 1942.

"CALICO HILLS" is representative of Elsie Lower Pomeroy's work with Califorina landscapes, a favorite subject. The painting won an honorable mention from the Riverside Fine Art Guild in 1941.

We had nearly completed a listing on Al's house. "How much are you asking for your house?" I asked.

"Let's start the price plenty high." Al answered. "We can always come down if it doesn't sell."

"Al, I've heard that remark a thousand times in this business. But I want you to know that it often doesn't work out that way."

William A. Lewis

"What do you mean?" Al inquired.

"Owners usually assume that a buyer will inspect the property and make an offer even though the asking price is out of line. Often the reverse is true. The buyer won't even get out of the car to look at it. Instead, he'll probably say, 'That fellow doesn't want to sell. Drive on.'

"On the other hand, if your price is fair to start with, he'll be interested in sizing it up for his needs. The average buyer will pay a fair price without a lot of useless haggling."

"That sounds reasonable," Al said a fair price right from the first."

White Hunter Lee Apperson Likes His Job

By DON KEOWN

The African buffalo is not the most dangerous beast, and that same continent's legendary "white hunter" is not the most efficient hunter.

Nor is hunting a serious threat to our dwindling wild animal species.

SO ASSERTS LEE Apperson, one of Marin's newer residents and a man qualified to speak on the subject of big game hunting. For Apperson is himself what is known as a "white hunter," although it is a term he dislikes.

Apperson is quick to spike a number of generally-accepted beliefs about big game hunting which he says are "nothing more than myths."

For example, that oft-repeated one that the African buffalo is the most dangerous of game to hunt.

"As far as I am concerned, the grizzly bear is far and away the most dangerous," Apperson says. "That is, with the single possible exception of a wounded lion in high grass."

AS FOR THE vaunted hunting prowess of the "great white hunter" of Africa:

"The American deer hunter is a better hunter in every way. Especially is he a superior marksman. To my way of thinking, a skilled American deer hunter is the best hunter in the world."

And as for hunters posing a serious peril to big game:

"What the sportsmen kill isn't a pinprick. It is civilization that is the real menace. The destruction of their natural habitat is dooming many species which simply cannot adjust to a new environment.

"Our deer can adjust to encroaching civilization quite well and live almost within the city limits. But such African animals as the rhino, elephant and lion simply cannot make that adjustment. And so as civilization advances, they are losing out."

"Every time more land goes under cultivation," Apperson adds, "there is a cry for reducing the animal herds in order to protect the crops. What the sportsmen kill is only a tiny fraction of the number killed for control purposes."

Still another widely accepted myth, Apperson says, is that big game hunting is an extremely dangerous sport. "If it is done right, it isn't as dangerous as crossing the street," he says flatly. "But the feeling and excitement of danger is there."

WHY DO people hunt?

" That," Apperson says, "is a question I have been asked many times.

"I answer it this way: In most people there is a hidden desire that goes back to mankind's nature in early times. There is a longing for adventure, and for that 'moment of truth' when you sight your weapon and prepare to pull the trigger to bring down your game. It's a challenge, an adventure, a resolution of personal conflict and a test of ability."

Unlike some professional hunters, Apperson does not regard conservationists as his foes.

"Any professional hunter who is thoughtful knows that reasonable laws to protect the game are the only answer," he says. "For that reason, I never disobey a game law. And when I head up a hunting party, I also see to it that my clients live up to every letter of the law."

A BIG FACTOR in deciding the fate of many big game species will be whether or not the new nations adopt and enforce hunting and conservation regulations, Apperson says.

"These countries have thousands and thousands of natives who have never had enough meat, simply because the colonial governments have refused to permit them to have good weapons," he explains. "Now they are suddenly released from those colonial restraints and are free to acquire good rifles. If they are allowed to kill indiscriminately, the slaughter could be terrible."

Apperson sees early signs, however, that the new nations intend to enforce regulations which in some respects are even more stringent than those applied by the colonial powers.

Of the new countries generally, he comments: "They have a long way to go. But they will make it."

APPERSON, married and the father of two girls, recently became a Marinite when he purchased the Armstrong Travel Service agency in

He recently became a Marinite with the purchase of the Armstrong Travel Service in Sausalito.

Stop, Look and Listen!

Clean clothing lasts longer! All garments in your wardrobe, worn or unworn, should be cleaned twice a year at least, to remove accumulated dust, body acids, cleaning detergent residue, moth larvae, etc. . . . and to flex the fibers. The latter is important, for many fabrics become stiff and unyielding from disuse. Give this a thought.

Tests made by the National Institute of Dry Cleaning reveal that abrasive soil shortens clothing life. "Fiber friction" is appreciably reduced when this abrasive soil is periodically removed. As a result, garments last longer and look better when worn. This is understandable, isn't it?

Cleaning costs are high, agreed. But you can save up to 50% of usual cleaning costs utilizing our expert services for your wardrobe care and maintenance. Combining low-cost custom finishing with self-service dry cleaning will reduce wear and tear on your purse. And that's something to think about, isn't it?

JAGUARS are just one of the big cats which "white hunter" Lee Apperson and his clients have bagged in the jungles and wilds of several continents. These beautiful pelts are the result of kills made in Yucatan, one of the favorite big game hunting grounds for Apperson and his parties of sportsmen.

Sausalito. It all ties in with his profession of hunter and guide, since the agency will specialize in organizing safaris to the lands of the big game "although, of course, we will also continue to offer all the usual travel agency services."

Apperson was educated for a career in industrial engineering. Then came World War II and he found himself a lead pilot for the Eighth Air Force in Europe.

When he returned from one particularly hazardous assault on Berlin "during which they really clobbered us . . . there were 366 holes in our plane," he made up his mind as to the future.

"I decided that if I came out of the war safely, I would spend the rest of my days doing the things I liked best. And what I liked best was hunting and fishing along with flying."

So since the war Apperson has pursued a career as an organizer and guide for fishing and hunting parties along with some aeronautics and airport administrative positions and some flying. (A newspaper clipping credits him with being the first man to successfully seed clouds from a plane and cause rain.)

APPERSON has explored and hunted big game in Africa, India, South America, Yucatan, throughout North America. He has pioneered in the development of quail shooting preserves in this country. He has shot game in Britain, fished in Norway's fjords and along Argentina's southern tip.

At one time Apperson had 75 guides, hunters, pilots, etc., on his payroll for his hunting safaris.

He still flies the twin-engine plane which simplifies the transportation problem for his hunting parties.

He says it was the realization that he could simplify his operations by acting as his own "middle man" in making arrangements for the hunting trips that caused him to go looking for a travel agency — a search that ended in the purchase of the Armstrong Service.

In early May, Apperson will be heading one of his hunting parties, bound for India and a try for tiger and other big game. There the hunters will be distributed, under the care of expert guides, among the several huge blocks of jungle land which Apperson has rented from the government of India, complete with housing.

"A retired Australian colonel, J. P. Bergin, with one of my hunting parties in India, killed a record tiger that was 10 feet six inches long and five feet in girth," Apperson says.

African hunting has encountered a temporary snag that is being ironed out.

APPERSON'S old hunting grounds on that continent were in French Equatorial Africa too close to the border of the troubled Congo for comfort. So Apperson has abandoned that area. He is in the process of completing arrangements for future expeditions to Somalia with its relatively stable government.

One trend among his clients that Apperson has noted is that more and more of them are carrying cameras instead of guns.

"Ten years ago they went to Africa or India to hunt. Now many go to photograph.

As for himself, Apperson says that he seldom kills an animal anymore.

"I have killed eight or 10 lions, but the thrill of shooting is gone and I no longer feel the desire," he says. "I'm just interested in seeing that my clients have some good hunting. And I back them up with the shotgun."

Of the shotgun, he adds: "It's an awesome weapon. It is amazing, the punch it packs."

WHEN SPEAKING of the outdoor life in general, Apperson waxes eloquently.

"There is one way that you can get away from Sputniks, hydrogen bombs, intercontinental missiles, aching bones, tired ulcers, grouchy people and automobile horns," he says. "There is a way that you can slow down the hardening of arteries and refresh a tired mind.

"That best medicine in the world is to get out your hunt-

THE GRIZZLY BEAR is the most dangerous adversary the big game hunter can take on, according to "white hunter" Lee Apperson. Here he poses with a big bruin which he bagged while hunting in the rugged terrain of British Columbia.

MEN IN THE JUNGLE must have meat to eat. And here the "kill" has been made for that specific purpose. Shown are one of the "white hunters" employed by Apperson and his native trackers. Well aware of the criticism to which big game hunters are subjected, Apperson replies that their kill is minute when compared to the toll taken by encroaching civilization. And he adds that professional hunters and their sportsmen-clients are careful obey hunting and conservation laws.

THIS HUGE ELEPHANT, with tusks weighing 60 pounds, was brought down in French Equatorial Africa where Lee Apperson once led his African hunting safaris. Because of the unrest in the nearby Congo, he is in the process of shifting his African hunting operations to Somalia, which has a relatively stable government and also offers good big game shooting.

The Case For Hunting

ing and fishing equipment and take off.

"If not hunting and fishing, then hiking and camping. Take your camera along. And whenever possible, take your family with you. It does not really matter where you go, as long as you are out in the open.

"I guarantee that you will be a better person when you get back."

"THE GAME, the lakes, the forests, the mountains and streams put you and civilization in their proper perspective," he adds.

As for his own profession, the white hunter says: "It's a good life. You meet the finest people in the world hunting and fishing. And you travel and see a lot of different customs and grand scenery.

"What better way is there to make a living?"

Obviously, Lee Apperson has no regrets that he did not follow through on those early engineering ambitions.

Another Novel Set In Today's Dixie

By DON KEOWN

The South continues to be a favorite setting with American novelists.

Latest to utilize the contemporary South is Wirt Williams in his "A Passage of Hawks." It seems to be a pretty standard work of its kind, no world-beater, yet interesting enough to hold the attention of its readers.

In "A Passage of Hawks" the marriage of the daughter of a wealthy Southern family and a war hero has turned sour. Faced wth the knowledge that his wife is already unfaithful, the man, too, is drawn into an affair. Blackmail and violence follow in that order.

It really isn't a bad novel. But the jacket blurb quotes Ernest Hemingway as having said: "I think Wirt Williams writes as well as anybody writing." On that basis, Williams can do better than this.

IN SURPRISING proximity, Harper & Row has published two new books for fishermen.

You can choose between "Esquire's Book of Fishing" as compiled and edited by Robert Scharff, and the "Complete Book of Fresh Water Fishing" as written by P. Allen Parsons.

Since the former deals with both fresh and salt water fishing, the latter only with fresh water angling, that difference may dictate your choice.

On the other hand, the Esquire book seems better suited for armchair pleasure reading, the Parsons book more informative as a practical book of instruction.

The Esquire book is the lower priced — especially since it is available at a special gift figure of $4.95 until June 17—but the Parsons manual has more content and is the more generously illustrated.

"Esquire's Book of Fishing" consists of material published in Esquire magazine over a period of 30 years. It represents the talents and knowledge of such men as Philip Wylie, Arnold Ginrich, Hart Stilwell, Corey Ford, George Wiswell and Cal Johnson. The usual topics such as selection of equipment are explored. More unusual is the listing of favorite fishing haunts in this country and around the world.

Parsons, author of "Complete Book of Fresh Water Fishing," is a well-known outdoor writer. His book is remarkably comprehensive, covering just about everything the fisherman needs to know to locate and land fresh water game fish of all kinds. The book is enriched by excellent and instructive illustrations by Ray Pioch plus 16 pages of color paintings by G. Don Ray of the classic fly patterns. It reads to us like something of a piscatorial classic.

AN ABSOLUTE "must" for the freelance writer or photographer, full-time or part-time, established professional or aspiring amateur, is the latest edition of "Writer's Market."

The 1963 edition (price, $5.95) is out, bigger than ever, and, as always, an indispensable compilation of the sources of remuneration open to those who write or photograph for a living or for supplementary income.

It lists the publishers, their publications, addresses, their requirements and taboos, rates, policies, etc. In all, 3,500 markets are covered. And there is such added information as a sample TV script, a sample model's release form, copyright information and a discussion of the procedure for selling a book-length manuscript to a publisher.

All this has been arranged and indexed in the handy commonsense formula which Writer's Digest magazine has developed through years of experience with this annual publication.

In short, "Writer's Market" is as essential a tool to the writer as is his typewriter.

THIRTY-THREE years have passed since Sir Arthur Conan Doyle passed away. But his creation, Sherlock Holmes, is as alive today as ever, and seems likely to survive forever.

The latest contribution to the prolonging of the Baker Street legend is "The Sherlock Holmes Companion" by Britishers Michael and Mollie Hardwick. It was published last year in England and is now available in this country.

It contains: (1) A "who's who" of characters appearing in the Holmes stories; (2) a summarization of the plots of the stories—but without Holmes' solutions; (3) biographies of Holmes and Dr. Watson, and (4) an excellent account of Conan Doyle's life and his fathering of fiction's most famous sleuth.

It's a book which will delight all Holmes fans and merit a place of honor on their shelves.

A VILLAGE in rural England whose tranquility is shattered by the brutal and apparently senseless murders of the town prostitutes is the setting for Mark McShane's exciting suspense novel, "Untimely Ripped."

The chief protagonists are a self-styled religious evangelist with strange mental quirks, and a tough, ambitious and unpleasant detective.

The story is expertly told from start to finish as McShane maintains an atmosphere of terror and suspense with great finesse. And his title turns out to have a hidden significance that is revealed in the novel's conclusion which McShane handles with an Alfred Hitchcock-type twist of irony.

DOUBLEDAY has re-issued Suzanne Blanc's "The Green Stone" in its excellent Dolphin series of paperback mysteries.

That's the suspense yarn about a young American girl touring in Mexico who suddenly finds herself endangered by a series of mishaps. The sleuth, Inspector Menendes of the San Luis police, is a delightful characterization.

The book, originally published by Harper & Row, won for Miss Blanc the Edgar Allan Poe Award for the best first mystery novel of 1961—and deservedly so.

THE STEREO SCENE

A Family Of Guitarists In Some Exciting Discs

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, FM & Cultural Guide

THE ROYAL FAMILY OF THE SPANISH GUITAR by Celedonio, Celin, Pepe and Angel Romero—Mercury Stereo SR90295, and FLAMENCO! by guitarist Pepe Romero —Mercury Stereo SR 90297.

I had hoped to review these discs in February, prior to the Bay Area concerts by the talented Romero family late that month, but such was the interest of classical-guitar lovers in the new albums that the local distributor only just received a second shipment including my review copies.

If you missed the concerts you can still enjoy the fabulous Romero Family on these LP's, and from a more-than-front-row seat too.

Papa is Celedonio Romero, and he had his three boys practicing scales as soon as they were old enough to hold up a guitar. Their home was, naturally, Spain—that is until recently, when they pulled up stakes and made a brave new start in the U.S., where they are being received with open arms by the musical world.

Celin, at 24 the oldest son, concentrates on arrangements of Romantic period composers; Pepe, age 18, is such a Flamenco virtuoso that he already has an entire LP of flashing and exciting improvisations (see above); the youngest, Angel (14), finds the Baroque repertory his favorite.

When the whole family gets together on arrangements such as Celedonio's own "Nights in Malaga," the effect is breathtaking in every way.

The first LP features two pieces played by the guitar quartet, with several duets and the rest solos by various members of the family. Works of Spanish composers, in addition to originals by Papa, make up the concert.

Pepe's own LP is devoted to an all-Flamenco concert, played with a verve and spirit indiginous to an 18-year-old prodigy, but tempered with an amazing skill and musicianship.

Our Reviewers Report On What's Newest In Reading

After Munich

IN LOVE AND WAR by Barbara Ker Wilson, World Publishing Co., $3.50, 250 pages. Reviewed by Jean Lyttle.

Author Barbara Ked Wilson has written here an exciting and dramatic story which starts in 1938 with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's optimistic return from the Munich Conference.

The setting is Renchester, a town near London. Six families of varying backgrounds are portrayed. The novel shows how differently these people respond to chaos and grief as war invades and indelibly alters their lives.

Inspiring Story

THE EVERLASTING FLAME by Dorothy Wood, Exposition Press, 182 pages, $3. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

This is the personal story of how a young woman confined to bed, encased in a plaster cast for a spinal fracture for many months, sought salvation in religion. And how, finally, after much time filled with question and patient answer, she sought admission to the Order of Dominican Nuns.

Three years' delay, because she still suffered injuries to her back and leg and because she was 36 years old, followed her request—then it was granted.

The courage and persistence of the author, a Santa Rosa resident, is illustrated in her eventual recovery from the accident to her spine and leg she suffered while taking an Irish hunter over the jumps at a Cow Palace horse show. Miss Wood was before her injury the owner of Idlewild Acres where she bred show and racing horses.

Missionary Story

CHRIST'S WITCHDOCTOR by Homer E. Dowdy, Harper & Row, 241 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Unfortunately, this is only a routine job of reporting the conversion of the chief (and witchdoctor) of a British Guiana tribe of primitive natives.

Somehow the drama of white missionaries, going for the first time into an area where natives killed earlier movements of the whites, does not come off. The subject matter is interesting, however and 35 clear and bright photos relieve the rather drab text.

Timely On Taxes

THE AMERICAN WAY IN TAXATION edited by Lilliam Doris, Prentice-Hall, 288 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Now that the witching hour of midnight oil and Form 1040 is here, this book could be a valuable addenda to the citizen making out his income tax.

In addition to a historical rundown on the internal revenue service from its start in 1862, there are some useful chapters — particularly those detailing what steps to take if you disagree with an agent's findings. It's knowledge that could conceivably save you thousands of dollars.

Enjoyable Excursion

THE CONVERSION OF CHAPLAIN COHAN by Herbert Tarr, Bernard Geis Associates, 341 pages. $4.95. Reviewed by Corena Green.

It has been said that people write best about what they know the most about.

This should certainly put "The Conversion of Chaplain Cohan" high on the "well-written" list, for it is about a Jewish chaplain from New York City assigned to the Strategic Air Command with duty in a southern state and Labrador. It is written by a Jewish chaplain from New York City assigned to the Strategic Air Command with duty in a southern state and Labrador.

An unusual theme, an easy style of writing, some madcap situations and some very sobering sequences combine to make this book an enjoyable literary excursion.

If some of the situations seem improbable, one must remember how close author Herbert Tarr was to the scene.

Rabbi David Cohan, as provincial a New Yorker as ever lived, finds himself a victim of selective service and, despite his abject fear of flying, is assigned as chaplain at an Air Force base in Mississippi.

In rapid succession he tangles with the segregation problem by inviting a Negro Jew to a Seder, by delivering a sermon unpopular with the town's leading business man, and by insulting the wife of the commanding officer (incidentally a well-deserved insult). At once he finds himself enroute to Goose Bay with an air refueling squadron. Through the aid of sleeping pills he survives the flight to Labrador and back to Mississippi three months later.

There are some masterful sequences when Cohan engages in long arguments, situation analysis and self-analysis with his inner voice, sometimes humorous, sometimes saddening. But the charm of the book is the emerging understanding among the chaplains of varied faiths.

Antique Handbook

PRACTICAL GUIDE TO ANTIQUE COLLECTING by Geoffrey Wills, Arco Publishing Co., 168 pages, $2.50, clothbound, 95 cents paperback. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Livewire Arco Publishing Co. continues to add to its already impressive array of instructive books, the latest being its just-published "Practical Guide to Antique Collecting" by internationally-known collector, writer and expert Geoffrey Wills.

Wills has aimed this little illustrated handbook primarily — but not exclusively — at beginners. For their benefit he digs into his vast store of knowledge and passes along a wealth of fundamental information on antiques which he has broken down into four sub-categories: Furniture; pottery and porcelain; glass, silver, plate, enamels and metalwork, and miscellaneous. The last named covers such varied subjects as jade and other stones, lace and tapestry, ivory, clocks, etc.

History, prices, descriptions and other basic data are provided. But Wills admits frankly that complete coverage in a book of this size is impossible. So he suggests further reading for those who might want to explore the field in greater depth.

This well-organized guide might well serve as a good starting point from which the reader will go on to active participation in a pastime that already fascinates many.

ABOVE WITH FRIEND is Raymond E. Barrett, whose new book, "Build-It-Yourself Science Laboratory," has just been published by Doubleday and Co. Illustrated with line drawings, the book tells how to build 200 pieces of lab equipment from inexpensive materials. Barrett is with the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry in Portland. His book sells for $4.50.

The History Of Our Seas For Children

IN PREHISTORIC SEAS by Carroll Lane Fenton and Mildred Adams Fenton, Doubleday and Co., 125 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Just about every child is fascinated by sea shells.

"In Prehistoric Seas" takes advantage of this fascination to relate what the child will find at the seashore or see in the aquarium to the natural history of our oceans.

Authors Carroll Lane Fenton and Mildred Adams Fenton have put a surprising lot of knowledge into easy-to-read form in this profusely illustrated volume, labeled as for readers "up to 12." Although its format would indicate its being aimed at younger children, its contents will likely appeal most to those near the "up to" limit specified on the jacket.

SHOWING TWO OF THE bargains which she "captured" at last year's Marin Society of Artists Auction is Mrs. John Keller of Larkspur. PERSISTENCE PAYS OFF

The Annual Rush For Nuggets Of Art Is On Again Tomorrow

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Not since Gold Rush days has anything come close to the mad treasure hunt that takes place annually at the Marin Society of Artists' Annual Auction.

Just ask auction-going expert, Mrs. John Keller, who wouldn't think of missing this year's onslaught of art prospectors, tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Last year, Mrs. Keller just went to look and come home with a trove of six treasures. The most she paid for anything was $35, a real bargain, considering it was a ceramic by Vera Borzy. But she also claimed a handsome batik for a mere $3.50 plus a collage by Tom Buchanan for a price somewhere in between.

Mrs. Keller is no novice. She has been collecting Bay Area art for the past eight or nine years and to her, the auction is a collector's paradise.

There is every kind of art from painting and sculpture to jewelry, ceramics and crafts . . . from realism to the extremely abstract.

"THE QUALITY of the work is excellent and this is the one and only time you are able to buy work by prominent names at such bargain prices," she says.

The reason this is possible is that all work is donated by members of the Marin Society of Artists for the benefit of MSA's Fine Arts Award Fund and Building Fund, where all auction proceeds will go.

But Mrs. Keller feels the MSA Auction is especially fertile ground for the beginning collector. "It gives young people just starting, a chance to decide what they really like. Most of them can't afford the regular prices, especially if they are afraid they might make a mistake."

As for mistakes, Mrs. Keller feels an auction buyer wouldn't make one anyway.

"There is plenty of time to look and decide. Besides, the only reason to own a painting anyway, is if you like it."

AT AN AUCTION, it seems mostly a matter of being able to capture the prize you're after. Although for Mrs. Keller this will be only her second time out, she can be considered an expert.

Actual auction experience is what counts and Mrs. Keller offers this advice to first-timers, "Be sure to get there for the opening preview at 1:30. This gives you time to look around and decide how many you want. Then you'll know how many stations must be manned and you'll have time to send out for reinforcements."

This is because at the silent bidding which begins at 2 p.m., each work has next to it, a correspondingly numbered slip with the artist's name and $2 minimum starting price. Under this, the prospective buyer signs his name and higher bid. At the 3:30 gong, the last name listed turns in the slip with his name plus his bid payment and the work is his.

Mrs. Keller explains, "As I did, you'll probably want more than one and you'd have to keep running back and forth to write your higher bid. So bring some friends, lots of them, preferably aggressive, to stay with your choices until the final gong."

EVERYTHING not purchased in this silent auction will go to the highest bidder in the ensuing frenzy of the verbal auction. This is where this year's art prospectors will have added incentive to stay to the bitter end. Les Crane, KGO radio and television personality and an art collector in his own right, will be on hand to serve as auctioneer.

It will be Crane's job to see that everything goes to bring this year's auction proceeds above last year's $2,000 mark.

To paraphrase Mrs. Keller, to get art treasures at a bargain, you need only be present and bidding at tomorrow's Marin Society of Artists' Annual Auction . . . present, bidding and persistent. And besides, "It's an awful lot of fun."

SPRING PRAYER

The pure white fruit blossoms,
The simmering scarlet rosebuds,
The moist green lilac leaves.
Sunbeams dancing
Along variegated floral borders.
Thank you, God,
For renewing our life
Again this year;
Spring is here.

SAN RAFAEL — MARY OLIVA MARIANI

ANISE SEED

The anise seed stalk
thrusts autumn-stilled blossoms.
Delicate, still,
the star burst flower stands.
its intricate shadows will keep us this winter.

What In The World Are Internodes?

They're The Key To Some New Plant Developments

No, short internodes aren't small disease organisms or some sort of soil deficiency. They are the key to some very nice things happening lately to flower plants.

The internode is the stem of a plant between sets of leaves, and the length of the internode strongly affects the height of the plant.

UNUSUAL growing conditions can make distinct differences in internode length. For instance, you've seen how "leggy" seedlings can be when they are covered from the light or crowded together in a starting box indoors.

But internode length is also a matter of genetics, and through modern plant breeding, unusual and desirable new varieties are being created which differ sharply from their ancestors.

Here's where short internodes make the difference. Some plants, like strawflowers and sunflowers, are quite tall and limited in garden use because of their height. New varieties with the same size flowers are now available, but through the single change of selecting for short internodes are only half the height of standard strains.

THE MOST interesting development in many years of flower breeding is the success achieved this season in bringing startlingly short internodes into the zinnia class. For the first time in history a truly super-dwarf zinnia has been established. It is called Thumbelina, and in recognition of its unique dwarf character it has been awarded the rare All-America gold medal for achievement in horticulture.

Thumbelina plants grow only six inches tall, yet they produce as many leaves and flowers as plants three times their height. This makes the variety most attractive and useful, since instead of the rather open, tall plant commonly seen in zinnias, this one is extremely compact, globe-shaped, and neat in appearance.

The flowers are the same size as Lilliput or Cupid zinnias, and come in red, orange, yellow, pink and white colors. For edging, window boxes, planters, and low borders Thumbelina is supreme, for it retains all the heat resistance of the class, comes into bloom very quickly, and provides a trouble-free band of color through the whole summer.

A PLEASANT side effect in the case of this densely-placed foliage is the fact that the old flowers are covered as the plant expands, and no housekeeping is necessary to maintain the bright, fresh appearance.

So short internodes are not just a geneticist's toy, but a good way to produce new and improved flowers. You can make good use of such things as Thumbelina in your own garden.

A PRIME EXAMPLE of what can be accomplished by shortening plant internodes is the most-publicized new flower of 1963—the Thumbelina zinnia. This very dwarf and compact plant stands only six inches tall, yet produces abundant foliage and flowers.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Renovate old lawns and seed new ones this month. Be sure you keep newly-sown seed moist at all times.
- Plant marguerites for masses of yellow bloom in summer. They are also available in pink and white forms.
- Set tomato plants out now. Be sure you get a variety recommended by your nurseryman.
- Shop for rhododendrons while they are in bloom.
- Plant fuchsias this month for summer bloom.
- With roses making their first big flush of growth and developing spring's first bloom, be sure to protect this new growth against aphis and other pests with a regular feeding and spraying program.

Give The Teener A Studio

Give a teen-age daughter her own private bedroom, and you'll win a friend.

Kids past 10 crave the privacy and security of having their own snug home within the family home. And, if at all possible, they should have their private niche—and with it, the responsibility of its maintenance.

THE FAVORED decor for a young modern's room is crisply tailored and grown-up. It minimizes the bedroom and emphasizes a studio look which makes the teener feel she's gained a sitting room plus the necessary sleeping space.

The "studio look" relies on eliminating conventional bedroom furniture. The usual twin beds give way to studio couches which can be arranged space-saving in a corner to form a daveno, perhaps also utilizing a single corner lamp table as a nightstand and headboard for the two couches.

Bureaus are out here, and built-ins take over their function to give the room a chic, architecturally composed appearance.

You make best use of space if all clothing storage is built on one wall.

ONE GOOD arrangement-ment is to divide the wall into thirds. The two outer sections become double-door closets, one containing two hanging rods for skirts and blouses, the other a single rod for full-length garments. A shelf in each closet takes the hat boxes and handbags.

The middle third is split crosswise. The lower section will contain drawers, with enclosing cupboard doors to keep them dust free and sleek in appearance. The upper half of the center unit can be shelved for books and bric-a-brac, and this will be left open.

The storage wall is compact, but, in exchange for the 30 inches of depth it takes, it offers much more actual clothing storage than conventional furniture while requiring less floor space.

WALLS IN this teener's bedroom could be handsome, easy-upkeep wood paneling, a real prestige symbol to the young sophisticate. Resawn Douglas fir, with its richly textured surface, would be an excellent choice.

The paneling can be finished with stain to duplicate the wood's luxurious honey-beige hue, or the fir could be painted to introduce color yet retain the texture of the resawn paneling. Built-ins should be finished to match.

A good-sized, well lighted desk will inspire the modern miss to study and complete her studio lair.

NO FIDDLING

Single-Lever Faucet Means Convenience And Economy

Are you a "faucet fiddler?"

Do you have to turn the faucet handle this way and that way in a vain attempt to adjust to a satisfactory volume and temperature?

If this is your problem, the single-lever faucet will solve it.

When introduced some years ago, the single lever faucet was shown only on kitchen sinks. Now lavatories and bathtubs are equipped with this modern device.

The single lever faucet offers the user the unusual convenience of being able to select the desired temperature and volume of water with one hand, and very rapidly. The temperature and the volume of water are always "just right."

Because the single lever faucet makes it possible to adjust so quickly to the exact temperature and volume of water desired, it saves water as well as the fuel required to heat water.

THE PRINCIPLE OF nuclear fission will be demonstrated on Monday night's "Science in Action" show over KRON-TV with the help of this mass array of mouse traps and corks. When one trap fires, its cork sets off two more traps and ad infinitum until all the corks are popping.

It's All Over But The Voting Monday In San Rafael

About 6,000 San Rafael citizens will elect a mayor, two city councilmen, city attorney, and police chief Monday.

These same voters, plus about 1,200 more outside the city, will elect three members of the San Rafael Board of Education.

These are the estimates of City Clerk W. L. Morgan, who has handled many municipal elections and reports the voter turnout runs from 40 to 50 per cent of those registered within the city and only 10 to 12 per cent in the "outside" precincts within San Rafael High School District.

Absentee ballots this time are double the usual number, Morgan having issued 139 as compared with a normal total of 60 to 70. However, the city clerk attributes this largely to the fact that schools will be on Easter vacation next week and many school employees may be taking vacation trips.

Registration, as of the November general election, totaled 12,656 in the city and 9,799 in outside precincts. To handle the turnout, Morgan has set up 42 polling places, four more than were used two years ago. All the additions are within the city limits. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Three of the city offices to be filled offer no contest. Mayor John F. McInnis is unopposed for a third term. City Clerk Morgan himself, in office since 1953, likewise appears alone on the ballot. Third unopposed candidate is City Treasurer Angelina J. Soldavini, who has held the office since 1957.

The city council race has three candidates for the two openings. Both incumbents whose terms expire seek reelection. They are Dr. Charles W. Aby, osteopathic physician, seeking a fourth term, and Fred E. Jensen, retired contractor, out for a third term. Seeking to win one of the places is Lothar Salin, printing firm operator.

There has been little in the way of campaign charges or counter-charges in the council campaign. Salin has accused the present council of "dragging its feet" on important matters. Jensen is campaigning on his record. Aby has made no campaign.

Another council vacancy may be created if David Menary Jr. wins the city attorney post, for which he is contending with John G. Buresh. Menary's council term has two years to run; if defeated for city attorney, he will remain on the council.

Menary, a San Rafael native, is a member of the law firm of Nelson, Boyd, Menary and MacDonald. Buresh, who was born in St. Paul, Minn., is with the firm of Buresh, Smith, Truett and Durham. Both firms have offices in the Albert Building.

Corte Madera Man Dies In Crash On Highway

Smashed Head-On Into Car

A Corte Madera public relations man was killed last night near Novato when his car scraped a bridge railing, rebounded through the center dividing strip and smashed head-on into an oncoming auto.

Dead on arrival at Novato Hospital was Jordan Dean Stanton Jr., 52, of 10 Flying Cloud Course, Corte Madera, a resident of Marin for four years. He was employed by Christian Brothers Wineries.

The driver of the other car, Darrell Dean Cooper, 25, of Santa Rosa, suffered only minor injuries. He was released from Novato Hospital after treatment for cut fingers and abrasions of the right knee.

As an outgrowth of the fatal collision, a Mill Valley girl, Janet Johnson, 19, of 48 Dell Street, suffered a bruised eye and a Santa Rosa youth was booked at the county jail on a series of charges.

Three witnesses who were traveling behind Stanton's southbound compact station wagon told California Highway Patrol officers Richard O'Brien and James Greer that they saw a shower of sparks as Stanton's car scraped the right-hand railing of the Novato Creek bridge on Highway 101.

They said the car veered left across the center divider, hit Cooper's northbound station wagon.

Widow Is Killed In Crash

Mrs. Frederic C. Bost, 56, of 312 Beach Road, Belvedere, widow of a prominent orthopedic surgeon, was killed in a head-on auto crash on a freeway off-ramp in San Francisco yesterday.

Mrs. Bost's car, headed up the ramp at Fell and Laguna streets at 11 a.m., hit a panel truck driven by Frank Mangiola, 21, of San Francisco, who suffered minor injuries. Mrs. Bost was dead on arrival at Central Emergency Hospital.

California Highway Patrolman David Windecker said he could not determine why Mrs. Bost's car was going the wrong way on the ramp.

Lloyd Johnson, 42, of San Francisco, driver of another car which hit the rear of the panel truck, was uninjured.

Mrs. Bost's husband, who died four years ago at the age of 58, was former chief of surgery at Shriners', Children's and San Francisco General hospitals. He was also professor of orthopedic surgery.

She leaves four daughters, Cindy and Bettina Bost and Mrs. James Rey of Belvedere and Mrs. Stanley Swenson of Denver, and a son, Frederic W. Bost II, a medical student at Philadelphia, Pa.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Merchants Are Hit Where It Hurts

By RICHARD LYTTLE

A peppery advertising promotion man warned merchants yesterday that quick and drastic steps are needed if downtown San Rafael is to survive the competition of the Northgate Shopping Center.

Wallace Blake, advertising-promotion director for Seabreeze Construction Co., told merchants they must:

1. Get the state and the city to increase traffic access to downtown.
2. Put up some big signs on the freeway, advertising downtown.
3. Back a corporation to buy all available land and convert it to free parking lots.
4. Get another theater in the downtown area for both movies and legitimate plays.
5. Persuade some good restaurants to move in.
6. Get the city council to establish one-way streets and do away at once with angle parking on Fourth Street.
7. Start next week keeping stores open three nights a week.
8. Stage some promotions with evening circuses and midnight sales.

Blake spoke to 35 members of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce at Villa Rafael yesterday noon. He spoke from his experiences as a shopping center promotion director, newspaper owner, and television executive.

He warned that the downtown area may lose three chain stores — Macy's, J. W. Woolworth Co. and J. C. Penney Co. soon after Northgate opens next year if something is not done to increase free parking downtown.

"You cannot expect a store like Macy's to try to compete with Northgate when there is not adequate parking," Blake said. "Macy's, I'm sure, will look for a more favorable location."

The merchants should hire an expert to run their promotion and be willing to pay him $15,000 to $20,000 a year, Blake said.

He suggested that a downtown corporation, if formed, might buy the courthouse block, tear down the building and put up a two-deck parking lot.

Blake deplored San Rafael's downtown traffic and parking situation.

"You can't get in and you can't get out," he said. He called the traffic congestion of Fourth Street "disgusting."

The Northgate Shopping Center with 50 to 70 retail stores, including the Emporium, will have free parking spaces for 3,600 cars and a possible turnover of 20,000 autos a day, he said.

Northgate merchants will probably spend upward of a million dollars a year on advertising.

The center will have 629,500

83rd Fighter Squadron Is Folding At Hamilton

The 83rd Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base will go out of existence in July, the Air Force announced yesterday.

This will leave only one fighter squadron—the 84th—at the North Marin base.

Six of the 83rd's F-101B "Voodoo" fighter planes will be added to the 437th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Oxnard Air Force Base. The remainder will be transferred to the 84th Squadron, which has Hamilton as home base but some of its aircraft dispersed at other locations.

Abolishment of the 83rd Squadron was announced by the Air Force as part of a realignment of the air defense structure resulting from a detailed study.

The Air Force estimated the change will reduce the strength at Hamilton by about 236 military personnel.

The 83rd was equipped with "Voodoo" fighters in August, 1960. Last year, it won the Hughes Trophy as the outstanding fighter squadron in the Air Force.

Paradise Property Owners Protest Bay Rocket Tests

Fears that Paradise Cove will be less like its name as a result of rocket engine testing in San Francisco Bay were addressed to Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.) today by the Paradise Property Owners Assn.

The association sent to Kuchel, over signature of B. H. Hirsch, its chairman, a protest at plans of Aerojet-General Corp. for static firing tests of underwater rocket engines off Angel Island and Point Richmond.

"Citizens of Marin . . . have been somewhat shaken by the announcement" of Aerojet-General's plans, wrote Hirsch. The plans came to light through an application to the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to moor barges at the two locations and use them as bases for the tests.

Hirsch wrote that only exhaustive efforts by residents of the Tiburon Peninsula thwarted military plans for leveling its hills for a flat ammunition dump during World War II. In 1949, he related, Marin County protests prevented establishing a permanent floating ammunition dump just offshore.

Gentle Drizzle Turns Into A Real Soaker

A storm which started with gentle drizzles yesterday turned into a real soaker during the night, dumping more than three inches at some points in Marin by noon today.

More rain tonight and tomorrow was forecast by the Weather Bureau.

The storm, expected to spread over all of Central California by tonight, brought snow in the Sierra Nevada down to the 5,500-foot level. Chains are required on Highways 40 and 50.

Small craft warnings flew along the coast from Point Reyes northward.

All in all, it was a miserable start for Easter vacation.

Larkspur was among the heaviest hit Marin communities. John J. Niebauer in Chevy Chase, Larkspur, reported 3.24 inches of rain by noon today.

Only higher storm reading was at Muir Woods where 3.65 was reported at 9 a.m.

The California Highway Patrol reported several accidents caused by slick streets.

Other noon storm totals today were Larkspur, Firehouse, 2.51; Inverness, 2.45; Woodacre, 171; San Rafael, 1.33, and Novato, .76.

San Rafael now has a total of 41.42 for the season, well above the 33.25 average for this time.

Other storm totals taken at 8 a.m. today were Kentfield 1.90; Forest Knolls, 1.81; Fairfax, 1.50; Tiburon, 1.35; San Anselmo, 1.33; Marinwood, 1.15, and Tamalpais Valley, 1.00.

"However," Rafferty said yesterday, "there may be others who might want to appeal."

He also pointed out that the legislature is engaged in a study of the matter and may make some changes.

Russia's Lunik Passes By Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets announced today that their Lunik IV passed the moon at a distance of 8,500 kilometers (5,281 miles) on a course that will eventually make it an artificial satellite of the sun.

Tass said the one and one-half ton vehicle, launched Tuesday as a part of the Soviet space race with the United States, passed the moon at 4:26 a.m. Moscow time.

Without specifying exactly what Soviet scientists had hoped Lunik IV would accomplish, the Soviet news agency said experiments and measurements "have been carried out." It said radio contact will be maintained for several more days.

Tass said extensive experimental material has been obtained which will be of great importance for the solution of a number of technical problems connected with the conquest of the moon.

The data were reported being studied at cosmic space research centers.

Tass said the lunar probe, "in the further course of its flight," will circle the earth on an elondated orbit in 1963.

Maximum distance of the station from the earth on its first circuit will be 700,000 kilometers (434,960 miles) and the minimum distance 90,000 kilometers (56,927 miles), it said.

The report added that, as a result of the gravitational pull of the sun and the moon, the orbit will gradually suffer considerable distortion and, as a result, the station will leave the sphere of the earth's gravitational pull and become a satellite of the sun.

Tass said today's communique would be the last announcement on the Lunik IV flight.

The tone of the communique heightened suspicion among foreigners in Moscow that the moon probe had not been fuliy successful.

Observers at Jodrell Bank Radio Observator in Great Britain Friday night reported that the rocket had made a series of complicated maneuvers. Jodrell Bank lost radio contact with the device after recording 44 minutes of beeps. The craft at that time was reported within 10,000 miles of the moon.

Tass never disclosed what Lunik IV was intended to accomplish. There had been hints in the Soviet press that its mission was to photograph the moon's surface or to attempt a soft landing of an instrument package.

Soviet propaganda organs, breaking with their usual practice, have all but relegated the space flight to the back pages.

Gregory: Great To Be Back From Behind Cotton Curtain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negro comedian Dick Gregory said today it was great "to be back from behind the cotton curtain," but vowed he would return to Mississippi "at once" if racial problems explode there again.

Gregory, who arrived by plane today to discuss booking arrangements with his manager, said that for awhile during the past week he never expected to leave Greenwood, Miss., "in one piece."

Referring to a Negro rally in a church during which "many of us" feared the outbreak of violence, Gregory said:

"It's not a pleasant feeling to be inside a church and waiting for it to blow up," he said.

But Gregory, who joined other civil rights leaders in spearheading a Negro voter registration drive, said he would not hesitate to return "if the concessions we were promised are not carried out.

"Not only will I leave a night club engagement if I happen to be involved in one," he said, "but I'll walk right out in the middle of my act."

The entertainer, whose acid quips on racial problems has qualified him as one of the modern comics currently in vogue, left the Mississippi delta town this morning.

"I feel the situation has improved about as much as it could," he said before leaving. "We got all we can get out of them."

Arms, Space Race: 'Sign Of Stupidity'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A sharp note of dissent to the arms and space races was voiced yesterday by Sir Robert Watson-Watt, the Scottish inventor who developed both the radio direction finder and radar.

The 71-year-old scientist termed the race for space, new weapons, deterrents and new strategies signs of "our apparently incurable stupidity."

He said the United States and Russia should turn their scientific know-how to the more pressing problem of expanding population.

Before long, he said, the world's population will be six billion and at least two billion will be undernourished "unless we are wiser and more vigorously humanitarian than we are now."

He called for an end to the arms race and a slow-down in the space race. Sir Robert was here to address a United World Federalists meeting. His topic: "Insanity in High Places."

Phonics Teaching: 'Too Little, Too Late'

Two candidates for the San Rafael Board of Education today declared the phonics taught in San Rafael schools, as outlined in a report printed yesterday in the Independent-Journal, are "too little and too late."

Mrs. Edythe B. Tait and Dr. D. Gwynn Thomson, the candidates who have emphasized curriculum — and especially teaching of reading and English—during their campaign, expressed gratitude that San Rafael schools have adopted some of the recommendations of a citizen curriculum committee minority report last year of which they were signers. But, they said in a joint statement today:

"By phonics in reading we mean applied phonics as a reading readiness procedure which consists of first teaching the sounds of the letters of the alphabet in conjunction with spelling. This results in word recognition and is then fused with the basic word or thought method.

"The teaching manuals of Ginn and Allyn and Bacon, now in use in the San Rafael District, do not subscribe to this method. Their system teaches word recognition first, then only partially introduces phonics by teaching some consonants only in the first year, to be followed by the vowels in the second year. Not until the third year are all the sounds of the alphabet taught. This is too late . . . As a result the student is both a slow reader and a poor speller.

"There are some teachers doing a thorough job in the scientific teaching of phonics, reading and spelling in the first grade in the San Rafael District. However, since there are no requirements that phonics be taught and no uniformity of methods in teaching phonics, the teacher may or may not teach phonics at her own discretion . . . A parent cannot be assured that his child will get a systematic training in phonics such as we advocate."

San Rafael Is Going To Polls On Monday

Both Buresh and Menary have been campaigning actively, but the nearest thing to an issue has developed over whether the same men should be city attorney for two cities (a not-uncommon practice in Marin). Buresh cites 13 years as city attorney of San Anselmo as qualifying him for the San Rafael post. Menary pledges to "remain unencumbered by professional attachment to any other municipality" if he is elected.

Strangest campaign is for police chief, with three candidates: incumbent Charles J. Chiesa, Nick Giampoli, and Vernon D. Thomas Jr.

Four years ago, Chiesa resigned as police lieutenant to campaign against his boss, Chief Frank Kelly. He won.

Last September, Lieutenant Giampoli announced he would run against his boss, Chiesa. On Dec. 12, Chiesa fired Giampoli for taking unauthorized sick leave. The firing has been in dispute ever since, complicated by failure of Giampoli and the city administration to comply with ordinances governing appeals from dismissals. The city council, in a closed session last Thursday, reached a decision as to whether to uphold Chiesa or order Giampoli's reinstatement; but announcement of the decision was withheld until after Monday's voting, to prevent its influencing the election.

Chiesa has served 24 years on the San Rafael force; Giampoli, 16. Both advanced to lieutenant without examination, the practice having been to give examinations only for entering patrolmen.

Giampoli has courted public debate with his opponents. Both Chiesa and Thomas, a heavy equipment operator whose father was a San Rafael police captain, have declined to appear on the platform with Giampoli. Chiesa has been making the same kind of house-to-house campaign that won for him four years ago.

Within the city and outside it within the high school district — which includes San Quentin Village, Santa Venetia, San Rafael Meadows, Los Ranchitos, Terra Linda, Lucas Valley, Marinwood, Hamilton Air Force Base and Ignacio—voters will choose three members of the board of education. Under an odd setup, the city board of education governs both the San Rafael School District (elementary) and the San Rafael High School District. Both reach beyond city limits, the high school district including all the San Rafael elementary district plus Dixie and San Jose Elementary districts.

Eight candidates seek the three board of education positions. Only one, C. Paul Bettini, is an incumbent. All have been campaigning strenuously. All have appeared at candidates' forums, although two—Walter J. Doll and Frank W. Parker—have missed some of the forums to pursue a campaign of coffee hour gatherings in homes.

Candidates for the board of education are:

Bettini, San Rafael-born insurance man who has been on the board eight years and who planned to run for city council if either of the other board members whose terms expire had sought re-election.

Doll, a steamship line executive who lives in Terra Linda and has been six years on the Dixie School District board.

Parker, Standard Oil Co. of California chemical engineer, who lives in Santa Venetia, has been president of the Terra Linda High School Parent-Teacher Assn. and a member of the San Rafael schools' curriculum and school facilities-finance committees.

Carl J. Brown, Sir Francis Drake High School coach and chairman of the San Rafael Recreation Commission.

Mrs. Edythe B. Tait, housewife, former teacher and now a substitute teacher, who was a member of the curriculum committee minority of five (a majority of parents on the committee) which advocated revamping the reading and English curriculum to cut down on non-readers reaching high school.

Dr. D. Gwynn Thomson, Marinwood physician who was a member of the same curriculum committee group.

Paul J. Wata, Santa Venetia resident and a business education teacher at Tamalpais High School.

L. E. Weisenburg Jr., contractor, who was chairman of the finance subcommittee of the school finance and facilities committee.

Gate Bridge Insurance Voted Out

The Golden Gate Bridge District's insurance committee voted yesterday to do away with gift $10,000 life insurance policies for the district's directors.

The directors voted the free policies for themselves several years ago, at the same time they decided the district should buy $2,500 life insurance policies on the workers who walk the hazardous cables.

Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, one of four new directors who rejected the free policies on their appointments (another of the group is Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato), proposed yesterday that the practice be discontinued. Other directors on the insurance committee agreed. The committee voted that if directors want to continue the policies, they should pay the $14.80 monthly premium themselves.

Unaffected are medical insurance policies carried by the district for its directors and employees.

Abolishment of the free life insurance will be acted on by the full bridge board at its meeting next Friday.

In Fair Condition

Stanton's car was lifted into the air, spun around and hurtled down an embankment on the east side of the roadway.

Cooper told officers he saw the car coming toward him but had no time to get out of the way. He crawled out of his car after the impact and went to Stanton's car to try to help the driver.

O'Brien and Greer said Stanton was still held in the front seat by a seat belt. The accident happened at 8:50 p.m. and Stanton was pronounced dead at 9:25 p.m.

Asst. Coroner William Bradley said an autopsy would seek to determine if Stanton might have suffered a heart attack.

Bradley said, however, that Stanton's injuries appeared to be severe enough to be fatal.

Shortly after the first accident, the young driver of a pickup truck from Santa Rosa precipitated another collision, officers said.

Ronald Swoveland, 18, stopped in the southbound lanes to look at the wreckage in the northbound lanes. A car driven by William R. Woods, 21, of 506 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, ran into the truck, injuring Woods' passenger, Miss Johnson.

Officers said Swoveland turned around and drove north but he was overtaken and stopped.

They said the truck had no tail lights and Swoveland had no driver's license with him. He was cited for those alleged violations and also with illegally stopping on the highway, leaving the scene of an accident, possession of intoxicants and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The officers said Swoveland had a 13-year-old girl with him. They said there was a six-pack of beer in the vehicle and a companion was unconscious from drinking. The girl was sent to juvenile hall and Swoveland was in jail today in lieu of $853.50 bail.

Stanton's body was taken to Redwood Funeral Chapel.

A native of Oklahoma, Stanton had lived in California for 40 years. He had been a member of the California Wine Advisory Board for 15 years.

Surviving are his wife Virginia, of Corte Madera, and three sons, Gary, 25, of San Francisco; Jordan Dean Stanton III, 13, and Bruce Stanton, 9, of Corte Madera. He also leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan D. Stanton Sr. of San Francisco, and two brothers, Frank Stanton of Mill Valley and Gordon Stanton of San Francisco.

Injured In Crash

Mrs. Lynne Chesse, 33, of 5 Josephine Avenue, Sausalito, suffered face, head and knee cuts last night when the family's small imported car skidroadway on the south approach ded out of control on the wet to Golden Gate Bridge and hit a guard rail.

HURTS

square feet of floorspace which is nearly equal to the 660,000 square feet of retail floor space existing now throughout Marin.

The center will run its own promotions, Blake said. Downtown merchants will not be included.

"Northgate merchants are not going to be satisfied with putting up decoration (for promotions) that are three to four years old and need repainting," he said. "No wrapping paper signs saying 40 per cent off will be allowed."

Blake warned against judging the effect of Northgate by the Corte Madera Shopping Center. He said the Corte Madera Merchants are poorly organized, the parking poorly laid out and the promotion badly handled. "Corte Madera has been a flop as a center," Blake said.

Blake said it is far too late for downtown merchants and property owners to get help from the city. He pointed out that Northgate is also in the city and downtown merchants cannot expect Northgate to contribute taxes to aid downtown.

If quick efforts are not made to improve the downtown area, it will become a service center with banks and professional offices and only a few stores, Blake said.

Blake's firm is in the home and apartment house construction business. It has no connection with Northgate. "I have no ax to grind," he said. "I'm only speaking as a newcomer to your county."

Among the many questions at the close of the talk, Myron Zwang of Sarrae's, chairman of the chamber's retail merchants committee, asked how Northgate will choose its stores and whether it would consider any San Rafael merchants.

Blake did not know the answer to that one.

Takes First Step In 'Straight' Direction

A convicted robber from Palo Alto, who wants to "go straight," poured out a complete confession yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on his part in a Jan. 3 burglary in San Anselmo.

Lawrence Roy Yamada, 35, brought to court from the state prison at Vacaville, testified in a preliminary hearing against Joseph Franklin Rose, 22, an unemployed beautician from San Francisco.

Rose is accused of burglary of the home of Ray Thompson and Richard Dudley at 6 West Hillside Avenue, San Anselmo.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales called Yamada on the stand as state's witness before Judge Joseph G. Wilson. Yamada gave this account:

Rose asked him to help in burglary of the San Anselmo home. Rose had a key to the house because he had formerly lived there with Dudley, until they had a "falling out."

Yamada said they stole radios, antique clock, record player, television, and money. They then drove to Las Vegas where Rose telephoned his attorney, Mansfield Davis of San Francisco. This led to their arrest.

Judge Wilson continued the preliminary hearing until April 25, when attorney Davis will cross-examine Yamada.

"I've been in and out of trouble all my adult life," Yamada told newsmen outside of court. "Now is as good a time as any to straighten myself out. I am taking the stand as the first step toward complete rehabilitation."

Asst. Police Chief Sam N. Serio of San Anselmo, who investigated the burglary, said all the loot was recovered except the money and the grandfather's clock.

TESTS

Of Aerojet-General's proposal, Hirsch wrote:

"San Francisco Bay is about the last place this type of activity should be conducted. There is probably more 'personal' use of the central and northern arm of the bay by the people living on its shores than any other major inlet. Once such testing has been accomplished there will be no stopping either this company or others from continuing or increasing such activities . . . There is no reason why the tests cannot be conducted in some isolated coastal area."

Baby Stroller Stolen

Theft of a baby stroller, valued at $15, was reported to sheriff's deputies yesterday by Mrs. Delia Butcher of 6 Benton Court, Tiburon.

DEATH ROW INMATES HIT RECORD HIGH

The number of Death Row inmates at San Quentin went up another notch yesterday to a new record high.

George Washington Bostick Jr., 27, arrived from Los Angeles County where he was sentenced Wednesday. He joined 42 other inmates, 33 of whom are in cells on Death Row and the other nine are in the adjacent isolation section.

Prison officials have been using the isolation section because of the overcrowding of the condemned row facilities.

Four Death Row inmates are due to go to the gas chamber, barring successful appeals, on May 3.

By RANDALL GOULD

Counsel for Cecil B. Allen dramatically offered at a California public utilities commission at the Civic Center yesterday that Allen's San Rafael Bus Co. will "meet or beat" any service proposed by Marin Transit Authority over lines where they compete.

He followed this by a specific proposal that Allen institute an hourly schedule between downtown San Rafael and the Civic Center.

Such service, he said, would be up to the standard of the present more limited service and would meet any requirements the commission might lay down.

This came as climax to a lively afternoon. It caused commissioner Peter E. Mitchell first to instruct that Allen himself take the stand to cover the ground outlined by his lawyer, Charles W. Pierce, and then to recess the hearing to 9:30 a.m. April 19 at the state building in San Francisco.

Previous to this the major share of the afternoon had been occupied by presentation of a report by Hilton H. Nichols, associate transportation engineer for the PUC, followed by cross-questioning mainly by the president of Marin Transit Authority, Robert L. Peterson of Ross.

Peterson apologized for acting as his own attorney but Mitchell smilingly told him to "go ahead, you're doing fine."

When Pierce made the offer of improved competitive service, Peterson objected that this was his hearing, not that of a rival. Mitchell rejoined that the rival was appearing in protest and could solve the problem by putting a witness on the stand at the next session.

Nichols's report pointed out that Marin transit's proposed route extensions in some instances ran along lines of present service by both Greyhound—which had withdrawn from a protest position after reaching agreement protecting its service north of San Rafael—and Allen's line.

He said it appeared Greyhound is rendering adequate service between Novato and San Rafael and between Kentfield Corners and San Rafael via San Anselmo, "and that the applicant should be restricted from operating any service between points which are now being served by Greyhound."

Similarly pointing to service between San Rafael and Santa Venetia by Allen's line, though only with two round trips daily, Nichols said that if San Rafael Bus Co. is able and willing to step up this service "it appears that recognition should be given to that company's prior rights by imposing appropriate restrictions on any certificate" given Peterson's newer line. This led to the offer of hourly service.

Nichols said Peterson had thus far avoided coming under PUC regulation by a presumption that he would operate almost entirely on San Rafael city streets, with only 2 per cent outside. But survey by the PUC showed, said Nichols, that the operation actually was running 15 to 20 per cent in unincorporated territory.

On cross-examination, Pierce elicited that Nichols' rides on Allen's line had convinced him it is satisfactory on all points including safety.

Nichols said Marin Transit Authority seemed likely to be faced with fewer riders at higher fares if it extends its lines, which might just add up to greater loss than the present $4,000 a month calculated by commission staff.

In rebuttal Peterson stressed the possibility of more "indoctrination" of Marinites with the desirability of leaving their cars at home in favor of a mass transportation offering them service from such areas as Terra Linda and Marinwood.

He said Greyhound means to dispense with its San Anselmo bus station and suggested this would cut down service or cause another type of bus to be operated. Commissioner Mitchell asked for further information at the next hearing.

Nichols said he hated to be pessimistic but he doubted that Peterson could develop much additional patronage. But he insisted that he wouldn't wish to leave any impression that he was opposed to more bus service.

San Rafael Man Is Nabbed After High-Speed Chase

A 31-year-old San Rafael man was issued six traffic citations by San Rafael police last night after a high speed chase through downtown San Rafael.

Leonard Michael Cohen of 55 Canal Street was cited by Officer Phillip Green for speeding, failure to stop for a stop sign, failure to stop for a flashing red traffic light, failure to heed a red light and siren, reckless driving, and driving at night without lights.

Green said he first saw Cohen driving west on Fourth Street near West End Avenue 40 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone at 9:40 p.m. Green gave chase.

Cohen doubled back on Fourth Street, ran a stop sign at First and E streets, forcing another car off the road, according to Green.

He finally stopped behind 711 D Street.

Doll Mentions Phonics In Campaign Talks

Walter J. Doll one of the candidates in the race for two seats on the San Rafael Board of Education, took exception today to a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal which included him among candidates who have not commented on teaching of phonics in San Rafael schools.

Doll said he has mentioned phonics in two campaign talks and has approved of the way it is taught in the district.

When this sort of hand is actually played, East wins the first trick with the ace of spades and returns the queen of spades at the second trick.

All very normal, isn't it?

VERY WRONG

Also all very wrong. South wins with the king of spades, leads a club to dummy, and returns the queen of diamonds for a finesse.

West takes the king of diamonds but cannot defeat the contract.

He can get one additional spade trick, but South has nine tricks as soon as he regains the lead.

LIGHT DAWNS

The light dawns on East much later. The next day he can discuss the hand at lunch with his cronies:

"My partner led the four of spades and you can see that my correct play was to play the queen. I dare say many people would have been careless enough to play the ace of spades."

East hasn't actually fibbed. He hasn't said that he played the queen himself. And he is right in saying that the queen is the correct play.

SPADES WIN

If South wins with the king of spades, West leads another spade to the ace on being given his diamond trick.

East then leads his low spade, and West has three more spade tricks.

If South refuses the first trick, East continues with the ace of spades and then his low spade.

This sets up West's suit, and the king of diamonds enables him to cash his tricks later on.

On this day in history:

In 1830, Joseph Smith organized the Church of Latter Day Saints, more familiarly known as the Mormon Church, at Fayette, N.Y.

In 1909, Robert Peary became the first civilized man to reach the North Pole.

In 1941, German troops invaded Greece and Yugoslavia in World War II.

No Such Thing As A Friendly Country

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

"One of the greatest economic revolutions that has hit Western Europe in the centuries." The common market was labeled by G. Alvin Carpenter in his talk Wednesday following the annual morning meetings of the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin.

Nearly 80 membegrs were present for the luncheon following the meetings, both held at Sabella's in Mill Valley.

Speaking on "The American Farmer and the Common Market," Carpenter, an economist with the University of California Agricultural Service, said that the Common Market brings many implications for the United States—"whether for John Doe Public or the American farmer."

The maneuvers of the Common Market countries (France, Italy, Luxembourg, Holland, Italy and associate member Greece), he pointed out, are very much like those of any business man protecting his own interests.

"We have to keep that in mind so that we won't be sold down the river," he declared.

After explaining the Common Market backgroud, Carpenter defined it essentially as "a trade union in which imports, labor, goods and services are free to move unencumbered by trade barriers within the member countries."

So great has been its progress, he said, that while the economic growth of the United States over the past five years has been three and one-half per-cent, that of the Common Market countries has been seven per-cent.

As these countries become more competitive, he said, not only is competition in world markets tougher, but imports into this country are affecting local industries and products. Already some steel mills have closed in Pittsburg, he said.

Carpenter stressed effects on argriculture, pointing out that France is "the greatest farming land" and has dictated Common Market agricultural policy. He said 25 per-cent of France is still farming land, 12 per-cent of Germany and 10 per-cent of the United States.

California farmers, he went on, are especially apprehensive because of their many specialty crops.

He explained that Western Europe is of the utmost importance to this country both as a bulwark against communism and as a market for its agricultural products composing one-fourth of the total exports.

"It's the one market where we're getting hard money in dollars," he said.

Carpenter said that sharp American business men are setting up businesses within the Common Market territory to avoid the tariffs and take advantage of lower wage rates.

"We are going into an entirely new era in international trade," he predicted. But in his opinion the United States will not do anything on general agreement on trade and tariff until early next year.

"When we sit around the table in trade agreements," he said, "we must remember perhaps there is no such thing as a friendly nation. There are friendly people, but every country relentlessly pursues its own interests."

Rookies In Spotlight As Major Leagues Open Monday

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—A 45 per cent player turnover, including at least a dozen rookies, is anticipated when the major leagues open the 1963 baseball season next Monday and Tuesday.

About 350,000 persons, including President Kennedy, are expected to attend the 11 openers, two on Monday, the rest the following day.

The President, as is customary, will throw out the first ball at D.C. Stadium, where some 47,000 fans will watch the Washington Senators inaugurate the American League season against the Baltimore Orioles in Monday's only league game.

Don Rudolph, 31-year-old southpaw, figures to get the starting assignment for Mickey Vernon's Senators. He will be opposed by another left-hander, 23-year-old Steve Barber. Rudolph had an 8-10 record for the last-place Senators and Barber was 9-6 for the Orioles last year.

A capacity crowd of around 30,000 is assured for the traditional National League opener in Cincinnati. The Pittsburgh Pirates, with right-hander Earl Francis, 9-8, on the mound, will be the Reds' opposition. Lefty Jim O'Toole, a 16-13 performer in '62, has been given the starting nomination by Reds Manager Fred Hutchinson.

All teams except Baltimore and Washington will play Tuesday. The schedule and starting times EST:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York at Kansas City, 2:30 p.m.

Chicago at Detroit, 1:30 p.m.

Boston at Los Angeles, 11 p.m.

Cleveland at Minnesota, 2:30 p.m.

Only games scheduled.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Los Angeles at Chicago, 2:30 p.m.

San Francisco at Houston, 2:30 p.m.

Milwaukee at Pittsburgh, 1:35 p.m.

St. Louis at New York, 2 p.m.

Cincinnati at Philadelphia, 8:05 p.m.

An unprecedented winter trading spree and an unusual flock of spring injuries, combined with the development of a number of rookies have changed the face of a great many clubs.

Houston, for example, will present an opening-day lineup containing only two players, exclusive of the pitcher, who were in the 1962 inaugural line-up. They are outfielder Al Spangler and third baseman Bob Aspromonte.

Playing at second base for the Colts will be Ernie Fazio, the $75,000 bonus boy who has changed Manager Harry Craft's mind about sending him to the minors. Among the other Colt newcomers are Pete Runnels, American League batting champion acquired from Boston; Howie Goss, center fielder acquired in a recent trade with Pittsburgh, and rookie catcher Jim Campbell.

Other rookies named to grace opening day line-ups include infielders Nate Oliver and Ken McMullen, Dodgers; third baseman Bob Bailey, Pirates; outfielder Tommy Harper, Reds; shortstop Al Moran, Mets; infielders Tony Martinez and Max Alvis and outfielder Vic Davalillo, Indians and third baseman Pete Ward, White Sox.

Veterans who have switched leagues during the past winter include Joe Adcock, Indians; Minnie Minoso, Senators; Roman Mejias and Dick Stuart, Red Sox; Stan Williams, Yankees; Bill Skowron, Dodgers; Don Schwall and Jim Pagliaroni, Pirates; Ty Cline, Braves; Jack Fisher, Giants; Stu Miller, Orioles, and Runnels.

Four new managers will be making their appearance — Johnny Pesky, Red Sox; Bobby Bragan, Braves; Ed Lopat, Athletics, and Birdie Tebbetts, Indians.

Veterans expected to miss the openers because of injuries include Roger Maris, Yankees; Roy Sievers, Phillies; Frank Thomas, Mets and Frank Robinson, Reds. Also currently sidelined with injuries are pitchers Bob Purkey, Reds; Vern Law, Pirates; Billy Hoeft, Giants and Dan Pfister, Athletics.

HORSE	ODDS	JOCKEY	COMMENT
S. F. Giants	5-1	Dark	Unpredictable rider. If he drops whip, horse may lead wire to wire.
Cincinnati	6-1	Hutchison	Superior pitching makes this beaten favorite best chance bet.
Los Angeles	7-1	Alston	Throw out last race. Club has extra supply of kennel ration.
St. Louis	8-1	Keane	Extra jockey (Branch Rickey) May be too much for winning race.
Philadelphia	10-1	Mauch	Over-rated jock. Needs more Mahaffey's for winning effort.
Pittsburgh	12-1	Murtaugh	New broom swept so clean that the once valiant Bucs are out of contention.
Milwaukee	50-1	Bragan	It'll take a tidal wave and tycoon to blow this outfit any higher in standings.

Houston	300-1	Craft	This Colt has a great jockey but can't run fast enough to disturb its fleas.

McCormick Shipped To Minor Leagues

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike McCormick's arm has been a mystery for some time, now the 24-year-old Baltimore pitcher has turned detective in attempt to find himself.

McCormick, who's been a major leaguer since the day he signed a bonus contract with the New York Giants in 1956, was headed today for the Orioles' Rochester farm club in the International League to try and solve some of the mysteries.

Obtained from the Giants in one of the winter's biggest trades, McCormick came to Baltimore along with pitcher Stu Miller and catcher John Orsino in exchange for pitchers Jack Fisher and Billy Hoeft and catcher Jim Coker.

McCormick has been coming along slowly in the Orioles' camp and Manager Billy Hitchcock feels an additional stretch with the minor leaguers under the Florida sun could be just the cure — all McCormick needs.

McCormick has had the goods since he broke in with the Giants. Somewhere along the line, however, they became somewhat perishable. From 1958 to 1960, after the club had moved to San Francisco, McCormick was a regular starter, winning 11, 12 and 15.

In 1960 when he posted his 15-12 mark, he had the league's lowest earned run average, a brilliant 2.70. In 1961, he slipped to 13-16, then last season ran into the first mystery and slid to 5-5 while spending most of his time on the sidelines with a sore arm.

The announcement of McCormick's first tour of duty with the minor leaguers came on a slack day along the exhibition trail as most clubs were on the move. In addition, the San Francisco-Cleveland and Houston-Kansas City games were rained out.

CINCY WINS

In the only games played, Cincinnati edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2 at Lynchburg, Va., and the New York Yankees whipped Philadelphia 4-2 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Reds won it with runs in the eighth and ninth innings. An error by shortstop Al Weis and a pinch-hit double by Harry Bright gave the Reds an unearned eighth inning run that snapped a 1-1 tie before they came up with the clincher in the ninth on Ken Walters' run-scoring single.

Mickey Mantle put the Yankees ahead to stay against Phils ace Art Mahaffey, smashing a two-run double in a three-run third inning uprising that put it out of reach. Mahaffey, trying to work the kinks out of a sore shoulder, worked four innings.

M.V. Merchants Slate Tryouts

Bob Selna, manager of the Mill Valley Merchants baseball team, hopes the third time is the charm.

Selna announced he will try again tomorrow at 1 p.m. to hold tryouts for the team at Project 17 in Mill Valley. The last two Sunday tryouts were slated but were canceled because of rain.

Tryouts will be open to all persons in Marin. Persons interested in playing but who are unable to make the drill tomorrow should get in touch with Selna of Mill Valley, he said.

WRITERS PICK

Dodgers By Shade Yanks By A Mile

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dodgers by a shade and the Yankees by a mile.

Mickey Mantle and Frank Robinson to have great years, along with Don Drysdale and Ralph Terry.

Those were the predictions of the members of the Baseball Writer's Assn. of America who participated in the annual Associated Press pre-season poll.

Of the 70 writers who participated, 27 picked the Los Angeles Dodgers to 18 who named the San Francisco Giants, National League winners last year over the Dodgers in a playoff. The Cincinnati Reds drew 24 first place votes, but were picked third on total points. The only other first place pick went to the St. Louis Cards.

The New York Yankees drew the American League first place votes of 55 writers, to 6 for Detroit, 4 for Baltimore, 3 for Minnesota and 1 each for the Los Angeles Angels and the Chicago White Sox.

A pennant would give the Yankees four straight.

MANTLE FAVORED

The Yankees' Mantle was the choice to repeat as MVP in the American League, with Al Kaline of the Tigers the second pick.

Robinson of the Reds was the MVP selection in the National, followed by Willie Mays of the Giants.

Drysdale was the pick over his Dodger teammate, Sandy Koufax, to win the most games in the National League. Drysdale was 25-9 last year, and Koufax won 14 before he was sidelined with a numbed index finger.

Terry of the Yankees was the selection to repeat as top A.L. winner, with Camilo Pascual of the Twins the second choice. Terry was 23-11 last season and Pascual 20-11.

Giants Bats Red Hot For Opener

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Six San Francisco Giant regulars appear headed toward the start of the National League campaign batting over .300 during the long spring exhibition season.

Heading the list going into the final two spring contests are the big and little guys from Puerto Rico—first baseman Orlando Cepeda at .366 and shortstop Jose Pagan at .356.

After meeting the Cleveland Indians in Sacramento today, the Giants head for Salt Lake City and the spring finale with the Indians before taking off for Houston and Tuesday's league curtain raiser.

General handyman Ernie Bowman, who hit just .195 last season while used as defensive insurance in the infield and for pinch running duties, has hit .409 so far this spring.

Manager Alvin Dark gave the starting pitching assignment today to Juan Marichal who was rained out of his expected work against Cleveland in Stockton on Friday. Billy O'Dell will pitch against the Indians in Salt Lake City, taking the spot originally ready for Billy Pierce.

Jack Sanford, Marichal and O'Dell start in the opening series at Houston with Pierce not slated until the Giants hold their home inaugural at Candlestick Park on April 16 against the Colt .45's.

Middleweight TV Fight Rated Tossup

BOSTON (AP) — The list of characters is slightly altered—it's now Joey Giambra facing Joe DeNucci—and the theme is anything but familiar in tonight's 10-round middleweight fight.

Giambra got into the picture when Joey Archer, who was to have gone against DeNucci in the nationally-televised bout, came up with some cracked ribs.

Instead of being a distinct underdog, DeNucci now finds himself in equal graces with oddsmakers who rate the fight an even affair.

Giambra is a 29-year-old veteran of 74 fights from Buffalo, N.Y. He displays a record of 63 victories, nine losses and two draws with 31 knockouts. He's never been stopped and in his only outing this year, dropped a decision to the now welterweight champion, Luis Rodriguez.

DeNucci, only 23, hails from nearby Newton, Mass., has won 34 of his 42 bouts with two draws.

ABC will televise the bout at the Boston Arena, at 7 p.m. PST.

Tacoma Blasts Jacksonville 10-4

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI)—Tacoma overwhelmed Jacksonville of the International League 10-4 in an exhibition contest yesterday.

Bill Hain, Ricardo Joseph, and sensational Jimmy Ray Hart collected three hits apiece for Tacoma.

The Giants added pitcher Minny Rojas to the roster and sent hurler Paul Doyle and catcher Vic Roznovsky to El Paso.

Butts' Phone Calls 'Strictly Business'

ATLANTA (AP) — A Chicago businessman said his telephone conversations with Wallace Butts, former University of Georgia athletic director, "had nothing whatsoever to do with betting on football or any other type of betting."

Frank Scoby, president of an Illinois beer distributing firm, told the Associated Press in Chicago yesterday that he had talked with Butts by long distance telephone on various occasions, but that all the calls were "strictly business."

Scoby was a government witness in a gambling case in 1959.

Butts, accused in a Saturday Evening Post article of conspiring with coach Paul Bryant of Alabama to rig the Georgia-Alabama football game last fall, was questioned by state investigators about the calls to Scoby.

A transcript revealed that Butts told interrogators he borrowed $6,000 from Scoby for business purposes. But he said there never was any discussion of betting or gambling.

Records of calls from Butts to Scoby were included in unmerous toll tickets examined by Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook in his investigation of the Post charges.

Butts and Bryant have denied rigging the game which Alabama won 35-0, and both have said they never gambled. Butts has a $10 million libel suit pending against the Post.

Cook said in a report of his findings that there was no evidence that Butts or Bryant had gambled. He said earlier, however, that Butts had placed calls to persons who had been involved in gambling.

'Baby Dumpling' Is Masters Favorite

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Pudgy Jack Nicklaus, whose nicknames range from "Bo-Bo" to "Baby Dumpling," was the young man to watch starting today's third round of the Masters Golf Tournament.

Although he and handsome Jay Hebert were one shot behind the midpoint leader, husky Mike Souchak, the 23-year-old Nicklaus held center stage after his dazzling comeback in the second round when a blazing putter carried him to a 6-under-par 66.

Souchak, a former end and place-kicker on the Duke football team, didn't play the first 36 holes like a man who hasn't won a tournament in two years. His halfway chart was 69-70-139.

Nicklaus was 74-66-140 and Hebert 70-70-140.

NEAR RECORD

The 66 Nicklaus threw at the field is the lowest score thus far in the 27th Masters and is only two shots off the record set here by Lloyd Mangrum 23 years ago—the year Nicklaus was born.

Souchak escaped a three-way deadlock when he capped his second straight steady round with an 8-foot birdie putt on 18.

Bo Wininger, tied with Souchak at 69 after the first round, bogied the 18th and wound up with a 72 and 141 total, that put him in a tie for fourth place with late-finishing Ed Furgol, the lame-armed former Open champion who birdied two of the last three holes for a 71.

Par for the picturesque, testing Augusta National course is 36-36-72, stretched 6,850 yards over rolling woodlands and well-laced with water hazards.

BIG NAMES

Neither Gary Player nor Arnold Palmer, who with Nicklaus are the big names of current-day golf, was in a particularly threatening position starting the final two rounds.

Player, who said he never got the one big shot to get him rolling, struggled to a 74 for 145—six strokes off the pace. Palmer, the defending champion, who managed a mild rally on the back nine despite a ragged game, had a 73 for 147.

The strong man from Pennsylvania teed off Thursday hoping to score two Masters "firsts." No one has won successive Masters titles and no one ever has won four Masters crowns.

Sam Snead, a three-time Masters champion, with a 73; former Open titlist Dick Mayer, with a 70; and Tony Lema, one on the hot young men among the touring pros, with a 69, were deadlocked in sixth place at 143.

RAINS POSTPONE SECOND ROUND

Terra Linda, Redwood, Tam Win Prep Tourney Openers

By RALPH CHATOIAN

The Marin Athletic League baseball tournament got off the ground yesterday with two full games and a partial tilt, but plans today were stuck in the mud of Albert Field, San Rafael.

The tourney schedule called for four games yesterday and five today, but more spring rains postponed one of yesterday's games and all of today's slated tilts.

Yesterday Terra Linda blasted San Rafael Military Academy 17-3, Redwood downed Novato 4-1, and Tamalpais shouout San Rafael High 4-0 in five innings before the game was cut short because of rain.

The 8 o'clock game between Marin Catholic and Drake was postponed when rain came down and has been rescheduled for next Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at Albert Field.

The second half of the tournament has been rescheduled for May 25, it was announced today by George Corson, league commissioner.

Terra Linda-SRMA

In the Terra Linda massacre over the military academy, the tale was told in the first inning when the Trojans scored 11 runs as 15 batters came to the plate. T.L. was aided by four cadet errors in that opening stanza.

Terra Linda then scored three in the second, one in the fourth and two in the fifth, while SRMA scored two in the third and one in the fourth. Paul Deutsch went all the way on the mound for the Cadets although he was touched for 14 hits.

Three Terra Linda batters had perfect days at the plate. Paul Meuse had two for two, Bill Lee had three for three and Bill DiGrazia had two for two. Centerfielder Jerry Daniele collected three hits in four trips to the plate and Doug Matlock had two safeties. The other two T.L. hits were by Rich Levaro and Al Ruoff.

Of the 14 hits, only two were for extra bases, doubles by Meuse and Ruoff.

SRMA hits were big ones, three of the total four for extra bases. Paul Harlan and Gerry Smith smashed triples, to lead the SRMA cause. The other two hits for the Cadets were a double and a single.

Winning pitcher for Terra Linda was Doug Matlock who went the entire seven innings.

Redwood-Novato

Catcher Jim Troppmann was the key man in the Redwood win over Novato as he blasted a three-run homer in the second inning to give the Giants more than they needed. Troppmann's clout went deep into left-center for an inside -the-park four-bagger.

In that inning, Steve Minutoli and Terry Jarcik singled, but Minutoli was cut down at the plate after an attempted squeeze play failed. Jarcik and Jack Baglietto, who had bunted, scored ahead of Troppmann.

Redwood's fourth hit of the game came in that second inning when Scott Murphy singled, but he died on the bags.

Redwood's other run came in the fourth inning, but was unearned. After Jarcik walked, he was helped around the bases on a pair of Novato errors.

The Hornets collected a total of three hits off Murphy, all singles. Ron Rowell got the first hit in the opening inning, scoring pitcher Chuck Overmyer with a single. Although Novato never scored again, Rusty Druba hit a single in the third and Joe Wright got a single in the fifth.

Murphy, in collecting the win for Redwood, helped the Giants win their sixth straight game.

Tam-San Rafael

In short Tamalpais-San Rafael game, Tam's ace pitcher Fred Mack spaced three singles—one in each—the first, second and fourth innings to pitch shut out ball before the game was halted in the top of the sixth because of rain.

While Mack was hanging the zeros on the scoreboard for San Rafael, Tam was scoring one run in the first inning and three more in the fifth.

In the leadoff inning, John Hammond doubled and scored two outs later via an error. Then in the fifth inning, Tam scored three runs on three singles, a walk and two batters hit by pitched balls.

Robin Prosch and Frank Dittle singled for Tam, but Ev White, who was sent in to run for Prosch, was thrown out on a run down. Then a walk to Rick Miller and hit by pitch to Hammond loaded the bases.

Then San Rafael hurler Jim Schmidt followed with another hit batter, this time Chris Schuepback, to allow a run to cross the plate. Catcher Steve Long followed with a single which knocked in two runs to put the game away.

Collecting the three singles for San Rafael were John Franzman, Tom Massip and Rod Monti.

GRIMM IS GRIM AS WEATHER REPORT IS DIM

It looks like the weatherman is conspiring against the College of Marin baseball team.

For the third straight Saturday the Tars' scheduled Golden Valley Conference doubleheader was rained out today, thus requiring Coach Ed Grimm to reschedule six games.

Grimm, whose name reflects his attitude toward the weatherman, has rescheduled doubleheaders for next Tuesday against Yuba College and next Thursday with Shasta at the San Rafael High School field starting at noon.

Today's rainout with Santa Rosa will be played sometime later in the season—Grimm hopes.

Marin is 0-0 in conference competition.

Sale Of Eagles To Brown Syndicate Appears Likely

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Frank McNamee, president of the Philadelphia Eagles, confirmed today that he has called a meeting of the club's stockholders for a vote on whether they want to sell the National Football League club to Paul Brown, former general manager and coach of the Cleveland Browns.

McNamee said Brown has asked if the Eagles are for sale, although he did not submit a specific bid. Brown will make an offer, said McNamee, if the club is for sale.

McNamee's statement confirmed an Associated Press report last night that a syndicate headed by Brown probably would buy the Eagles for Eagles' stockholders are willbetween $4.5 and $5 million.

It is understood that if the ing to sell—and it appears they are—the sale probably would be completed within 60 days.

An unimpeachable source close to the Eagles said he was confident a majority of the 60 stockholders would vote to sell.

In Cleveland, Arthur Modell, president of the Browns who fired Brown in January, cleared the way for the deal by saying he would release Brown from a contract obligation.

Modell said Brown signed a contract within the past 10 days which redefined his duties with the club but added that Brown could take another job if he so desired.

Brown, who would take over as general manager and coach of the Eagles, has six years remaining on a 10-year contract as vice president of the Cleveland team at an estimated $70,000 a year. Brown had claimed that Modell breached their contract, which calls for him to be coach-general manager. He says he already was a vice president, the new post assigned him by Modell.

Bruins Shade Broncs Again

UCLA continues its march through the CIBA—mainly at the expense of defending champion Santa Clara.

The Bruins made their record 7-0 when they took a 2-1 decision over the Broncs yesterday.

Santa Clara's record is now 0-3, all losses coming at the hands of UCLA.

UCLA centerfielder Dave Ardell led off the game with a homer and then in the second Vern Brock doubled, went to third on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly.

The Broncs loaded the bags in the ninth, but Ardell's nice catch of Reno Dibono's sinking liner ended the contest.

Tam Swim Meet On Dispite Downpour

Despite the heavy rains in Mill Valley, the Tamalpais Relays started today at 9:30 a.m. according to schedule. The preliminary heats started at 9:30 and the finals were to start at 2 p.m. in the Tamalpais High School pool.

Rains Put Damper On Tennis Championships

If the rains continued through the day, the Bay Counties Tennis Championships was to be postponed with hopes of continuing tomorrow at the Rafael Racquet Club in San Rafael, tennis pro Hal Wagner of the club announced this morning.

Regardless of the weather, tomorrow at 4 p.m. Gussie Moran, gorgeous gal of the tennis world, will show her latest tennis fashions to the public at the racquet club.

MARIN GOLFER, 75, SCORES HIS THIRD ACE

Otto Poehlmann, proprietor of Poehlmann Pharmacy at 1430 Fourth Street, San Rafael, has an eye for holes-in-one.

Poehlmann, a 75-year-old golfer who has been playing the game for 42 years, scored his third ace Wednesday at Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club on the 165-yard seventh hole.

Poehlmann used a five iron. Witnessing the feat were Herman Goldwasser and Dewey Dewees.

Incidentally, to illustrate the talent he has on the golf links, Poehlmann shot a round at Peacock Gap's course which totaled a stroke for every year of his life—75—on March 7.

Anyway you figure it, when you shoot your age in golf it is going to be an outstanding 18-hole round. Poehlmann lives at 50 Park way, San Anselmo.

Balloting Monday A Duty; Don't Be Vote Slacker!

A rare privilege awaits each and everyone of us in San Rafael Monday.

It is election day—our chance to go to the polls and register our individual opinion, in private, on how the affairs of our city shall be conducted for the next four years.

If we do not do this, we are rendering a disservice to our city, state and nation by failing to take advantage of an opportunity which Khrushchev & Associates refuse to grant hundreds of millions of people around the world.

And, we have no one to blame but ourselves if we do not approve of the way our city business is henceforth conducted if we neglect to vote.

In a free America, voting is a duty, and a responsibility which too many people shirk.

The turn out on election day is usually poor. We cannot be proud of the 45 per cent turn out on the last San Rafael municipal election. In contrast, 81 per cent of the citizens of Berkeley went to the polls this week. This is a record which we must strive to surpass.

Each vote counts, and we cannot pass the-buck, or argue that "what good is my one vote." In recent years, many important elections have been decided by a handful of absentee votes. And, there is a classic case in California history, where a congressman was elected by the toss of a coin,—after a primary election between the Republican and Democratic candidates ended in a dead heat.

There are important decisions to be made Monday, decisions in which every man and woman, —every mother and father, should take a stand. We have to elect a mayor, two city councilmen, three members of the city board of education, city clerk, city treasurer-license collector, chief of police.

Maybe the campaign lacks the dramatic impact of a gubernatorial or presidential election. And, so you don't know too much about the merits of the candidates. That would hardly qualify as a reason for not voting. For, we have the week-end in which each of us can learn the facts and become more familiar with the qualifications of each candidate.

Go to the polls Monday, and VOTE.

Don't be a vote slacker.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHT

Solons Adept At Shadow Boxing On 'Conflict Of Interest' Issue

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who polices the policeman?

Nobody. Who investigates Congress, which can investigate the whole area of government? Nobody.

A government department head must get rid of his stock before the Senate lets him take office to prevent conflict of interest. Example: to prevent his profiting from some corporation he may have to do business with.

But a member of Congress, who may deal with a federal agency about some rich constituent with a money interest in the agency's ruling, doesn't have to get rid of anything to reveal his total income.

Five years ago the late Sen. Richard Neuberger said:

"I fear it has a corroding effect on government generally when a member of the President's Cabinet can be ordered to jettison his corporate portfolios by senators who themselves may be dabbling in oil, cotton futures, television, hotel chains or uranium.

"If federal commissioners are to be pilloried for accepting airplane tickets to Palm Beach, how can senators and representatives continue profitable associations with law firms retained by banks, railroads, labor unions, and utility companies?"

THERE WERE others in Congress before Neuberger, and there have been others since, who called for a conflict-of-interest law that applies to all members of Congress as well as to officials of government's executive branch.

Now, again a number of men in the Capitol are concerned about continuing criticism of members of Congress for misuse of public funds in their travel, conflicts of interest, and putting relatives on their payrolls.

Rep. William J. Dorn (D-S.C.) has introduced a bill calling for a strict ethical code in Congress: full accounting of all travel expenses, publication of all income and assets, with criminal penalties attached.

Three times in recent years Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) offered bills to prevent conlict of interest by congressmen and top government officials.

He will do it again with a measure which would require congressmen and all government employes with salaries of $15,000 or more to report their sources of income, gifts of $100 or more, assets and liabilities yearly to the comptroller general.

DORN SAID, "We have investigated every activity of the federal government. Now it is high time the Congress adopt a code of ethics which would warrant the respect not only of the nation but ethics which would warrant the respect not only of the nation but of the free world."

Nobody knows how much income a member of Congress has above his salary. He doesn't have to reveal it.

As Neuberger put it:

"Members of the Senate and House can own a sea vessel, buy any securities they please, negotiate to run their grazing herds on public lands, and be very much interested in carrying on the business of trade and commerce.

HE CALLED this a double standard of morality.

In 1951, a Senate subcommittee recommended that Congress create a commission on ethics in government to investigate the "moral standards of official conduct" of government employes and members of Congress. In addition, it proposed a law similar to the one Case is offering. Nothing happened.

In 1954 Sens. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), and Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), followed up the untouched recommendation of 1951 by proposing an "ethics in government" law requiring members of Congress and all other government officials with $10,000 salary to file sworn public statements on their outside income.

In 1958 Congress proposed a toothless resolution recommending a "code of ethics" for all government employes. Some senators derided it as nothing more than "pious purpose."

President Kennedy, in May 1961, issued an executive order barring top and near-top government officials from outside employment of accepting fees for speeches.

Late last year Congress passed a law tightening conflict-of-interest regulations—as they apply to government employes. It bars permanently former full-time federal employes from representing private interests before federal agencies on matters in which they participated personally and substantially before leaving government service.

But Congress didn't make this in any way apply to members of Congress.

TEEN-AGER SHOWS RARE TALENT

The remarkable feats of a teen-age "Houdini" has his relatives and friends baffled.

There is one trick in particular that makes the 15-year-old Morristown, N. J., lad look something like the greatest escape artist of all time.

His friends strap him in a harness made of leather and steel. Then they wrap him up with 50 feet of heavy chain which is padlocked. It takes the agile young man less than 25 seconds to get out.

Few people, young or old, could match the extraordinary accomplishment of this teen-ager and fewer still would care to.

But this teen-ager is proof indeed of the potential ingenuity of youth.

Those who guide the destinies of today's boys and girls, whether as parents, educators or friends, can promote the interests of God and country by wise encouragement.

Far from squelching the untrained ardor of youth, seek gently and respectfully to chanel it into worthwhile directions.

"Train a boy in the way he should go; even when he is old, he will not swerve from it." (Proverbs 22:6)

Let me broaden the horizons of young people, O God, and deepen their faith by prayer, word and example.

A BOUQUET to the forward looking citizens of the Tiburon and Belvedere section who have inaugurated a program to eliminate the period flood problem, with its inconvenience as well as property loss.

A BOUQUET to the Novato Garden club members in going forward with a tree planting program for Grand Avenue, and providing part of the initial financing—refusing to brook bureaucratic delays.

A BOUQUET to Albert E. Bagshaw, who will soon step down as the city attorney of San Rafael, after serving his community creditably for seven years, and who plans to return to the private law practice.

A BOUQUET to Walter R. Castro, chairman, Marin County Board of Supervisors, on his complete recovery from a heart attack, and contemplated return. The veteran county official plans to return to duty on the board Tuesday, having been declared fully recovered by Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy, Jr.

A BOUQUET to the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce for assuming sponsorship of the historic old Dipsea Race.

Candidates Nights Scored

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

. . . Importance of Candidate's Nights is . . . grossly over-emphasized . . . Exaggerated promises made by those not in office put at a disadvantage the incumbent . . . performing his duties, whose record should be weighed on merit and not in the 'I can promise more' surroundings . . . The San Rafael Police Chief sought to meet many voters in their homes . . . Anyone who is willing to meet the voters individually deserves . . . credit.

. . . Another candidate's sign at the entrance to San Rafael asking motorists if they are upset by the traffic . . . inferring that a vote for him would correct the situation . . . Voters should know the problem is caused by the State Highway Dept. . . . a situation completely outside the province of the city police. This type of opportunist propaganda is just as unfair to an incumbent as a 'Candidates Night'.

Semantic agility and debating gymnastics may provide an evening of entertainment but . . . should not be qualifications for public office.

Mr. Carroll seems to feel that I consider him a second-rate . . . citizen . . . unworthy to serve . . . This was not . . . the idea I attempted to express in the campaign statement . . . partially printed in the I-J.

I bow to no one in my admiration for teachers . . . the importance of education. The point . . . was that school boards should . . . be composed of lay citizens . . . to reflect and carry out the desires of the community . . .

School boards must make many decisions . . . salaries, personnel, teaching assignments, work loads and educational philosophy . . . Teachers are bound to have ideas . . . which might hamper independent judgment . . . It mitigates against choosing teachers for what should be a lay board . . .

A professor from the Harvard Business School was telling his 6-year-old son the story of Cinderella. The boy paid flattering attention — particularly when his father came to the part where the pumpkin turns into a golden coach. He interrupted only long enough to ask, "Hey, Pop, did Cinderella have to report that as straight income, or did they let her call it a capital gain?"

The deer-hunting set still recalls with pleasure Ed Wynn's routine when, just before going out to stalk a moose or two, he caught sight of himself in a full-length mirror, gasped in horror, and exclaimed, "Thank God, I'm out of season!"

The hard-pressed head of a small city police department decided that a few well-trained dogs would help him combat the criminal element, and let it be known he was on the lookout for qualified pooches and pups. Change In Sentiment Noted In Police Chief Campaign

NEVER CAN tell about politics. But the consensus around town has been that incumbent Police Chief Charles Chiesa would win in a breeze in Monday's election.

However, during the past few days, some city hall observers feel that the outcome may not be as lopsided as you think. They see ousted Police Lt. Nick Giampoli as posing a serious threat in the homestretch, especially because of his open challenge to meet his ex-boss in public debate. Furthermore, former Chief Frank Kelly's supporters are expected to throw their weight behind Giampoli.

But unless some startling new development occurs over the weekend, it looks like Chiesa, Giampoli and Vern Thomas in that order.

CAN'T HELP feeling dubious about those two "perfect" bridge hands reported within a span of three days — the kind that each player holds all 13 cards of one suit. They were both dealt awfully close to April 1 if you ask me, one at Greybull, Wyo., and the other in Kankakee, Ill.

But they were certainly timely as far as Marin is concerned. A big bridge tournament is going on right now at Bermuda Palms in San Rafael, and will continue through tomorrow night.

PROBATION Officer Hugh Appell, who passed away this week at age 42, left as much impact on the community as any quiet and unassuming man that I've ever known. He must have scolded, prodded, and encouraged hundreds of lawbreakers during his long public service. And they loved him for it.

Here's a sample of their high regard for Hugh: A young man who had been recommended for jail by Appell sat in his jail cell and created a "get-well" card, beautifully hand painted. The card, mailed from the jail, reached Appell a few days before his death.

THAT'S NOT a whale or a shark that you see lumbering up and down San Rafael Canal almost any day of the week. It's ex-wrestler Tom Rice keeping in condition with his "50-mile swim," in line with JFK's fitness program.

Notice the trime new white-topped hats that San Rafael meter maids are wearing? Just about like the WAVES. Certainly adds to the Easter atmosphere.

A LOCAL drunk began protesting against a two-day jail term, and Judge Joseph Wilson got set for the usual excuses.

"Your honor," the defendant pleaded. "Could I stay in jail another four days? I won't get my room until Monday."

"All right," said the stunned judge. "I sentence you to six days."

"Thank you, sir," he snapped, as he happily trotted down to the jail cell.

TO SET the record straight, Elephant Rock fishing pier was the brainchild of Fred Zelinsky and former Supervisor J. Walter Blair. Zelinsky and his wife paid for the bulk of the cost. And the pier is still for kids, not grownups.

LIGHTER SIDE

Scribe To Check On 'Work' Of Junketing Lawmakers

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—From time to time, I have commented with admiration on the willingness of members of Congress to endure the hardships of overseas travel.

If one keeps one's ear to the ground, one can hear whispers, and sometimes shouts, that congressional trips are mainly junkets arranged to give a lawmaker a free vacation.

I myself, have never shared that suspicion. It is difficult for me to believe that a congressman would deliberately expose himself to the rigors of journeys to foreign lands, unless motivated by a high sense of duty.

My feelings on this matter are so strong that I have volunteered to expose my own frail body to such an ordeal, so than I can see for myself what our lawgivers go through.

I will shortly be flying down to Venezuela to attend the opening of a new resort hotel, the Macuto-Sheraton, that has been erected near Caracas.

THE FACT that I am going as a freeloader has given some of my colleagues the impression that it is a pleasure trip. Not so. There are genuine hardships involved.

The main hardship came when I broke the news to my wife, a rather harassed young woman who was just emerging from a long winter of staunching runny noses and operating a diaper laundry.

"Worst luck", I told her. "I've got to dash down to Venezuela for a few days to study conditions that traveling congressmen might encounter abroad. I really dread it."

"You poor thing," she said, turning on the vacuum cleaner. "I don't see how you can tear yourself away from all of this."

It couldn't come at a worse time," I said. "They just delivered that fertilizer for the lawn and all of the shrubs need pruning. I certainly regret that I won't be here to help you do it."

"I CAN tell that you're all torn up about it," she said. "My heart bleeds for you."

"Believe me, I'm not going because I want to. But as a good citizen I don't feel that we should ask our congressmen to do anything that we aren't willing to do ourselves."

"You always were the noble type," she said.

"According to the program, there won't be much to do except loll around the beach, play golf and go to parties. I'll hate every minute of it, but I'll be proving something to myself."

"Men like you are what made this country great," she said. "If you keep on making these sacrifices you'll be canonized as a martyr."

Like I always say, it's wonderful to have an understanding wife. But some of them understand too well.

LOUD AND STRONG

The $23-Million Voice

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Voice of America is speaking much louder and much stronger these days.

Its new radio station at Greenville, N. C., is the most powerful ever built.

Its total output, 4,800,000 watts, equals the combined power of the 96 strongest U.S. stations.

It has 22 transmitters and 93 antennas.

It cost us taxpayers 23 million dollars.

It plays a leading role in the attempt to tell this country's story all around the world.

Each day the Voice speaks in 36 languages—on special events it broadcasts in 64 tongues—and 24 of these are heard daily from the powerful Greenville station.

Just a list of the languages pouring forth from Greenville is impressive: Spanish, Portuguese, French (to Africa), Russia (to Cuba), Russian (to the USSR), Hungarian, Czech, Slovak, Swahili, English, Slovene, Arabic, Hindi, Estonian, Georgian, Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish, Turkish, Ukranian, Urdu, Albanian, Armenian, Bulgarian and Rumanian.

All told, the Voice has 87 transmitters, 32 of them in the United States, the rest at strategic points throughout the world. The VOA's Greenville transmitter and subsequent other construction is enabling radio broadcasts to sidestep the interference of the auroral zone over the pole by way of Africa (see map).

In this era of the cold war, no competition is hotter than the attempt to gain man's ears — and minds. Radio Moscow broadcasts 1,205 hours a week and Radio Peking is chattering away 787 hours weekly. The U.S. total, counting all languages, is 740 hours a week.

Nor does the story end here. The Communists, so the Voice of America experts say, use 2,000 transmitters in an attempt to block, or jam, broadcasts to their areas.

To most of us, the Voice of America is only a name, and maybe a controversial name at that.

The difficulties stem from the fact that on one has any sure answers to this simple question:

If you wanted to tell the American story effectively, how would you go about it?

Each of us has a different answer, and what's one man's wisdom is another man's foolishness.

Despite these difficulties, the Voice keeps on talking.

Edward R. Murrow, who as U.S. Information Director is boss of Voice of America, explains the objectives this way:

A Weekly Page of Background Information

Another Rockefeller In Political Life?

By JAMES CAMPBELL

MORRILTON, Ark. (UPI) — Winthrop Rockefeller's home rambles around the brow of a bluff nearly 900 feet above the Arkansas river valley. Its picture windows sweeping a new battleground of Arkansas party politics.

Here the "squire of Petit Jean Mountain" presides over a vast and widely-varied set of interests. They range from raising purebred Santa Gertrudis cattle to promoting industrial development and, to the chagrin of the Democrats in his back yard, making a two-party state of Arkansas.

Rockefeller came here from New York nearly 10 years ago during divorce proceedings from his first wife "Bobo", the daughter of a Lithuanian coal miner. He is just as Republican as his brother Nelson, the governor of New York and a leading candidate for the next GOP presidential nomination.

Bus Winthrop Rockefeller's political persuasion was largely ignored as long as he confined it to the lofty reaches of Petit Jean and his office in Little Rock's tower building.

It was when he went down into the Communities last year to organize local Republican units that the fur started to fly. It flew furiously during the recent legislative session, when a move was mounted to oust him as chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission (AIDC).

Bombastic Rep. Paul Van Dalsam of Perry County demanded on the floor of the House, "Who the hell does Rockefeller think he is?"

Members of the legislature who had Republican opposition for the first time last fall because of Rockefeller were ready to send him packing.

But the ouster efforts failed as the legislature, stunned by the vigor of the public reaction, backed away.

"There's no question about it," he said. "It had to help."

It may not have been a clear-cut victory for Rockefeller, but he feels it certainly was no harm to his two-party plans.

Rockefeller, who admits he came very close to taking on Gov. Orval Faubus in the gubernatorial race last year, is not saying whether he might try in 1964.

But I think they (the legislature) have helped me if I should decide to run," he added.

Rockefeller's Winrock Farms, near Morrilton in Conway County, is on a plateau 1,100 feet above sea level.

Rockefeller bought 900 acres on the western side of the plateau in 1953, when it was mostly untended woodland and unproductive soil. Land purchases in 1962 extended Winrock to more than 7,500 acres.

Now a prize herd of about 2,400 Santa Gertrudis grame on lush, green pastures. buildings dot the landscape, providing living and working quarters for the farm's 125 employees as well as housing the animals.

Not only does he run a successful farm, Rockefeller looks like a farmer. Only his diction betrays his New York background.

There is a story that when he first arrived he drove down to Morrilton to look over some tractors. In his work clothes he looked like any of the other farmers in the area, so the story goes. And didn't get much attention until he offered to pay cash for a fleet of tractors.

"I hadn't heard that one," Rockefeller said. "But sometimes visitors here think I'm one of the employees. I usually let them know who I am, though, before they get embarrased."

Around the farm he drapes his big frame in western clothing and wears a broad-brimmed hat.

His new Continental has a silver Santa Gertrudus bull mounted on the hood. He likes to drive it around the farm surveying his stock and talking with the employees on a two-way radio.

Smoke curled from the forest in nearby Petit Jean State Park as he drove a UPI reporter and photographer around the farm.

Rockefeller is proud of his Santa Gertrudis, which combine the hardiness of the Brahman with the meat production of the Shorthorn.

He offers 20 of his top two-year-old bulls at an anual sale, often attended by movie stars and other celebrities, the second Saturday of each May. In 1961, Winrock Bull No. 133 sold for $59,000, still a record price among the breed.

Rockefeller does not want to be considered an outsider or a interloper in state affairs.

In turning down the Republican gubernatorial nomination last summer he said, "I have no personal ambitions. It is my considered judgment that I can do more for the Republican Party in Arkansas by making it clear that I am not seeking something for myself. Above all I am going to strive, with all the energy I possess, to establish the sacredness of the poll. It is tragic that the theme of voting in Arkansas today is a theme of fear."

He still is trying to organize from the "grass roots," and therein lies much of his trouble with the democratic administration.

Governor Faubus, who twice appointed Rockefeller to the AIDC, said in a television appearance March 27 he believed Rockefeller had been an asset to the state.

"That is why I felt him on the AIDC," Faubus said. "But when you go into a community and try to deprive someone of his dearest possession, his political life, you are asking for trouble."

Although the AIDC and politics take up most of his time, Rockefeller has a number of other activities which keep him moving.

WINTHROP ROCKEFELLER
Spark in Arkansas

He goes to New York so much that, although he hasn't lived there for more than nine years, he still gets his haircuts in a New York barber shop.

He recently was named chairman of the 1963 campaign of the National Mental Health Assn. A program in which his wife is a leader. He and Mrs. Rockefeller also are leaders in the Arkansas Arts Center, and Mrs. Rockefeller promoted an "artmobile" journey around the state to display fine art to school children.

Rockefeller remains chairman of the board of Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., which restored Williamsburg, Va.; a director of Rockefeller Center, Inc. and holds positions on various other boards with members of his family.

If his brother is nominated for the presidency, the Arkansas Rockefeller undoubtedly will spend some time on the campagn trail. He did some campaigning in other states in the 1962 political season.

"I think it's logical to assume," he said, "that if my brother is running for president I will support him."

Rockefeller, now 51, is the fifth son of John D. Rockefeller Jr.

He first gained an intimate knowledge of Arkansas when he and Frank Newell of Little Rock were officers in the 77th Division in World War II.

Rockefeller joined the Army as a private 11 months before Pearl Harbor. He was separated in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel after winning the bronze star with oak leaf cluster and the purple heart for a wound received on Okinawa.

He learned the oil business from "the hole up" in Texas under the tutelage of roughnecks, tool pushers, and drillers. He learned finance on the staff of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York, later worked for Socony-Vacuum and the IBEC Housing Corp.

Rockefeller's friends have said he never really enjoys city life and is happiest at his farm.

There are few farms such as his, with four lakes, a boathouse, swimming pool, magnificent house and stunning vew of the rich Arkansas Valley.

FROM 17 TO 28 MILLION

1980 High School Graduate Will Face Big Population

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

By the time a baby born this year graduates from high school as a 17-year-old, the surface area of the state now covered by people will have doubled from what it is today.

This is what one can deduce from a population estimate issued by the State Department of Finance. The department said the state's population would go from the current 17 million to more than 28 million by 1980.

Much of the growth, the department said, will be in already identifiable metropolitan areas. Rural areas will remain relatively rural in comparison to the metropolitan areas, but probably not in comparison to today's population.

It will be the fringe areas those now undergoing growing pains in the transition from rural to metropolitan—that will probably suffer the most. These are invariably in fertile agricultural areas.

The fastest growing county in the state, according to the statistics, will be Ventura, with Orange, Santa Clara and Sacramento also among the leaders.

Metropolitan growth was slated to go from 13,700,000 in 1960 to 24 million in 1980. Non-metropolitan growth was expected to increase from 2 million in 1960 to 4 million in 1980

The department listed these non-metropolitan areas and their expected growth:

Northern coast 188,000 to 242,000; north central coast 215,000 to 434,000; south central coast 378,000 to 762,000; Sacramento valley 274,000 to 511,000; North San Joaquin valley 249,000 to 363,000; South San Joaquin valley 261,000 to 384,000; Ventura 203,000 to 739,000; Imperial valley 73,000 to 103,000; Sierra 302,000 to 532,000.

Metropolitan growth included these areas: San Jose 659,000 to 1,708,000; Sacramento 510,000 to 1,073,000; Stockton 252,000 to 379,000 to 614,000; Santa Barbara 174,000 to 491,000; Bakersfield 295,000 to 457,000; San Francisco-Oakland 2,802,000 to 4,467,000; Los Angeles-Long Beach 6,791,000 to 11,386,000; San Diego 1,049,000 to 1,800,000, and San Bernardino-Riverside 820,000 to 1,691,000.

The department said the estimates were considered conservative. The study noted the predictions were based on a migration of 300,000 people a year into the state, a figure which is below actual migrations of the last eight years.

A Break At Geneva: 'Hot Line'

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

In the language of the beatnik, the Swiss city of Geneva has been "dullsville."

Geneva is the scene of the disarmament talks between East and West and during the past year the little action taken there has been negative, because the Russians refused to budge from their stand.

Then, unexpectedly, the Soviet Union this week accepted a U. S. proposal for a "hot line" communications link between Washington and the Kremlin.

This "line," either a telephone or a teletype, would greatly diminish the accidental outbreak of a catastropic world war by permitting President John F. Kennedy and Premier Nikita Khrushchev to confer almost instantaneously in a critical emergency.

And time is an all-important element.

During the Cuban crisis last October, so much time was consumed in getting a message from Kennedy to Khrushchev that it could have arrived too late had someone decided to push the button.

This delay worried the U. S. government and it pressed for the "hot line" that would bring Kennedy and Khrushchev into contact in a matter of seconds.

But in Geneva the Russians refused to talk about it until yesterday when Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin said his country was ready to set up the fast communications line.

U. S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle called the Soviet announcement "most encouraging." And Tsarapkin said it was the "first practical result" achieved in Geneva in 13 months of fruitless talks on disarmament.

Around The World Around The Week

Washington — At his news conference Kennedy, who has high regard for Dwight D. Eisenhower, fired a blast at his predecessor for attacking his 98.8-billion-dollar spending budget and "enormous waste" in trying to put an American on the moon before Russia does. Kennedy said the nation suffered its worst peacetime deficit, underwent two recessions and lost more gold than ever before during the eight-year Eisenhower administration.

Greenwood, Miss. — Comedian Dick Gregory led Negroes in demonstrations against what he considered racial discrimination against voters. He bitterly criticized the Kennedy administration as well as Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett. The Chicago comedian promised to stay in Greenwood indefinitely but at week's end he said he would leave because he felt nothing more could be accomplished.

Buenos Aires — A revolt against the Argentine government failed. Dissidents sought to take over because of the administration's willingness to permit Peronists to participate in forthcoming elections. But loyal troops put down the rebellion.

Washington — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told Congress that Russia will be unable to equal America's military and economic potentials in a lifetime.

Berlin — Two Soviet jets buzzed a private plane in the allied air corridor to Berlin, and the Russians rejected a Western protest about the incident. The Soviets also attempted to prevent the plane from returning to West Germany through the corridor but later relented.

Seashore's Land Cost: $26 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of land acquisition for the Point Reyes National Seashore in Marin is estimated by Conrad L. Wirth, director of the National Park Service, at 25 to 26 million dollars.

The law authorizing the park last year sets a 14-million-dollar limit on expenditures.

Wirth told a House Appropriations subcommittee at a recent closed-door hearing that if the land had been bought when he first recommended it, the whole 53,000 acres on the Point Reyes Peninsula could have been purchased for five million dollars.

Wirth's testimony, seeking a five million dollars appropriation for immediate use in buying Point Reyes land, was made public yesterday. Another two million dollars is included in the Interior Department budget for the 12 months beginning July 1 for the same purpose.

Wirth said land values have increased in some places 400 to 500 per cent since the park was authorized because of subdivision activity by speculators.

Rep. Edward P. Boland (D-Mass.) suggested "sit back and let the speculators cool their heels for awhile."

"The prices will never go any lower," Wirth responded. "In a year or two it will be just too late to do anything."

The committee approved the five million dollars requested to initiate the land acquisition.

Neil Cummins Anniversary

Neil Cummins School in Corte Madera marked its 10th anniversary today with four of the seven original teachers still on the staff.

In a surprise gesture yesterday two Parent-Teacher Assn. members, Mrs. James McClintock, president, and Mrs. David Zita, presented teachers with a cake with 10 candles for the teachers' luncheon.

Still on the staff are Principal Catherine Burch, who began as a teaching principal; Mrs. Helen Wagner, kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Louise Victor, second grade, and Mrs. Jeannette Fisher, third grade.

The school opened April 6, 1953, with six classrooms. It has grown from an enrollment of about 240 to about 760 and now has 24 teachers.

Blaze Routs Artist, Wife

Fire early today routed artist Jose Moya Del Pino and his wife from the bedroom of their home on Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross.

Mrs. Moya Del Pino was roused by acrid smoke in the second floor bedroom. She woke her husband and ran to the alarm box near her home at 5:27 a.m.

Ross Fire Chief A. T. Henrich said the fire was caused by overloading the electrical outlet in the bedroom. A cord under one of the beds set the carpet burning and then the mattress.

"It was a lucky thing she woke up," Henrich said.

There was minor damage to the floor and considerable smoke damage in the second level of the home, he said.

Better Understanding Among Teachers Urged

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A better understanding between physical education instructors and teachers of academic subjects was urged Thursday by State Supt. of Public Instruction Maxwell Rafferty.

He told the annual banquet meeting of the California Assn. for Health, Physical Education and Recreation that in many high schools physical education instructors were treated with both envy and superiority by other teachers.

Final Week In His Life Indeed Holy

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Jesus Christ lived among men for about 33 years. But his public ministry lasted only two or three years at most. And the climactic events of his brief career were crammed into a single week.

The momentous week occurred more than 19 hundred years ago. But such was its impact on the hearts and minds of men that it is still being commemorated throughout the world as "Holy Week."

The 1963 celebration of holy week begins tomorrow.

The first day of Holy Week is called "Palm Sunday." The name comes from the royal welcome which Jesus received from the people of Jerusalem when he arrived in the city for the first time.

His fame as a teacher and a healer had preceded him from the hinterlands of Galillee, where most of his ministry was conducted. Many people thought he was coming to Jerusalem to lead a revolt against the Roman army of occupation. So they greeted him as a king. In our day we roll out a red carpet for visiting royalty. In the first century A.D., the custom was to pave his pathway with palm branches.

Jesus was not elated by his reception. He knew that the fickle crowds would turn against him when they learned that he was not the kind of deliverer they wanted. He had already warned his disciples that he was going to Jerusalem, not to be honored, but to be executed.

The disciples found that prophecy hard to believe. But they were to witness many strange things before the week was out.

Jesus spent Monday and Tuesday at Jerusalem's hilltop temple, trying to make clear by words and deeds the true nature of the "Kingdom of God" which he had come to proclaim. When he talked to plain people, he illustrated his points with homely little stories called parables. When theologians and lawyers tried to trap him with loaded questions, he quoted their own scriptures and law books to them. Once he got mad at racketeers who had set up carnival-like booths in the temple courtyard to bilk tourists. He seized a whip and drove them out.

By Wednesday, Jesus could see that he was making few converts and many enemies. He left Jerusalem and spent the day with some old friends who lived in a little suburb called Bethany. Meanwhile, leaders of organized religion and respectable men of property met secretly in the city and decided that this Galillean trouble-maker must be gotten out of the way. They made a deal with a disgruntled disciple named Judas Iscariot to serve as finger man for the arrest. Judas sold out his master for 30 pieces of silver.

On Thursday evening Jesus celebrated the Jewish feast of the passover with his disciples in the upstairs room of a private home in Jerusalem. The supper of unleavened bread and wine was spread on a low wooden table. Jesus heard some of his disciples squabbling over which of them was most important. To teach them a lesson in humility, he took a towel and basin of water, and washed the grime from their sandal-shod feet. It was a task usually performed by slaves in the homes of the rich. Jesus told them that in the Kingdom of God, the only great men were those who served others.

The word that Jesus spoke when he distributed the bread and wine gave that last supper a special significance. He said the bread represented his body, the wine his blood. He told his disciples that the body would soon be broken and the blood spilled because he loved them, and because only by suffering on their behalf could he "ransom" them from sin and death.

After being tortured for several hours, Jesus was taken, shortly before noon on Friday, to the top of the hill named Calvary he was stripped of his clothing and made to lie down on a crude wooden cross. His arms were stretched out on the crossbeam and wooden nails were hammered through his hands. Other nails were driven through his feet to attach them to the central post. Then the cross was raised upright and its bottom end was dropped with a rending jolt into a hole in the ground.

He hung there for three hours. Crucifixion is an extremely painful form of execution, and men undergoing it are rarely able to utter any sounds except screams of agony. Jesus managed to speak seven brief sentences. One of them was: "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

When he was dead, his body was placed in a tomb hewn out of a rock. It lay there over Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath. Early Saturday morning a few women mourners went to the tomb to apply embalming ointments to the body.

They returned with news which the frightened and demoralized disciples at first dismissed as "an idle tale." Later, the disciples confirmed it themselves, through first-hand experience, and set forth to proclaim to all the world the good news that is still reberberating in Easter anthems:

"He is risen!"

Big Game Hunting Is His Career

THIS PHOTO OF THE then new Dominican Convent Administration Building in San Rafael was taken in 1890. It was the first and for some time the only building on the campus, and remains a fine example of the architecture of its period. From it has funneled much of the important religious, cultural and educational contributions which the Dominican Sisters and their programs have made to Marin life for 74 years. The photo was taken by McMillan of San Rafael.

When The Sisters Came To Marin

Move From Benecia In 1889 Was Act Of Faith And Vision

With Marin County's population presently nudging the 170,000 figure, statisticians are predicting a rapid growth that will see that figure doubled, over even tripled, in the next few decades.

Such numbers are a far cry from the 13,000 of 1889 when four Dominican Sisters left their motherhouse in Benecia to establish new headquarters in what was then the quiet and sleepy village of San Rafael.

Benecia, once the capital of the state, still seemed in 1889 to be an ideal location in many respects. There the Dominican boarding school, elementary and secondary, enjoyed the enviable reputation that it had earned through service since its founding in 1854.

BUT THE Sisters, with great vision and faith, turned resolutely toward Marin County and San Rafael. Their decision to establish a school in San Rafael had far-reaching effects, both for the Sisters and the city they had selected.

So it was in August of 1889 that Mother Louis, Mother General of California Dominicans, came to San Rafael to establish a school and convent upon land acquired from —half by purchase, half by donation — William T. Coleman.

Mother Louis also moved the novitiate from Benicia to San Rafael.

Today the novitiate house, Santa Sabina, is located near the old Babcock estate which is part of the college. Every Sister who teaches in one of the 24 elementary or seven high schools conducted by the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael, or serves in one of the two hospitals run by the congregation, receives her early training in San Rafael.

IN AN ADDRESS given at the golden jubilee of the Dominican Convent, Rev. Thomas N. O'Kane said: "With the coming of Mother Louis to San Rafael, the Archdiocese received a balm—a healing beyond compare. The Dominican College pioneered our parochial schools; it ministered to the intellectual circles of our locality; it set the standards of our teacher-training."

But in 1889 all these accomplishments lay in the future.

When Mother Louis arrived in San Rafael she had great faith and little money. The hardships were many.

In the beginning there were no bedsteads and the sisters slept on mattresses on the floor. Furniture, such as it was, had been brought from Benecia. Candy, which the Sisters received as gifts, was sold to pay for linoleum and for food. Charitable neighbors often shared their bounty of fresh fruits and vegetables.

It was in this hard way that foundations were laid for the years ahead.

MATERIAL poverty, however, did not deter the Sisters from establishing an intellectual program that was as thorough as it was challenging. Though the students were at first few in number and the graduating classes small, the curriculum, based on the classics, included mathematics, history, natural philosophy, and logic.

A native French woman taught French, and the most competent instructors available taught music to students, thus laying the foundations of the now famous music department.

Then, as now, school life involved more than classes and books.

Sister Mary Thomas, now director of admissions for Dominican College and formerly president, was a student in the early days of Dominican Convent. She recalls times when the convent, the large wooden building which is now the administration building for the Upper School, was the only building on campus.

IT WAS surrounded by a large lawn planted with trees, many of which are still flourishing. A high cypress hedge with large wooden gates at the entrance and exit bordered the lawn. The present Hawthorn Court, beloved by all Dominican graduates, was then a play yard with basketball courts lined on hard-packed dirt. Where St. Thomas Hall (the Upper School residence and classroom building) now stands were swings and playground equipment for the younger children.

Recreations were simple then and the way of life seems astonishing to us now. A round trip to San Francisco by way of the Tiburon railroad and ferry cost 25 cents, a special rate for the convent students. The Hotel Rafael was a widely-known resort in

"DID THE CLEANER STAIN MY WOOL SUIT?"

The brown stain to which you refer was not spilled on the suit by your cleaner. What has been spilled on it was some liquid that contained reducing sugar. Common liquids, containing this substance, are fruit juices, artificially sweetened soft drinks, ginger ale, Tom Collins mix and cocktails. Stains from these sources usually are not visible when sent to the cleaner, but in the heat of drying or pressing, the sugar carmelizes and turns brown. Sometimes the stains will not show until the garment has been cleaned several times or until it has been stored for several months.

This stain is especially noticeable on wools. It is natural to think that it resulted from something your dry cleaner spilled, since the stain was not visible when you sent him your suit. This is not the case. The chances are the heat has set the stain and removal is impossible. That is why you should take any stained garment to your cleaner at once, identify the stain and have it removed before age or heat set it permanently.

HIGH BUTTON SHOES, leg o'mutton sleeves and full black serge skirts were the standard styles in 1897. These Dominican students posed in the doorway of the administration building, facing Hawthorn Court.

STRING INSTRUMENTS were the popular choice with the musically-inclined students of Dominican in 1898. Here a group moved outdoors for a bit of impromptu playing. Music has always been closely associated with the Dominican program.

SEVEN YOUNG LADIES and their instructor, all in spotless white starched caps and aprons, make up the first domestic science class at Dominican. The year was 1911. And in those days the homemaking skills were extremely important to such young women.

STEREO HI-FI

DYNAGROOVE the new magnificent sound by RCA Victor. Yes, I have just listened to a few of these new stereo records and I am very much impressed. The sound is truly clear and vibrant.

The Dynagroove research began about three years ago at the RCA Victor studios in New York. They perfected new methods to record the master tapes and to transfer these tapes to the master record, from which all records are pressed. They use a tape speed of 30 inches per second for the tape masters. An electronic brain was developed for use in cutting the grooves in the master record. This brain predicts the many tracking problems that your phonograph needle will encounter while it moves through the record groove. Having detected these problems, the brain directs the cutting stylus on a course on the record master that virtually eliminates all false turns.

RCA claims that the Dynagroove Records will give "True Brilliance at all Volume Levels, Perfected Presence, Greater Clarity, and Remarkable Fidelity."

For the technically minded, The RCA process consists of two major refinements. During the recording process, they modify the frequency response by adding bass at a rate that corresponds with our hearing losses at room listening levels, and doing the same with the upper high frequency range. This of course will give a richer bass from those phonograph systems that do not have loudness compensation. Most of the component type systems have loudness compensation type volume controls, so this RCA modification will not be of significant value for those of you that have quality component systems. It may be advisable for component users to switch out the compensation when playing Dynagroove records and make necessary room adjustments with your bass and treble controls.

The second refinement is truly a great one, especially so for those of you that have high quality component music systems. A counter-distortion, that is, an opposite type of distortion is added during the recording process to the master record. When your needle plays these, in effect distorted grooves, the sound comes out undistorted. It really does. Full orchestral passages come out vividly clear. If you are looking for a remarkable musical treat, visit our Stereo Theater and listen to the new Dynagroove Recordings by RCA.

AT THE TURN OF THE CENTURY, a class in music theory has moved out onto the front lawn of Dominican Convent, where the students are receiving their instruction. The beauty of the Dominican campus is one factor which has remained constant through the decades. So has the interest in music.

Dominican Education Grows With Marin

the style of the old Del Monte and Coronado Hotels.

Sister Thomas recalls that once, as a student, she and some of her companions wanted to watch the exhibition tennis matches played at the Hotel Rafael by stars of the day. Lacking the necessary 25 cents admission, the girls were about to forego the pleasure of watching the matches, when fortunately one of them, walking along the street, found a dollar bill. They walked into the hotel and watched the players.

AT THE SAME time that the convent school was established in 1889, the Sisters helped to found the first parochial school in Marin County —Saint Raphael's. Beginning with a small faculty of three Sisters and a limited number of students, this school has developed into a large school with a faculty of 16, including 12 Dominican Sisters and four lay teachers.

The establishment of Saint Raphael's has been followed in recent years by the staffing of schools in Santa Venetia and Terra Linda.

Little by little the convent school on Grand Avenue grew.

A new campus was developed for the college which conferred its first degrees.

The enrollment increased, and soon students and teachers came from many parts of the United States and from foreign lands to San Rafael.

It is worth noting that the current interest in the Latin American countries was foreshadowed by the Sisters' interest in students from Mexico, Central America and South America. From the earliest days, the girls from Latin countries were welcomed into the school and educated in the principles of American education — principles which were carried back and put into practice by Latin American graduates. In the Upper School today, there are 12 resident students from Mexico and South America.

IN 1901 DOMINICAN Convent Upper School became the first private school to be recognized by the state.

In 1932 the Catholic University of America established its West Coast branch in San Rafael at Dominican College.

And so from every part of the United States and from foreign countries came students, teachers, lecturers, and distinguished visitors to Dominican and to San Rafael. People, who perhaps would not otherwise know about Marin County, associate themselves with this area because of their contacts with Dominican Convent and College. In fact the importance for the cultural development of the county of the Dominican Convent activities cannot be measured.

BOUFFANT HAIRSTYLES, blue denim, and pearl buttons were favored by the members of the first basketball team at Dominican in 1904. It was the typical costume of young lady athletes of the era. Even in its earliest days, incidentally, the Dominican grounds contained an outdoor basketball court.

Of course, the initiators of these developments found a ready and appreciative response within the county. The Sisters, for example, put at the disposal of the Marin Music Chest the grounds of beautiful Forest Meadows. Here since 1930 musical programs of excellent caliber have been made available each summer to the public.

NOW NEARLY 75 years have passed since the arrival of the Dominican Sisters on Grand Avenue. Since then, the one convent which comprised all departments has expanded to include over 12 academic and resident halls.

The newest building is the college library, named after the first archbishop of San Francisco, Archbishop Alemany, who first brought the Dominican Sisters to Monterey, Calif., in 1850.

These buildings and other improvements have come about through the hardworking efforts of every member of the congregation. With no endowments and very little outside help, the facilities of the Upper School, Lower School and college have been developed throughout the years.

Anyone seeing the complex structure of the educational plan at Dominican, a plan which insures fine education from nursery school through upper and lower schools and through college and graduate school, would think that the Dominican campus is complete. But just as many were satisfied with the progress made in Benicia in 1889, there were others who with vision saw the trend of the future and placed their hopes in the growth of Marin County.

TODAY THE Dominican Sisters have inherited that same vision.

Seeing that the needs and opportunities for a sound education in Marin will demand even greater expansion in the future, they, too, have given a token of their trust in the future growth of this area. In 1960, a tract of land was purchased in Sleepy Hollow. There on gently sloping hills, the Dominican Sisters will continue the tradition of education that has been theirs for centuries.

Many factors entered into the decision to move the Dominican Lower and Upper Schools to the new Sleepy Hollow campus.

The great increase of population and the insistent demand for a solid education warrant the establishment of an elementary school in Sleepy Hollow. The need for a preparatory school of the highest caliber makes imperative more space for expansion and for further development.

PERHAPS no educational level is so much in public focus today as that of the college preparatory secondary school. The proposed Dominican Upper School on the Sleepy Hollow campus will embody the best that is now present in the San Rafael school and will include those things which only expansion can provide. And at Sleepy Hollow students of the Upper and Lower Schools will have the opportunity of learning in a setting that lends itself to study. In addition students will have the advantage of a sound curriculum developed according to the most successful of modern methods and amplified with the most effective tools of learning.

The move to Sleepy Hollow, the Sisters are confident, will bring added luster and growth to Dominican education.

Art Is Adventure And A Way Of Life For Elsie Pomeroy

When Her Children Grew Up, She Knew What To Do With Her Time

By DOROTHY COOK

A recent issue of the Independent-Journal carried a cartoon in the popular "The Neighbors" feature series in which a motherly-type was saying:

"Now that the kids are grown, I have time to do lots of interesting things. But I don't know a thing about writing, painting or music."

When Mrs. Carl S. Pomeroy of Mill Valley reached that same stage in life back in the 1920s, she had no such dilemma.

WITH HER children no longer underfoot, she knew that she could devote more time to her painting. That is what she did—and what she is still doing.

Currently Elsie Lower Pomeroy, as she signs her pictures, is in her 14th year of teaching art in the Adult Evening School program at Tamalpais High School. She is a contributing member of the California Water Color Society, the Washington, D.C. Water Color Society, The San Francisco Art Institute, the San Francisco Women Artists and the National League of American Pen Women, to which she was elected in 1961. She now serves the pen women on their board of directors of the Berkeley Branch.

The oft-heard cliche, "Art is a way of life," applies to Mrs. Pomeroy's thinking and work.

"The goal is not making art. It is living a life—and art is the result," says Elsie. "Art is an adventure."

SHE DOESN'T see herself as belonging to any one school or tied to any specific technique. She says, "Next to my own painting, I get my greatest thrill from seeing the work of others recognized."

Elsie, as all her friends know her, has been a participating artist in the communities in which she has lived. After having worked with the Mill Valley Festival committee for a number of years, she was delighted with the excellent 1962 show selected by an outstanding jury.

Her enthusiasm to give art an opportunity to be seen and the artist to achieve can be traced through the many clippings in her scrapbook which was carefully kept by her husband.

Much of Mrs. Pomeroy's real efforts in art began in the 1920s in Riverside where Mr. Pomeroy was a scientist with the Department of Agriculture.

PERHAPS A key to her accomplishments can be found from a clipping of the front page of her scrapbook. It is an editorial written by Arthur Gordon:

"The astonishing fact is that we don't begin to live up to our own potentialities so long as we are trying merely to please ourselves. All of us need someone who wants us to achieve, someone who expects the utmost from us, someone who gives us a reason outside ourselves for succeeding. I think we respond to the outside challenge mainly because it establishes contact—warm, tangible contact—with another human being. And that contact banishes the most paralyzing of all fears: The fear of loneliness."

The stories recorded in the scrapbook tells how this charming and versatile woman was actively working to organize the Riverside artists while painting and exhibiting in Riverside, Laguna, San Francisco and Oakland galleries.

She became a member of the California Water Color Society through the selection of her picture, "Night Blooming Cereus". In 1933 two pictures, one of the Mission Inn in Riverside entitled "Luncheon in the Patio," and "Spring Harmonies," were displayed in the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. This was real excitement to exhibit in her home school and town. With this came the honor of an invitation into the Washington Water Color Club.

WHEN HER CHILDREN grew up, Mrs. Elsie Lower Pomeroy was faced with no problem as to what to do with her time. She devoted it to her painting and to the teaching of art. A Mill Valley resident since 1944, she continues to be a very active participating artist. (Independent-Journal photo)

MRS. POMEROY'S work has been described as done in the modern manner, using a broad stroke effectively in both landscapes and still life groups:

"She interprets the spell of California with pictures of cacti, of the ocean and boats, mountains and the missions with understanding and sympathy."

After studying at the Corcoran Art School in Washington D.C. early in the 1900s, Elsie Lower became an illustrator for the Department of Agriculture. Her illustrations were chosen many times for use in the department's Year Book. This was considered a great honor.

SHE LEFT her work to become Mrs. Carl S. Pomeroy and devote her time to her home and family.

Years later she accepted an appointment with the Department of Forestry as a botanical artist. Along with five artists from all over the United States, she worked on pen illustrations for a plant handbook to be used by forest rangers and cattlemen.

This was an opportunity for new experiences. Her daughter Florence (Mrs. Harry H. Smith of Mill Valley) had just entered her first year at college. Her other daughter Jane (Mrs. George Johnston of Alexandria, Va.) accompanied her to Washington.

While there Mrs. Pomeroy painted "Melting Snows," of which the director of the Washington Art League wrote, "In the judges' opinion your work is commendable for being one of the most meritorious exhibits in the show." The picture is a study of traffic on a wet street. It was awarded first prize in watercolors at the Seventh Annual New Year Show of the Butler Art Institute in Youngstown, Ohio, in 1941.

IN 1938 SHE began teaching art classes for children through Riverside Junior College. The scrapbook again provides quotes from newspaper articles:

The Hustling Reporter says, "Students of Elsie Pomeroy hastily putting finishing touches on scenes of Mission Inn Courtyard at noontime. Parrots Joseph and Napoleon both were subjects."

"There are no direct evidences of teacher guidance and yet the picture as a group show the influence of understanding, enthusiastic and appreciative guidance."

In a letter from Millard Sheets, he expresses the following observation, "It seems to me that you have developed in no uncertain way a great deal of individuality, and best of all, a sense of good taste in the work of all of these children. They are filled with spontaniety and at the same time show the result of excellent observation."

ELSIE BELIEVES children should have good art instruction and an opportunity to see good original art. Through the efforts of the Riverside artists, the children's art class and the Riverside County schools art supervisor, an exhibit of originals was taken to the county schools.

A quote from the art supervisor says, "Only by direct presentation of such originals can standards of judgment be developed in the child. By bringing the exhibit into the classroom, the pupils will be provided a full opportunity for discussions of the relative merits of the individual paintings."

It is no wonder that Mrs. Pomeroy was called the "Art Lady" by the Riverside students.

Another moment of excitement in her life was the recognition received from a group of pictures depicting the citrus industry in Southern California.

"SAVING THE Citrus Crop," an unusual night smudging scene, hung in the juried show at the 17th International Exhibition of Water Colors at the Art Institute of Chicago. The following year, 1939, "Orange Pickers" was accepted for the 18th Chicago show. Another of the series was "Battling the Bugs," a citrus fumigation scene.

These pictures were seen in shows in New York, Washington D.C., Chicago, Youngstown, Los Angeles and other cities. They have been given by Mrs. Pomeroy to the University of California and are now at the Riverside campus, where her granddaughter Caryl Jane Smith is an honor student, majoring in botany.

In 1940 the Federal Works Agency in Washington, D.C., appointed a jury of four artists, John Marin, Charles Burchfield, Eliot O'Hara and Buk Ulreich, to choose 300 watercolors as representative of United States artists. Out of 10,000 submitted, Elsie had two paintings, "Fog Over the Bay" and "Mountain Orchards," accepted by this prominent panel of jurists. These pictures were among the 200 which were hung in the first temporary exhibition to be held in the National Gallery of Art.

IT WAS THE first work by living American artists to appear in the new building. Following their appearance in several cities in the United States, these pictures were hung in the U.S. Marine Hospital for lepers in Carville, La.

Elsie speaks with great enthusiasm and fondness for the people with whom she has studied.

Millard Sheets is one of her favorites, and she says she would join the class he is taking to Mexico this summer if she were a little younger. She confirms that his enthusiasm and creative ability as a teacher give the student a new and vital viewpoint.

In 1944 Mr. Pomeroy retired as a pomologist in the Department of Agriculture and the family moved from Riverside, where they had lived since 1913. They made a new home in Mill Valley and found a new way of life.

MR. POMEROY was ill for a number of years before his death in 1957. During these years he worked with meticulous care on his stamp collection. He continued to keep his wife's scrapbook and find proper titles for her paintings.

Throughout his illness, Elsie's basic convictions regarding creativity were so firmly fixed that the many adverse conditions surrounding her did not stop her development.

Living in a new community presented a challenge to her to become a contributing member of its art circles. In 1949 she was elected to the San Francisco Art Assn. and became a popular participant in the Rental Gallery of the San Francisco Art Museum.

Much more could be told of Elsie's contributions to art life in Marin County and the Bay Area. She has always had pictures hanging somewhere—a large show in San Francisco's Union Square, the Marin Society of Artists, a Mill Valley festival, in shops, clubs, banks. She served as a director for the Marin Society, the San Francisco Women Artists, and in advisory capacity for the Mill Valley Festivals.

THE FRIDAY Night Group, which met for years in Mill Valley, was a source of stimulation for her. Criticism in this group was reserved for the monthly "critique" when each member brought a painting of an assigned theme to be criticized by someone whose opinions were respected by all members.

Elsie's advice is "Don't be dominated by the technique. What the painter has to say of his subject brings its own technique."

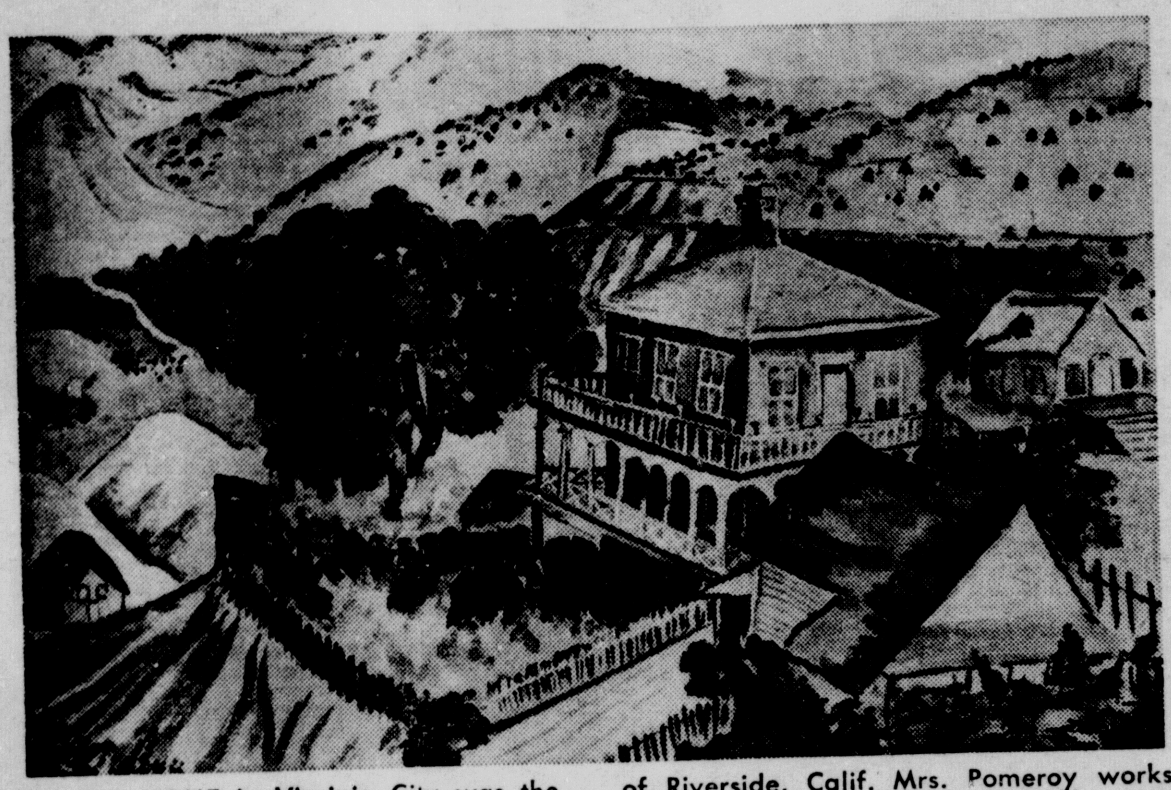
Consequently mediums other than watercolor, such as oils and egg tempera, have been attracting her interest. She is an experimenter and has developed from exact likeness in her illustrations to representational, to abstract and non-objective art.

ELSIE POMEROY now has paintings in the Marin Society of Artists Rental Gallery, the Art Bank of the Art Institute in San Francisco and in a traveling show called "Vistas" from the Art Bank. She has a show in the Crocker-Anglo Bank in Tiburon and the Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital in San Rafael.

At the request of Dick Ford, one of her staunch admirers, a review of Mrs. Pomeroy's work is being presented in three exhibits this spring at the Dick Ford Dance Center in Mill Valley. The first show is now hanging and represents her work in the 1930s.

A second, late in April, will represent the 1940s, and the third, in May, will present current work.

The center is open on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. On Sundays the public is invited from 3 to 5 p.m.



AN OLD HOME in Virginia City was the subject of this painting by Elsie Lower Pomeroy, done while she was a resident of Riverside, Calif. Mrs. Pomeroy works with a broad stroke that is effective in both landscapes and still life groups.

"A MELTING SNOW by Elsie Lower Pomeroy won the first award of merit from the Washington D.C. Art League in 1935, and also top watercolor honors from the Butler Art Institute at Youngstown, Ohio, in 1942.

"CALICO HILLS" is representative of Elsie Lower Pomeroy's work with Califorina landscapes, a favorite subject. The painting won an honorable mention from the Riverside Fine Art Guild in 1941.

"REALTY VIEWS"

We had nearly completed a listing on Al's house. "How much are you asking for your house?" I asked.

"Let's start the price plenty high." Al answered. "We can always come down if it doesn't sell."

"Al, I've heard that remark a thousand times in this business. But I want you to know that it often doesn't work out that way."

"What do you mean?" Al inquired.

"Owners usually assume that a buyer will inspect the property and make an offer even though the asking price is out of line. Often the reverse is true. The buyer won't even get out of the car to look at it. Instead, he'll probably say, 'That fellow doesn't want to sell. Drive on.'

William A. Lewis

"On the other hand, if your price is fair to start with, he'll be interested in sizing it up for his needs. The average buyer will pay a fair price without a lot of useless haggling."

"That sounds reasonable," Al said a fair price right from the first."

LEWIS REALTY

White Hunter Lee Apperson Likes His Job

By DON KEOWN

The African buffalo is not the most dangerous beast, and that same continent's legendary "white hunter" is not the most efficient hunter.

Nor is hunting a serious threat to our dwindling wild animal species.

SO ASSERTS LEE Apperson, one of Marin's newer residents and a man qualified to speak on the subject of big game hunting. For Apperson is himself what is known as a "white hunter," although it is a term he dislikes.

Apperson is quick to spike a number of generally-accepted beliefs about big game hunting which he says are "nothing more than myths."

For example, that oft-repeated one that the African buffalo is the most dangerous of game to hunt.

"As far as I am concerned, the grizzly bear is far and away the most dangerous," Apperson says. "That is, with the single possible exception of a wounded lion in high grass."

AS FOR THE vaunted hunting prowess of the "great white hunter" of Africa:

"The American deer hunter is a better hunter in every way. Especially is he a superior marksman. To my way of thinking, a skilled American deer hunter is the best hunter in the world."

And as for hunters posing a serious peril to big game:

"What the sportsmen kill isn't a pinprick. It is civilization that is the real menace. The destruction of their natural habitat is dooming many species which simply cannot adjust to a new environment.

"Our deer can adjust to encroaching civilization quite well and live almost within the city limits. But such African animals as the rhino, elephant and lion simply cannot make that adjustment. And so as civilization advances, they are losing out."

"Every time more land goes under cultivation," Apperson adds, "there is a cry for reducing the animal herds in order to protect the crops. What the sportsmen kill is only a tiny fraction of the number killed for control purposes."

Still another widely accepted myth, Apperson says, is that big game hunting is an extremely dangerous sport. "If it is done right, it isn't as dangerous as crossing the street," he says flatly. "But the feeling and excitement of danger is there."

WHY DO people hunt?

" That," Apperson says, "is a question I have been asked many times.

"I answer it this way: In most people there is a hidden desire that goes back to mankind's nature in early times. There is a longing for adventure, and for that 'moment of truth' when you sight your weapon and prepare to pull the trigger to bring down your game. It's a challenge, an adventure, a resolution of personal conflict and a test of ability."

Unlike some professional hunters, Apperson does not regard conservationists as his foes.

"Any professional hunter who is thoughtful knows that reasonable laws to protect the game are the only answer," he says. "For that reason, I never disobey a game law. And when I head up a hunting party, I also see to it that my clients live up to every letter of the law."

A BIG FACTOR in deciding the fate of many big game species will be whether or not the new nations adopt and enforce hunting and conservation regulations, Apperson says.

"These countries have thousands and thousands of natives who have never had enough meat, simply because the colonial governments have refused to permit them to have good weapons," he explains. "Now they are suddenly released from those colonial restraints and are free to acquire good rifles. If they are allowed to kill indiscriminately, the slaughter could be terrible."

Apperson sees early signs, however, that the new nations intend to enforce regulations which in some respects are even more stringent than those applied by the colonial powers.

Of the new countries generally, he comments: "They have a long way to go. But they will make it."

APPERSON, married and the father of two girls, recently became a Marinite when he purchased the Armstrong Travel Service agency in

IN THE SADDLE, Lee Apperson searches for big game in mountainous, wooded British Columbia. Apperson was schooled for a career in industrial engineering. But after serving as a pilot in World War II, he decided upon the profession of hunting and fishing organizer and guide. He recently became a Marinite with the purchase of the Armstrong Travel Service in Sausalito.

Stop, Look and Listen!

Clean clothing lasts longer! All garments in your wardrobe, worn or unworn, should be cleaned twice a year at least, to remove accumulated dust, body acids, cleaning detergent residue, moth larvae, etc. . . . and to flex the fibers. The latter is important, for many fabrics become stiff and unyielding from disuse. Give this a thought.

Tests made by the National Institute of Dry Cleaning reveal that abrasive soil shortens clothing life. "Fiber friction" is appreciably reduced when this abrasive soil is periodically removed. As a result, garments last longer and look better when worn. This is understandable, isn't it?

Cleaning costs are high, agreed. But you can save up to 50% of usual cleaning costs utilizing our expert services for your wardrobe care and maintenance. Combining low-cost custom finishing with self-service dry cleaning will reduce wear and tear on your purse. And that's something to think about, isn't it?

JAGUARS are just one of the big cats which "white hunter" Lee Apperson and his clients have bagged in the jungles and wilds of several continents. These beautiful pelts are the result of kills made in Yucatan, one of the favorite big game hunting grounds for Apperson and his parties of sportsmen.

Inability To Adjust To Changing Environment Dooms Many Species

Sausalito. It all ties in with his profession of hunter and guide, since the agency will specialize in organizing safaris to the lands of the big game "although, of course, we will also continue to offer all the usual travel agency services."

Apperson was educated for a career in industrial engineering. Then came World War II and he found himself a lead pilot for the Eighth Air Force in Europe.

When he returned from one particularly hazardous assault on Berlin "during which they really clobbered us . . . there were 366 holes in our plane," he made up his mind as to the future.

"I decided that if I came out of the war safely, I would spend the rest of my days doing the things I liked best. And what I liked best was hunting and fishing along with flying."

So since the war Apperson has pursued a career as an organizer and guide for fishing and hunting parties along with some aeronautics and airport administrative positions and some flying. (A newspaper clipping credits him with being the first man to successfully seed clouds from a plane and cause rain.)

APPERSON has explored and hunted big game in Africa, India, South America, Yucatan, throughout North America. He has pioneered in the development of quail shooting preserves in this country. He has shot game in Britain, fished in Norway's fjords and along Argentina's southern tip.

At one time Apperson had 75 guides, hunters, pilots, etc., on his payroll for his hunting safaris.

He still flies the twin-engine plane which simplifies the transportation problem for his hunting parties.

He says it was the realization that he could simplify his operations by acting as his own "middle man" in making arrangements for the hunting trips that caused him to go looking for a travel agency — a search that ended in the purchase of the Armstrong Service.

In early May, Apperson will be heading one of his hunting parties, bound for India and a try for tiger and other big game. There the hunters will be distributed, under the care of expert guides, among the several huge blocks of jungle land which Apperson has rented from the government of India, complete with housing.

"A retired Australian colonel, J. P. Bergin, with one of my hunting parties in India, killed a record tiger that was 10 feet six inches long and five feet in girth," Apperson says.

African hunting has encountered a temporary snag that is being ironed out.

APPERSON'S old hunting grounds on that continent were in French Equatorial Africa too close to the border of the troubled Congo for comfort. So Apperson has abandoned that area. He is in the process of completing arrangements for future expeditions to Somalia with its relatively stable government.

One trend among his clients that Apperson has noted is that more and more of them are carrying cameras instead of guns.

"Ten years ago they went to Africa or India to hunt. Now many go to photograph.

As for himself, Apperson says that he seldom kills an animal anymore.

"I have killed eight or 10 lions, but the thrill of shooting is gone and I no longer feel the desire," he says. "I'm just interested in seeing that my clients have some good hunting. And I back them up with the shotgun."

Of the shotgun, he adds: "It's an awesome weapon. It is amazing, the punch it packs."

WHEN SPEAKING of the outdoor life in general, Apperson waxes eloquently.

"There is one way that you can get away from Sputniks, hydrogen bombs, intercontinental missiles, aching bones, tired ulcers, grouchy people and automobile horns," he says. "There is a way that you can slow down the hardening of arteries and refresh a tired mind.

"That best medicine in the world is to get out your hunt-

THE GRIZZLY BEAR is the most dangerous adversary the big game hunter can take on, according to "white hunter" Lee Apperson. Here he poses with a big bruin which he bagged while hunting in the rugged terrain of British Columbia.

MEN IN THE JUNGLE must have meat to eat. And here the "kill" has been made for that specific purpose. Shown are one of the "white hunters" employed by Apperson and his native trackers. Well aware of the criticism to which big game hunters are subjected, Apperson replies that their kill is minute when compared to the toll taken by encroaching civilization. And he adds that professional hunters and their sportsmen-clients are careful obey hunting and conservation laws.

THIS HUGE ELEPHANT, with tusks weighing 60 pounds, was brought down in French Equatorial Africa where Lee Apperson once led his African hunting safaris. Because of the unrest in the nearby Congo, he is in the process of shifting his African hunting operations to Somalia, which has a relatively stable government and also offers good big game shooting.

The Case For Hunting

ing and fishing equipment and take off.

"If not hunting and fishing, then hiking and camping. Take your camera along. And whenever possible, take your family with you. It does not really matter where you go, as long as you are out in the open.

"I guarantee that you will be a better person when you get back."

"THE GAME, the lakes, the forests, the mountains and streams put you and civilization in their proper perspective," he adds.

As for his own profession, the white hunter says: "It's a good life. You meet the finest people in the world hunting and fishing. And you travel and see a lot of different customs and grand scenery.

"What better way is there to make a living?"

Obviously, Lee Apperson has no regrets that he did not follow through on those early engineering ambitions.

THE BOOK PAGES

Another Novel Set In Today's Dixie

By DON KEOWN

The South continues to be a favorite setting with American novelists.

Latest to utilize the contemporary South is Wirt Williams in his "A Passage of Hawks." It seems to be a pretty standard work of its kind, no world-beater, yet interesting enough to hold the attention of its readers.

In "A Passage of Hawks" the marriage of the daughter of a wealthy Southern family and a war hero has turned sour. Faced wth the knowledge that his wife is already unfaithful, the man, too, is drawn into an affair. Blackmail and violence follow in that order.

It really isn't a bad novel. But the jacket blurb quotes Ernest Hemingway as having said: "I think Wirt Williams writes as well as anybody writing." On that basis, Williams can do better than this.

IN SURPRISING proximity, Harper & Row has published two new books for fishermen.

You can choose between "Esquire's Book of Fishing" as compiled and edited by Robert Scharff, and the "Complete Book of Fresh Water Fishing" as written by P. Allen Parsons.

Since the former deals with both fresh and salt water fishing, the latter only with fresh water angling, that difference may dictate your choice.

On the other hand, the Esquire book seems better suited for armchair pleasure reading, the Parsons book more informative as a practical book of instruction.

The Esquire book is the lower priced — especially since it is available at a special gift figure of $4.95 until June 17—but the Parsons manual has more content and is the more generously illustrated.

"Esquire's Book of Fishing" consists of material published in Esquire magazine over a period of 30 years. It represents the talents and knowledge of such men as Philip Wylie, Arnold Ginrich, Hart Stilwell, Corey Ford, George Wiswell and Cal Johnson. The usual topics such as selection of equipment are explored. More unusual is the listing of favorite fishing haunts in this country and around the world.

Parsons, author of "Complete Book of Fresh Water Fishing," is a well-known outdoor writer. His book is remarkably comprehensive, covering just about everything the fisherman needs to know to locate and land fresh water game fish of all kinds. The book is enriched by excellent and instructive illustrations by Ray Pioch plus 16 pages of color paintings by G. Don Ray of the classic fly patterns. It reads to us like something of a piscatorial classic.

AN ABSOLUTE "must" for the freelance writer or photographer, full-time or part-time, established professional or aspiring amateur, is the latest edition of "Writer's Market."

The 1963 edition (price, $5.95) is out, bigger than ever, and, as always, an indispensable compilation of the sources of remuneration open to those who write or photograph for a living or for supplementary income.

It lists the publishers, their publications, addresses, their requirements and taboos, rates, policies, etc. In all, 3,500 markets are covered. And there is such added information as a sample TV script, a sample model's release form, copyright information and a discussion of the procedure for selling a book-length manuscript to a publisher.

All this has been arranged and indexed in the handy commonsense formula which Writer's Digest magazine has developed through years of experience with this annual publication.

In short, "Writer's Market" is as essential a tool to the writer as is his typewriter.

THIRTY-THREE years have passed since Sir Arthur Conan Doyle passed away. But his creation, Sherlock Holmes, is as alive today as ever, and seems likely to survive forever.

The latest contribution to the prolonging of the Baker Street legend is "The Sherlock Holmes Companion" by Britishers Michael and Mollie Hardwick. It was published last year in England and is now available in this country.

It contains: (1) A "who's who" of characters appearing in the Holmes stories; (2) a summarization of the plots of the stories—but without Holmes' solutions; (3) biographies of Holmes and Dr. Watson, and (4) an excellent account of Conan Doyle's life and his fathering of fiction's most famous sleuth.

It's a book which will delight all Holmes fans and merit a place of honor on their shelves.

A VILLAGE in rural England whose tranquility is shattered by the brutal and apparently senseless murders of the town prostitutes is the setting for Mark McShane's exciting suspense novel, "Untimely Ripped."

The chief protagonists are a self-styled religious evangelist with strange mental quirks, and a tough, ambitious and unpleasant detective.

The story is expertly told from start to finish as McShane maintains an atmosphere of terror and suspense with great finesse. And his title turns out to have a hidden significance that is revealed in the novel's conclusion which McShane handles with an Alfred Hitchcock-type twist of irony.

DOUBLEDAY has re-issued Suzanne Blanc's "The Green Stone" in its excellent Dolphin series of paperback mysteries.

That's the suspense yarn about a young American girl touring in Mexico who suddenly finds herself endangered by a series of mishaps. The sleuth, Inspector Menendes of the San Luis police, is a delightful characterization.

The book, originally published by Harper & Row, won for Miss Blanc the Edgar Allan Poe Award for the best first mystery novel of 1961—and deservedly so.

THE STEREO SCENE

A Family Of Guitarists In Some Exciting Discs

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, FM & Cultural Guide

THE ROYAL FAMILY OF THE SPANISH GUITAR by Celedonio, Celin, Pepe and Angel Romero—Mercury Stereo SR90295, and FLAMENCO! by guitarist Pepe Romero —Mercury Stereo SR 90297.

I had hoped to review these discs in February, prior to the Bay Area concerts by the talented Romero family late that month, but such was the interest of classical-guitar lovers in the new albums that the local distributor only just received a second shipment including my review copies.

If you missed the concerts you can still enjoy the fabulous Romero Family on these LP's, and from a more-than-front-row seat too.

Papa is Celedonio Romero, and he had his three boys practicing scales as soon as they were old enough to hold up a guitar. Their home was, naturally, Spain—that is until recently, when they pulled up stakes and made a brave new start in the U.S., where they are being received with open arms by the musical world.

Celin, at 24 the oldest son, concentrates on arrangements of Romantic period composers; Pepe, age 18, is such a Flamenco virtuoso that he already has an entire LP of flashing and exciting improvisations (see above); the youngest, Angel (14), finds the Baroque repertory his favorite.

When the whole family gets together on arrangements such as Celedonio's own "Nights in Malaga," the effect is breathtaking in every way.

The first LP features two pieces played by the guitar quartet, with several duets and the rest solos by various members of the family. Works of Spanish composers, in addition to originals by Papa, make up the concert.

Pepe's own LP is devoted to an all-Flamenco concert, played with a verve and spirit indiginous to an 18-year-old prodigy, but tempered with an amazing skill and musicianship.

After Munich

IN LOVE AND WAR by Barbara Ker Wilson, World Publishing Co., $3.50, 250 pages. Reviewed by Jean Lyttle.

Author Barbara Ked Wilson has written here an exciting and dramatic story which starts in 1938 with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's optimistic return from the Munich Conference.

The setting is Renchester, a town near London. Six families of varying backgrounds are portrayed. The novel shows how differently these people respond to chaos and grief as war invades and indelibly alters their lives.

Inspiring Story

THE EVERLASTING FLAME by Dorothy Wood, Exposition Press, 182 pages, $3. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

This is the personal story of how a young woman confined to bed, encased in a plaster cast for a spinal fracture for many months, sought salvation in religion. And how, finally, after much time filled with question and patient answer, she sought admission to the Order of Dominican Nuns.

Three years' delay, because she still suffered injuries to her back and leg and because she was 36 years old, followed her request—then it was granted.

The courage and persistence of the author, a Santa Rosa resident, is illustrated in her eventual recovery from the accident to her spine and leg she suffered while taking an Irish hunter over the jumps at a Cow Palace horse show. Miss Wood was before her injury the owner of Idlewild Acres where she bred show and racing horses.

Missionary Story

CHRIST'S WITCHDOCTOR by Homer E. Dowdy, Harper & Row, 241 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Unfortunately, this is only a routine job of reporting the conversion of the chief (and witchdoctor) of a British Guiana tribe of primitive natives.

Somehow the drama of white missionaries, going for the first time into an area where natives killed earlier movements of the whites, does not come off. The subject matter is interesting, however and 35 clear and bright photos relieve the rather drab text.

Timely On Taxes

THE AMERICAN WAY IN TAXATION edited by Lilliam Doris, Prentice-Hall, 288 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Now that the witching hour of midnight oil and Form 1040 is here, this book could be a valuable addenda to the citizen making out his income tax.

In addition to a historical rundown on the internal revenue service from its start in 1862, there are some useful chapters — particularly those detailing what steps to take if you disagree with an agent's findings. It's knowledge that could conceivably save you thousands of dollars.

Enjoyable Excursion

THE CONVERSION OF CHAPLAIN COHAN by Herbert Tarr, Bernard Geis Associates, 341 pages. $4.95. Reviewed by Corena Green.

It has been said that people write best about what they know the most about.

This should certainly put "The Conversion of Chaplain Cohan" high on the "well-written" list, for it is about a Jewish chaplain from New York City assigned to the Strategic Air Command with duty in a southern state and Labrador. It is written by a Jewish chaplain from New York City assigned to the Strategic Air Command with duty in a southern state and Labrador.

An unusual theme, an easy style of writing, some madcap situations and some very sobering sequences combine to make this book an enjoyable literary excursion.

If some of the situations seem improbable, one must remember how close author Herbert Tarr was to the scene.

Rabbi David Cohan, as provincial a New Yorker as ever lived, finds himself a victim of selective service and, despite his abject fear of flying, is assigned as chaplain at an Air Force base in Mississippi.

In rapid succession he tangles with the segregation problem by inviting a Negro Jew to a Seder, by delivering a sermon unpopular with the town's leading business man, and by insulting the wife of the commanding officer (incidentally a well-deserved insult). At once he finds himself enroute to Goose Bay with an air refueling squadron. Through the aid of sleeping pills he survives the flight to Labrador and back to Mississippi three months later.

There are some masterful sequences when Cohan engages in long arguments, situation analysis and self-analysis with his inner voice, sometimes humorous, sometimes saddening. But the charm of the book is the emerging understanding among the chaplains of varied faiths.

Antique Handbook

PRACTICAL GUIDE TO ANTIQUE COLLECTING by Geoffrey Wills, Arco Publishing Co., 168 pages, $2.50, clothbound, 95 cents paperback. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Livewire Arco Publishing Co. continues to add to its already impressive array of instructive books, the latest being its just-published "Practical Guide to Antique Collecting" by internationally-known collector, writer and expert Geoffrey Wills.

Wills has aimed this little illustrated handbook primarily — but not exclusively — at beginners. For their benefit he digs into his vast store of knowledge and passes along a wealth of fundamental information on antiques which he has broken down into four sub-categories: Furniture; pottery and porcelain; glass, silver, plate, enamels and metalwork, and miscellaneous. The last named covers such varied subjects as jade and other stones, lace and tapestry, ivory, clocks, etc.

History, prices, descriptions and other basic data are provided. But Wills admits frankly that complete coverage in a book of this size is impossible. So he suggests further reading for those who might want to explore the field in greater depth.

This well-organized guide might well serve as a good starting point from which the reader will go on to active participation in a pastime that already fascinates many.

ABOVE WITH FRIEND is Raymond E. Barrett, whose new book, "Build-It-Yourself Science Laboratory," has just been published by Doubleday and Co. Illustrated with line drawings, the book tells how to build 200 pieces of lab equipment from inexpensive materials. Barrett is with the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry in Portland. His book sells for $4.50.

The History Of Our Seas For Children

IN PREHISTORIC SEAS by Carroll Lane Fenton and Mildred Adams Fenton, Doubleday and Co., 125 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Just about every child is fascinated by sea shells.

"In Prehistoric Seas" takes advantage of this fascination to relate what the child will find at the seashore or see in the aquarium to the natural history of our oceans.

Authors Carroll Lane Fenton and Mildred Adams Fenton have put a surprising lot of knowledge into easy-to-read form in this profusely illustrated volume, labeled as for readers "up to 12." Although its format would indicate its being aimed at younger children, its contents will likely appeal most to those near the "up to" limit specified on the jacket.

SHOWING TWO OF THE bargains which she "captured" at last year's Marin Society of Artists Auction is Mrs. John Keller of Larkspur. PERSISTENCE PAYS OFF

The Annual Rush For Nuggets Of Art Is On Again Tomorrow

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Not since Gold Rush days has anything come close to the mad treasure hunt that takes place annually at the Marin Society of Artists' Annual Auction.

Just ask auction-going expert, Mrs. John Keller, who wouldn't think of missing this year's onslaught of art prospectors, tomorrow at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Last year, Mrs. Keller just went to look and come home with a trove of six treasures. The most she paid for anything was $35, a real bargain, considering it was a ceramic by Vera Borzy. But she also claimed a handsome batik for a mere $3.50 plus a collage by Tom Buchanan for a price somewhere in between.

Mrs. Keller is no novice. She has been collecting Bay Area art for the past eight or nine years and to her, the auction is a collector's paradise.

There is every kind of art from painting and sculpture to jewelry, ceramics and crafts . . . from realism to the extremely abstract.

"THE QUALITY of the work is excellent and this is the one and only time you are able to buy work by prominent names at such bargain prices," she says.

The reason this is possible is that all work is donated by members of the Marin Society of Artists for the benefit of MSA's Fine Arts Award Fund and Building Fund, where all auction proceeds will go.

But Mrs. Keller feels the MSA Auction is especially fertile ground for the beginning collector. "It gives young people just starting, a chance to decide what they really like. Most of them can't afford the regular prices, especially if they are afraid they might make a mistake."

As for mistakes, Mrs. Keller feels an auction buyer wouldn't make one anyway.

"There is plenty of time to look and decide. Besides, the only reason to own a painting anyway, is if you like it."

AT AN AUCTION, it seems mostly a matter of being able to capture the prize you're after. Although for Mrs. Keller this will be only her second time out, she can be considered an expert.

Actual auction experience is what counts and Mrs. Keller offers this advice to first-timers, "Be sure to get there for the opening preview at 1:30. This gives you time to look around and decide how many you want. Then you'll know how many stations must be manned and you'll have time to send out for reinforcements."

This is because at the silent bidding which begins at 2 p.m., each work has next to it, a correspondingly numbered slip with the artist's name and $2 minimum starting price. Under this, the prospective buyer signs his name and higher bid. At the 3:30 gong, the last name listed turns in the slip with his name plus his bid payment and the work is his.

Mrs. Keller explains, "As I did, you'll probably want more than one and you'd have to keep running back and forth to write your higher bid. So bring some friends, lots of them, preferably aggressive, to stay with your choices until the final gong."

EVERYTHING not purchased in this silent auction will go to the highest bidder in the ensuing frenzy of the verbal auction. This is where this year's art prospectors will have added incentive to stay to the bitter end. Les Crane, KGO radio and television personality and an art collector in his own right, will be on hand to serve as auctioneer.

It will be Crane's job to see that everything goes to bring this year's auction proceeds above last year's $2,000 mark.

To paraphrase Mrs. Keller, to get art treasures at a bargain, you need only be present and bidding at tomorrow's Marin Society of Artists' Annual Auction . . . present, bidding and persistent. And besides, "It's an awful lot of fun."

The pure white fruit blossoms,
The simmering scarlet rosebuds,
The moist green lilac leaves.
Sunbeams dancing
Along variegated floral borders.
Thank you, God,
For renewing our life
Again this year;
Spring is here.

What In The World Are Internodes?

They're The Key To Some New Plant Developments

No, short internodes aren't small disease organisms or some sort of soil deficiency. They are the key to some very nice things happening lately to flower plants.

The internode is the stem of a plant between sets of leaves, and the length of the internode strongly affects the height of the plant.

UNUSUAL growing conditions can make distinct differences in internode length. For instance, you've seen how "leggy" seedlings can be when they are covered from the light or crowded together in a starting box indoors.

But internode length is also a matter of genetics, and through modern plant breeding, unusual and desirable new varieties are being created which differ sharply from their ancestors.

Here's where short internodes make the difference. Some plants, like strawflowers and sunflowers, are quite tall and limited in garden use because of their height. New varieties with the same size flowers are now available, but through the single change of selecting for short internodes are only half the height of standard strains.

THE MOST interesting development in many years of flower breeding is the success achieved this season in bringing startlingly short internodes into the zinnia class. For the first time in history a truly super-dwarf zinnia has been established. It is called Thumbelina, and in recognition of its unique dwarf character it has been awarded the rare All-America gold medal for achievement in horticulture.

Thumbelina plants grow only six inches tall, yet they produce as many leaves and flowers as plants three times their height. This makes the variety most attractive and useful, since instead of the rather open, tall plant commonly seen in zinnias, this one is extremely compact, globe-shaped, and neat in appearance.

The flowers are the same size as Lilliput or Cupid zinnias, and come in red, orange, yellow, pink and white colors. For edging, window boxes, planters, and low borders Thumbelina is supreme, for it retains all the heat resistance of the class, comes into bloom very quickly, and provides a trouble-free band of color through the whole summer.

A PLEASANT side effect in the case of this densely-placed foliage is the fact that the old flowers are covered as the plant expands, and no housekeeping is necessary to maintain the bright, fresh appearance.

So short internodes are not just a geneticist's toy, but a good way to produce new and improved flowers. You can make good use of such things as Thumbelina in your own garden.

A PRIME EXAMPLE of what can be accomplished by shortening plant internodes is the most-publicized new flower of 1963—the Thumbelina zinnia. This very dwarf and compact plant stands only six inches tall, yet produces abundant foliage and flowers.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Renovate old lawns and seed new ones this month. Be sure you keep newly-sown seed moist at all times.
- Plant marguerites for masses of yellow bloom in summer. They are also available in pink and white forms.
- Set tomato plants out now. Be sure you get a variety recommended by your nurseryman.
- Shop for rhododendrons while they are in bloom.
- Plant fuchsias this month for summer bloom.
- With roses making their first big flush of growth and developing spring's first bloom, be sure to protect this new growth against aphis and other pests with a regular feeding and spraying program.

Give The Teener A Studio

Give a teen-age daughter her own private bedroom, and you'll win a friend.

Kids past 10 crave the privacy and security of having their own snug home within the family home. And, if at all possible, they should have their private niche—and with it, the responsibility of its maintenance.

THE FAVORED decor for a young modern's room is crisply tailored and grown-up. It minimizes the bedroom and emphasizes a studio look which makes the teener feel she's gained a sitting room plus the necessary sleeping space.

The "studio look" relies on eliminating conventional bedroom furniture. The usual twin beds give way to studio couches which can be arranged space-saving in a corner to form a daveno, perhaps also utilizing a single corner lamp table as a nightstand and headboard for the two couches.

Bureaus are out here, and built-ins take over their function to give the room a chic, architecturally composed appearance.

You make best use of space if all clothing storage is built on one wall.

ONE GOOD arrangement is to divide the wall into thirds. The two outer sections become double-door closets, one containing two hanging rods for skirts and blouses, the other a single rod for full-length garments. A shelf in each closet takes the hat boxes and handbags.

The middle third is split crosswise. The lower section will contain drawers, with enclosing cupboard doors to keep them dust free and sleek in appearance. The upper half of the center unit can be shelved for books and bric-a-brac, and this will be left open.

TEEN-AGE daughters like a sophisticated, studio-style bedroom which features full wall of storage for their glad-rags. Walls paneled in resawn Douglas fir are painted dove grey to match built-ins. Other colors in room are jet black and peacock blue. (Photo by West Coast Lumbermen's Assn.)

The storage wall is compact, but, in exchange for the 30 inches of depth it takes, it offers much more actual clothing storage than conventional furniture while requiring less floor space.

WALLS IN this teener's bedroom could be handsome, easy-upkeep wood paneling, a real prestige symbol to the young sophisticate. Resawn Douglas fir, with its richly textured surface, would be an excellent choice.

The paneling can be finished with stain to duplicate the wood's luxurious honey-beige hue, or the fir could be painted to introduce color yet retain the texture of the resawn paneling. Built-ins should be finished to match.

A good-sized, well lighted desk will inspire the modern miss to study and complete her studio lair.

NO FIDDLING

Single-Lever Faucet Means Convenience And Economy

Are you a "faucet fiddler?"

Do you have to turn the faucet handle this way and that way in a vain attempt to adjust to a satisfactory volume and temperature?

If this is your problem, the single-lever faucet will solve it.

When introduced some years ago, the single lever faucet was shown only on kitchen sinks. Now lavatories and bathtubs are equipped with this modern device.

The single lever faucet offers the user the unusual convenience of being able to select the desired temperature and volume of water with one hand, and very rapidly. The temperature and the volume of water are always "just right."

Because the single lever faucet makes it possible to adjust so quickly to the exact temperature and volume of water desired, it saves water as well as the fuel required to heat water.

THE PRINCIPLE OF nuclear fission will be demonstrated on Monday night's "Science in Action" show over KRON-TV with the help of this mass array of mouse traps and corks. When one trap fires, its cork sets off two more traps and ad infinitum until all the corks are popping.
